Attendance Awareness Month Continues

Showing up to school every day is critical for children's well-being, engagement and learning. Avoid keeping children at home unless they are too sick to participate. Make sure to send children to school if they are:

- Generally healthy and well.
- Participating in usual day-to-day activities.

Children can even go to school if they:

- Have a mild stomach ache.
- Have head lice. Though they are annoying and should be treated, lice are not a reason to exclude a child from school.
- Haven't had a fever for 24 hours and they have not taken fever-reducing medicine during that time.

Children may also avoid school due to anxiety (symptoms may include decreased appetite, feeling tired, stomachache, headache etc). If you are worried that your child may be suffering from anxiety, talk with your teacher, the health specialist, counselor or other school staff to discuss the challenge and identify what can help your child stay in school.

If your child has a compromised immune system or is at high risk for complications from common illnesses, please talk to your school (health specialist) about developing a plan with you and your child's health-care provider to keep your child healthy and safe while attending school.

Did You RSVP To Your Child's Teacher for Parents/Guardians Back-To-School Night?

by Nellie Ríos-Parra

Teachers are looking forward to meeting with you on Thursday, September 14th and showing you what your child has been working on during school hours since school started. You will get to experience first hand what your child sees, does, and hears in class.

If you can prepare a note about your child and give it to the teacher, it will help the teacher better understand and support your child. Be ready to share if you are available to volunteer before, during or after school. The Parents/Guardians Back-To-School Night is about getting to know your child's teacher and learning about the curriculum, daily schedule, and goals for the year. Refrain from asking questions about your child. The evening is meant to help you get acquainted with your child's teacher and begin to develop a partnership that will ensure your child meets developmental milestones.

UPCOMING EVENTS.

Thursday, September 14, 5:45-6:30 PM - Parents/Guardians Back to School Night in your child's classroom. Let the teacher know if you will be able to attend. The event will start promptly at 5:45 PM and is ONLY for adults. No childcare will be provided.
