Assistant principal had met with Logan Toone and had some numbers regarding how the kids had done on Dibels in relation to the extra programs. MOY scores for the whole school were 13% (of one standard deviation) down from the beginning of the year. The kids who participated in Americorp tutoring were 3% higher than at the beginning of the year. These were what they described as the yellow kids (ones who were right around the benchmark goal). The teacher assistant program kids were actually lower at middle of year than the school as a whole. The third program was the teacher led interventions. The kids in this group were significantly worse at mid year than at the beginning. These were the red kids. They agreed that this program needed to be improved.

Next meeting we should have math and science data.

Meeting adjourned 8:30
