Good morning,

I am writing to you because I was cc'd on numerous emails sent to the committee from parents in response to the announcement of my departure. While I am truly overwhelmed by the outpouring of support and incredibly grateful for their kind words, I want to be fully transparent in stating that I have not shared any information with parents regarding the circumstances of my departure beyond what was formally communicated in my official letter. Only a small number of individuals are aware of the reasoning behind my decision, and that information has not been shared beyond those appropriate and necessary conversations.

Out of respect for the process, the district, and the integrity of our school community, I will be responding to these messages only with heartfelt thanks and reflections on my interactions with their children. I have not and will not be engaging in any further discussion regarding the matter.

I remain committed to supporting a smooth and professional transition and will continue to uphold the values and responsibilities of my position throughout this time.

Today I am away on a vacation day to celebrate a very special milestone, my mother-in-law's 100th birthday. I will return on Monday and am available via email if needed.

Thank you for your continued support and understanding.

Cindy
