October Newsletter

West Tisbury School Library

Goodbye, October | Hello, November!

What We Learned

In October, our students explored the changing seasons through a variety of read-alouds and activities. We enjoyed books such as Fletcher and the Falling Leaves by Julia Rawlinson, Acorn Was a Little Wild by Jen Arena, and The Very Last Leaf by Stef Wade. We learned about the importance of intellectual freedom during Banned Books Week. We also continued our celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month by learning about the Recycled Orchestra of Paraguay and exploring the lives and artwork of talented Hispanic artists, including Frida Kahlo, Diego Rivera, and Rafael López.

Our book fair was a big success! Thanks to everyone who helped support our library program!

Book Spotlight

Millie Fleur's Poison Garden
by Christy Mandin

Why should every garden be the same? (Spoiler: it shouldn't!) When Millie moves to a new town, the townsfolk are afraid of her garden, demanding that she change it to fit in. Millie teaches them to embrace uniqueness in this charming tale inspired by the real-life poison garden of Alnwick Castle in England.
