Superintendent's Message

As the winter approaches, we close the book on an exciting and engaging fall here. Our students have been working hard, building skills and making decisions about their futures. With the support of faculty, staff, parents and guardians, our administration, school board and learning community, so much is possible.

We remain focused on four critical questions:

What do we want students to know?

How will we know they have learned it?

What do we do when they have not learned it yet?

What do we do when they know it already?

We have much for which to be thankful. Enjoy the break!
