Evidence from the text or standards relating to EDUCATIONAL SIGNIFICANCE:
This text wouldn't be taught material in a classroom setting. It's a choice library book that some students would choose to read for a number of reasons (identification w/ main character and/or LGBTQ themes; support of LGBTQ family/friends; curiosity; seeking to become informed about a marginalized group, etc). Since when do choice library books need to be connected to standards beyond the ELA standard about reading for pleasure?
