Academic Program

Concordia International School Hanoi offers a rigorous, standard based learning college preparatory curriculum based on American standards and bench-marks. All instruction is in English with the exception of world languages. A few students may be assigned to Concordia's EAL program when their demonstrated English skills are one grade or below recommended grade level proficiency, and upon completion of the program they are then eligible to enroll in one of the World Language classes. In addition to classes taught on campus, students have the option to petition to enroll in online courses through Virtual High School. These classes are typically offered when there is a scheduling conflict, when a student is requesting a course that is not on offer in Concordia's curriculum, or when a student is striving to complete a graduation requirement.

Course Explanations

The range of course offerings available at Concordia International School Hanoi has increased as the student population has grown. Please see the explanations below for further information on our advanced classes outside the scope of the AP curriculum, and our Counselor-led Seminar classes.

Machine Learning
This advanced, project-based course introduces students to the foundational concepts, applications, and practical implementation of machine learning, a rapidly evolving field of artificial intelligence. Students explore techniques ranging from basic linear models to advanced deep learning, applying their knowledge to design, develop, and present original machine learning projects

Computer Programing
This rigorous, dual-credit course (through Concordia University Nebraska) emphasizes computer programming in Python, problem-solving, and effective coding practices. Covering all AP Computer Science A topics and additional material, students build algorithms, implement programs, and complete a comprehensive programming project that prepares them for advanced study in computer science.

MVLA (Multivariable Calculus and Linear Algebra)
A few exceptional mathematics students who complete the AP mathematics curriculum are eligible to take Multivariable Calculus and Linear Algebra, which are advanced math courses that extend beyond the scope of the AP curriculum and are offered as dual enrollment courses through online courses with a university partner.

Independent Research: Science/ Social Sciences
This highly advanced research course is available to a select number of students who have demonstrated exceptional academic achievement in science or the social sciences and are committed to engaging in an intensive year long research project under the supervision of a faculty mentor.

Counselor-Led Seminar (Grades 9–12)
All high school students participate in a required, year-long, counselor-led Seminar program integrating Social and Emotional Learning (SEL), personal wellness, career exploration, and academic and personal development. The curriculum progresses from self-awareness, relationship skills, and career discovery in Grades 9–10 to university research, application preparation, and successful cross-cultural transitions to university in Grades 11–12.

Character Education and Disciplinary Reporting

Concordia Hanoi is a faith-based school committed to developing ethical decision-makers and fostering a strong sense of community. We uphold honest and transparent communication with universities; when a student incurs an out-of-school suspension, the counselor provides appropriate context in recommendation letters, while lesser infractions are addressed at the counselor's discretion.

AP Courses Allowed

Students may take a maximum of eight total AP Courses over four years. Students with exeptional circumstances may petition school administration for an exeption to the AP course limit and petitions are evaluated on a case by case basis. The maximum number of AP courses permitted per grade level is as follows:

Grade 9: N/A	Grade 11: 3
Grade 10: 1	Grade 12: 4

Class Rank & Grading Scale

- Concordia does not report class rank.
- Only coursework completed at Concordia is used in the calculation of a student's GPA.
- Concordia uses a 4.0 grading scale.
- Concordia does not weight grades for AP, honors, or dual credit courses. Students who meet the prerequisites can take AP and/or dual credit classes.

SAT Results

Results below show SAT scores for the class of 2026, including both native and non-native speakers.

SAT (n=38)	Middle 50%	Mean
ERW	630-730	673
Math	660-790	714
Total	1330-1500	1387

College Application Limit

Concordia students are limited to 12 university applications per year. Students who have significant financial challenges may petition Concordia administration for an exemption to the application limit. The following system applications count as one application each regardless of how many schools within that application system a student applies to: The University of California Application (UC), The Universities and Colleegé Admissions Service (UCAS) and The Ontario University Application (OUAC).

The Common Application is NOT counted as a system application. Each college that a student applies to using the Common Application counts as one application.

College & University Acceptances
