2026 Regional SYMPOSIUMS

The Productivity Paradox: Helping Busy Boarding Staff Keep Pace and Make Space – Daniel Sih

Session One Overview:

Boarding staff work in a world of constant demands, competing priorities, and increasing complexity. Student wellbeing, operational pressures, digital overload, and work-life pressures can easily blur together in an always-on environment.

In this practical and engaging session, award-winning author, TEDx speaker, podcast host, and productivity expert Daniel Sih explores why sustainable productivity requires both-and thinking: pace and space, performance and wellbeing, and artificial and organic intelligence.

Drawing on practical frameworks and real-world experience, Daniel will share simple strategies to manage goals, projects, and competing priorities with greater clarity. Attendees will learn light-weight approaches to weekly planning, Big Rocks, dynamic time-blocking, and healthier rhythms for sustainable work and life.

This session draws on ideas from Daniel Sih's books, Spacemaker and Wise AI, and his popular productivity course, Priority Samurai.

Key Takeaways:

- Understanding Both-And Productivity: Navigate competing realities including pace and space, performance and wellbeing, and artificial and organic intelligence.
- Managing Priorities: Learn practical ways to manage goals, projects, and next actions.
- Planning with Intention: Use Big Rocks and dynamic time-blocking to create a more focused and realistic week.
- Creating Healthier Rhythms: Develop practical habits to make space for reflection, rest, and sustainable work.
- Turning Ideas into Action: Develop personal commitments for keeping pace and making space.
