

Student Outcomes

Revised August 2015

1. Articulate an understanding of the truth of who Jesus Christ is and demonstrate personal spiritual disciplines.
2. Engage in critical thinking and demonstrate an understanding of both a biblical worldview and opposing worldviews.
3. Understand how the Bible develops its themes of creation, fall, redemption, and restoration and understand that these biblical themes inform one's understanding of the liberal arts and sciences.
4. Demonstrate proficiency in the use of technology and exercise discernment and appropriateness in assessing its advantages and limitations.
5. Present, defend, and critique an argument (orally or in writing) using rigorous logic and precise terminology.
6. Think creatively to solve problems, combining appropriate skills and concepts learned across all disciplines.
7. Demonstrate the mathematical skills and understanding necessary for stewardship of our God-given resources.
8. Develop and demonstrate scientific knowledge and understanding through study, reflection, research, and experimentation of God's created order.
9. Develop and demonstrate an ability to create through music, and the visual and performing arts.
10. Exhibit the habits of a life-long learner, including an inclination to ask questions and consider new ideas.
11. Access, evaluate, and communicate information, both collaboratively and independently, through reading, writing, listening, and speaking.

12. Articulate God's providential directing of human history, with an understanding of significant historical themes and events.
13. Understand the complexity of diverse cultures as well as the interdependency among cultures.
14. Exhibit proficiency in a world language in order to understand and interact with other cultures.
15. Appreciate how human diversity within community provides a multi-faceted reflection of the image of God.
16. Understand one's God-given gifts and use them for greater human flourishing and toward the glory of God.
17. Understand and strive toward health in body, mind, and spirit.
18. Demonstrate an understanding of humble stewardship of the environment and all of God's creation.