Spring Break Camps: April 6-10

Elephant & Piggie & Pigeon (K-2nd)

Dive into the stories and settings of several "Elephant & Piggie" and "Pigeon" books by using music, dance, art and so much more. Students will meet the characters and face the conflicts of each story. In this week-long camp, we will write a script, learn our lines, rehearse our staging, add costumes and props, and finally present our play to family and friends on the last day.

Trouble in StoryBook Land (3rd-8th)

In this week-long production camp, we'll take a show from the page to the stage. Join us to find out who's monkeying around with all the happy endings? And why don't the Dancing Princesses want to boogie til dawn? Jack-of-all Trades is the only one who can save the day before the Evil Queen and her crooked cohorts change the stories forever. Camp will conclude with a performance for friends and family on Friday afternoon.

Mini YAPI (6th-12th)

Mini YAPI is a focused acting course for students who want to delve into serious theater training. Classes this week include Dance, Auditions, Musical Theater, Scene Study, Shakespeare, Improv, and Voices. The week will culminate with an informal presentation for students to showcase their new skills for family and friends.

About Studio East:

Studio East Training for the Performing Arts was founded in 1992 to provide theater arts education for young people on the Eastside. It was founded on the belief that through the performing arts children can build confidence, and acquire leadership and teamwork skills while learning discipline, dedication and responsibility. Starting with one theater program for teens, Studio East has come one of the largest children's theater training programs in the Seattle area. Studio East is the home of StoryBook Theater, an adult professional touring troupe that introduces young children to live theater at venues throughout the Puget Sound area. Today, Studio East serves over 60,000 people annually with a comprehensive program of drama classes, theater arts camps, mainstage productions and live performances for children ages 4 through 19.
