Prospect Hall: Cast of characters for 1985-1986.

Dedication

The senior class of St. John's at Prospect Hall would like to dedicate the 1986 REFLECTIONS to a member of the faculty who has been with our class since the ninth grade. His lectures about Mr. X and Mr. O will never be forgotten. When our class was at its lowest in the tenth grade, it was he who took the time to talk to each individual in our class to pep us up. His history class and basketball coaching have caused us many headaches, but we have learned to appreciate him because he has taught us how to cope with ten-certainly been a bearer of good news as when his unexpected wedding plans were announced.

Even though at times he portrays an image of being a really "tough" guy, he is very kind. Deep down, when you need him, he is there and he does listen.

Therefore, the members of the class of 1986 dedicate this year's REFLECTIONS to our Dean of Discipline, teacher, coach, and friend — Mr. Ed Hoffman.

sions and problems. He has been the bearer of bad news as the Dean of Discipline, dealing with detentions and Saturday suspensions. On the other hand he has

Opening . . . Take Two

It was May 27, and a group of Saint John's at Prospect Hall seniors approached the old white mansion on the hill. This would be one of the last times their car would roll down Butterfly Lane and around the mammoth potholes in the back parking lot. In a few days they would graduate, and their four years at Prospect Hall would become a memory. Now was the time to remember the past year, "to take two . . ."

It all started the first week of September. The freshmen came hesitant but curious. They were taught to respect the seniors, who initiated them into the school community during Freshman Welcome. Part of learning respect for the Class of 1986 was taught by Father Ron who had the freshmen kneel to the seniors whenever they misbehaved or disrupted his class. The senior class had an opportunity to strut their stuff in New York on Columbus Day Weekend. Oh, what fun they had in Room 412.

The sophomore and junior classes were not forgotten. Both classes welcomed new students, old friends, a fresh start, and new classes. Many juniors and some sophomores started the year with drivers' licenses as they took to the roads.

On a whole the entire school was together in everything they did this past 1985-1986 school year, from pep rally after pep rally, to Homecoming, to struggling through mid-terms and finals. It will be sad to see our seniors leave Prospect, but now is the time to look to the future and to remember the past. Take two . . .

Take . . . Memories . . .

The Senior Class

Class officers: Laura Kincaid — Pres., Courtney Weller — Sec., Michelle Solano — Vice-Pres., Yvette Menconeri — Rep., Joe Jurgena — Rep., Crosby Wood — Rep., Ronnie Rickert — Treas.

Seniors, finally! It took a long, hard time to arrive at where we are now. Looking over the past four years at Prospect brings laughter, tears, and memories.

In our freshman year, we experienced Mrs. Rodger's macaroni, Mr. X and Mr. O, Mr. Farrell's guidance class, and the entire school going to see GHANDI. At first, it was difficult being a freshman, but we survived and went on to our sophomore year. Ohhh, what fun we had in Dr. Darnell's biology class. From flying freeze-dried frogs to his "lectures," we made it through biology and that awkward year and moved on up the ladder to junior year. Eleventh grade was perhaps our most carefree year. The junior retreat made us realize just how unique and close a class we really were. Retreat was a time to "spill one's guts" and enjoy the "great" food. Remember the pillow fights? Ring Day Weekend will never be forgotten: all the "food" we had, the bonfires, the boardwalk, the 6 A.M. blender wake-up, the sunburns, rushing to the hospital, C.C.s, and the excitement of just being together. That was last year.

Our final year — our senior year. It started off great. We got our privileges and hosted the second annual Freshman Welcome. "Friday the 13th — the Final Chapter" is what we called it. It was a crazy night. Dragging the ninth graders through eggs, spaghetti, shaving and whipped cream, pies, water, honking horns, and flour was interesting to say the least. Our weekend in New York City was AWESOME! Upon arriving, everyone asked, "Where's the I.D. place?" After attending Mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral, we painted the town till dawn. We managed to get some shopping done; Macy's was only ten blocks away. Riding the subway TO Chinatown was a piece of cake; getting BACK was the hard part. Some got lost on the subway and others walked seventy blocks back, stopping in Little Italy and at The Empire State Building on the way. What a surprise the maid found in the closet after we left. That weekend was another never to be forgotten.

Being a senior is hectic. Seniors have philosophy to get through, college applications to get off, grades to be kept up, and "senioritis" to be avoided. Finally, we have our graduation. It'll be sad, but we've been waiting for this moment since ninth grade. We have a long way to go in life, and when we look back on our high school days we will be able to say we made it through the four years together. For most seniors it will be difficult to leave Prospect, but we'll have this yearbook to reflect upon. "Just think," as one senior girl would say, "this will be the last time we will receive a yearbook in high school." We will go our separate ways in life and become the best that we can. Our friendships and our memories, may they last forever!

The Junior Class

While pondering the question of life, Jeff Buzzoni — Vice-pres., Becky Kanis — Sec., Conny Vargas — Treas., Madeline O'Connell — Pres., Julie Fitch and Brent Hilton — Reps., sit on the front steps.

Take The Class Of 1987

Junior class' spirit took on a new light this year. They busily prepared for the 1986 Junior-Senior Prom with their spirit showing through in everything from selling drinks at a haunted house in Poolesville to sponsoring a parking lot at the Fair to participating enthusiastically in the pep rally. The pep rally was a fantastic example of their Viking spirit as they wore chemistry goggles, threw streamers, and blew horns.

The junior class have been united in everything: fundraising, chemistry, picking out class rings, and especially the junior retreat. The junior retreat drew the class closer together. In addition to getting to know each other better as well as themselves and God, they learned new jokes, had fun with the "moo" test, and practiced how to sleep on floors.

The class of '87 also took a serious turn this year as they got ready to take the SAT's, selecting colleges, sacrificed their Saturdays to watch BRIDESHEAD REVISITED, and gave United States history paramount importance in their busy and often hectic schedules. As the year ended, the juniors took to the road for their final year, hand in hand.

The Sophomore Class

Class Officers: Christy Kanis — Sec., Nima Hendi — Treas., Stephanie Latkovski — Rep., David Hunter — Vice-Pres., Jerome Crewe — Pres., and Bill Sohm — Rep.

Being a sophomore was like being the "middleman"; so felt many of the sophomores who were no longer the "low-life" at Prospect Hall. One sophomore explained, "It was like being halfway there, being looked up to by freshmen and down on by juniors and seniors."

The sophomore class this year was one of the most spirited classes in the school. Already having won two pep rallies, the sophomore class earned a name as an "enthusiastic and spirited" class. One of the new students felt that "everyone is nice, and there were not really any cliques." Other sophomores said that their class was "swell."

Maggie grins as she says, "Hey Tina, that's Nacho cheese!" Tina responds, "Yes, it is!"

"Look everybody, isn't Lori pretty?"

There were many fads started in the sophomore class such as long johns under the girls' skirts and splashes of color under the guys' oxford shirts. Another clothing article seen all over the class and school was polyester. One sophomore felt that "polyester sort of grew on you."

Being a freshman was a new and exciting experience. The year began with Freshman Welcome, an evening of antics sponsored by the seniors to initiate the ninth graders into the cast. It was a good time for everyone, seniors and freshmen alike. Then came their retreat, a chance for the freshmen to open up, to become a closer class, and to develop friendships. After the retreat, there were Halloween and dressing up and the pep rally where the freshmen came in fourth. There were also Homecoming and other dances that afforded the newcomers a chance to meet more exciting people. And finally, the year ended with exams and Field Day. The freshmen were now more than just a group of kids; they were a part of the Prospect Hall family.

Faculty . . . Take Two Aspirin

"Where's the aspirin?" is the familiar cry around the Religious Studies Center at the end of the week. After a week of detentions, meetings, excuses, and missed homework assignments, the teachers are ready for the weekend. As students have their hangouts, teachers have theirs: the Religious Studies Center! Yet, there is a lot more to teaching at Prospect Hall than the Religious Studies Center. A great deal of hard work goes into teaching: Monday morning classes, grading, ordering, preparing, copying, and dittoeing.

Our faculty definitely loves to teach. One teacher, when asked why she likes teaching, responded that she enjoys the teens here and have found they are "unique, dynamic, unpredictable, fun, challenging, sensitive, zany, and trusting." The teachers here at Prospect have taken to teaching, and it shows! From Mrs. McNaughton to Father Ron, our faculty is truly dedicated in making this a topnotch school, one of the best in Maryland.

Clubs: Take To Variety

A wide variety of club activity is available to students at Prospect Hall, involving a large portion of the school. Most tastes were satisfied this year — athletic, scientific, political, journalistic, technical, cultural, and "wanderlust." Through hectic schedules and conflicting meetings, plans were made, movies were watched, and candy was sold as extracurricular life went on. The whole school became involved in activities like the paper airplane contest, the Reese's Cups sale, and student council dances.

All of these clubs allowed students to enhance their social life, to get to know other students better, and to learn about academic and nonacademic subjects. In Prospect Hall clubs, fun and learning go hand-in-hand.

Take To The Roads

Heading down the driveway and out the gates, Jerome's and Andy's shouts are heard over the pounding feet and quickening breaths. While Bill's and Shawn's laughter bounces off the surrounding trees and barns, Pam starts her clock ticking, and her eyes take on a new seriousness in putting one foot in front of another. Jenny follows with her pink Nikes clicking off the miles.

Today the group is lucky; they take to the roads around Prospect unlike other days when Coach Hoffman piles them into his truck not stopping until he says "bye-bye" seven miles later.

Coach Ed Hoffman feels that this season has been a learning experience for the team: "We had a very young squad with only one senior and one junior. I thought the team did very well. In particular, I thought Jenny Schuchter had an excellent season setting a number of course and school records."

hard work every week over these last two seasons. This hard work began to pay off as the various teams began competing on the court and field. There were well-deserved victories and painful defeats, but spirit was never lacking in any sport; spirit only grew stronger. We added many new coaches and players to our athletic program, giving our teams renewed spirit and fresh talent. This past fall and winter sport season can be characterized by its tremendous growth and spirit.

New and imported: Cormac O'Donoghue combines speed and skill to aid our team late in the season.

"Take 10 quick laps around the field," ordered Coach Witzel. It was a typical August practice for a team which hasn't had much success in previous seasons. The 1985 season record may not have been the best, but the team was much improved from the 1984 season. With the first win ever against St. James, this team had the ability to be very competitive. The team was young but talented with a lot of personality on its side. The coaches Mr. Eric Witzel and Mr. Tim Moore were very optimistic and positive. There was a lot of team spirit with characters like Mark "Fred" McGreevy, Danny Graham, and Jeff Buzzoni. A lot of talent was added with the play of Becky Kanis, Cormac O'Donoghue and Brice Hancock.

Chris Latkovski and Danny Graham had successful years as they were 5th and 6th in area scoring, respectively. The team outlook for next year looks good as a majority of strong players like John Scheck, Andy Carey, Zach Lester and Steve Wise will return. The team will keep active in preparing for next season as they play indoor soccer. All in all, the soccer team that Prospect Hall sported was a successful one.

Take To The Hoop

Improving on last year's 13-10 season, the boys' varsity basketball team established itself as one of the best teams in the county by becoming a consistent winner. This year's accomplishments included a second place finish at the Laker Tournament in Baltimore and some well deserved recognition from the press. More winning seasons are sure to follow under Coach Ed Hoffman who intends to keep anything but zeroes in the win column.

Take To The Courts

While this year's varsity team's record may just be okay, the players had a great time, and there are a great many memories. Team members recall such expressions as "Who is spot today? Where's the pool? Are there any guys? Is this basketball or football? How many pizzas, Michelle? Two large and a small!"

Certain comments may be associated with a particular individual on the team: Can you tell?; It went in, Carolyn!; Where's Madeline?; Bean pole Julie; Tirene, where are you suppose to be?; Speedy Ann; Becky the pro; Try not to foul out in the first quarter, Jenny; Where's Kim?; Twelve point Borowski.

The entire team would like to give a special thanks to Coaches Buffo and Martin for all their support, help, and stamina in putting up with them. Also, team members will sorely miss the departing seniors.

Take To The Court

This year's boys' JV basketball team had a successful season overall, led by coach Ernie Bowens. A drastic improvement from last year was seen, largely due to the hard work put in by the team. Although each player did his share, there were several that stood out, including David Hunter, David Mesko, Chris Latkovski, and Ken Ober. A help to the starters was the addition of fresh talent from the bench. As a result of this successful season, an even better squad can be expected next year.

Several players played JV as well as varsity basketball. Shown here are Jerome Crewe, David Hunter, and Kevin Brown.

Kevin Brown, David Mesko, and Coach Bowens closely observe a JV game.

Take To The Court

The JV girls' basketball team: Kim Thompson and Madeline O'Connell — co-captains, Stephanie Latkovski, Kathleen Finerty, Carrie Nuzam, Christy Kanis, Marina Schucter, Elizabeth McNally, Lori Petronchak, Pam Walsh, Eileen McNally, and Helena Pieklo.

This year's season for the girls' JV basketball team proved to be a successful one with a record of five wins and six losses. The improvement of each individual player contributed to the progress of the team as a whole. Leading the team were three outstanding players, each talented in her own area: Kim Thompson, Madeline O'Connell, and Marina Schuchter.

The girls' practices ran from 4:30 until 6:00 in the evenings, notable for running suicides and sprints and for the ever-popular backboard drill. The games were both average and memorable with the most outstanding being the physically rough game against Middletown. Post-game pizza and watching the varsity games are among other memories of the season. When asked how they remembered their "good times," the girls came up with a variety of quotes: "Remember Snickey!"; "Kill 41, she's a cow!"; "We're out for blood!"; and "At least our lockers be stuck to de wall!"

Angie Hoffacker gets ready to "hit it".

"Vikings are ready so you beware".

"I forgot my bloomers, what do I do guys? Oh no, does anyone have white socks?" This sort of dialogue may be heard as the cheerleaders get ready to support their teams. Their job is definitely not the easiest, especially when they are at away games and the opposing fans completely turn their backs or, worse yet, pretend to have a gun and shoot the girls. Cheerleaders must practice long and hard hours before they are able to perform. During practice a question that is frequently heard, "Is Mary at 7-11 again?" Once everyone finally arrives at 3:10, cheers can be heard across the campus. Cheerleaders not only support the school at athletic events, but also organize fund raisers and pep rallies. Most importantly, cheerleaders keep spirit raised every day.

Smile guys, you finally did it!

Take Two: The Continuation

Five . . . Four . . . Three . . . Two . . . One. School is out! Friday, the seniors are graduating. A few seniors stopped at their old lockers to take down the last posters, the last picture. They would never attend classes here again. After Friday, they would be on their own, but they will never forget the memories they had at good old P.H. As they get into their cars and drive out of the gate one last time, one last glance at the old white mansion is given . . . now is the time to take two, to remember.
