Potential Privacy Breach

Dear Southridge Community,

As you should have read yesterday through direct email communication from Southridge School, we have learned of an email breach that may have resulted in your personal information being accessed without authorization.

I want to take this opportunity to assure our entire school community that we share your concerns regarding this incident, and that we are working diligently to mitigate any risk of future similar situations. Since learning of the breach, the School's administrative team has been working with a third-party forensics organization who specializes in these types of cyber-breaches. They are supporting our efforts to ensure our systems and business processes are secure going forward. This work will be ongoing until such time that we feel we have addressed the vulnerabilities in our systems, and found solutions to possible future exposures of this type.

In the email communication you received yesterday, you would have been provided with a contact name and number for an individual at Southridge who can address any questions you may have. If you feel the need to do so, please take the time to connect with these individuals so they can alleviate any remaining concerns that may not have been addressed in our email yesterday.

The School sincerely regrets this incident and apologizes for the frustration and inconvenience it may have caused you.

Inquire, Act, Reflect - Making a Difference

“Principled action, as both a strategy and an outcome, represents the IB’s commitment to teaching and learning through practical, real-world experience...Action involves learning by doing, enhancing learning about self and others. Action...may involve service learning, advocacy and educating one’s self and others.” (MYP from Principles into Practice, p. 11)

The MYP Action Cycle consists of 3 phases: inquiry, action and reflection. These phases help to guide learners as they pursue conceptual understanding and knowledge construction. The phases are not linear, as learners revisit inquiry, action and reflection throughout the learning process as they apply different approaches to learning in the construction of meaning. Action is an important part of the International Baccalaureate philosophy and curricular framework, as it is no longer enough to simply consume knowledge – today’s learners must understand that they can do something with their knowledge to impact their own learning, as well as how they engage with others, whether it be within the school community or by reaching out into their local community or wider world. This is the basis for education that makes a difference, and cultivates the growth of international mindedness, the heart of the IB program model.

Last Friday, our Grade 7 students shared the outcomes of their Making a Difference projects with our community. The presentations that were shared on Friday were the culmination of sustained inquiry, action and reflection. There were quite a variety of issues explored, ranging from declining bee populations, homelessness, understanding Down’s Syndrome, addiction, the Syrian refugee crisis, women’s rights, child slavery, littering, waste disposal, weapons, to the opioid drug crisis (and that’s just to name a few!) The presentations involved students sharing factual knowledge about their chosen issue, as well as action they took to make a difference (e.g. raising awareness, visiting local organizations to deepen understanding, and in some cases, fundraising for local organizations).

Throughout the process, students reflected on their learning in order to make informed choices about how best to pursue meaningful action. I am always amazed at how young children, in this case, 12 and 13-year old’s, can create a plan and follow through with it. Our Grade 7 students did an amazing job synthesizing their learning and paying that forward into age-appropriate action. Having the opportunity to share their learning with an authentic audience of peers and adults is an important aspect of this kind of learning. As I visited different projects and spoke with the students, I was so impressed with their ability to not only share information, but to also articulate their reflections on how their inquiry and action has impacted them. Their passion for their chosen issues was highly evident.

Thank you to Ms. McNeil and Dr. Besspflug for guiding the students along this journey. And to our Grade 7 students – thank you for using your voices to make change in your world. Not only did I feel more knowledgeable after seeing your presentations, I also felt inspired and empowered.

Sincerely,

Tanya de Hoog

After School & Sports Practice Pick-Up – Please, Be on Time!

Leaving your child unattended in the Great Hall after school puts your child's safety in jeopardy and places unfair expectations on faculty and staff who are fulfilling other responsibilities during these times. Siblings of students who are participating on teams MUST be picked up at regular dismissal time (no later than 3:20 pm). It is also important that students who are attending team practices are picked up promptly at the end of their practices. Expecting teachers to wait with your child, sometimes until after 5 pm, is unreasonable and unacceptable. All practices end by 4:15 pm and students need to be picked up on time.

Students and Cell Phones in the Junior School

While many students come to school with a cell phone, cell phones are not a component of our learning program. If your child is bringing a cell phone to school, please ensure that they are turning the cell phone off before they enter the building. At no point during the school day should a student be using their cell phone. Parents should not be texting or contacting students during the school day, and likewise, students should not be texting or contacting parents using their cell phones. If you need to contact your child, please call the Junior School Reception (604-535-5056) and we will ensure your message is delivered. A phone is also available for student-use should a student need to call a parent during the school day. The only time students are permitted to use their cell phones is once they have left the Junior School building after school. Students who are caught using their cell phones during the school day will have them removed for the remainder of the day. Please help us enforce these expectations by adhering to the School's guidelines.

Nut Aware Reminder

At this time of the year, lots of wonderful appreciation treats trickle into the Junior School staff room (and they are joyfully received!). As a nut aware school, we also need to keep our staff room free of nuts and nut products. If you are dropping off a treat, please ensure that they don't contain nuts or nut products. Thank you for helping to keep all spaces in our Junior School Nut Aware.

Junior School Fire Alarm – Friday, May 12

As you may have heard from your son or daughter, the fire alarm sounded in the Junior School at approximately 12:35 pm on Friday, May 12 and it was not a scheduled drill. Students, faculty, staff and parent volunteers did an excellent job evacuating the building and other spaces, and assembled at our safe spot on the Turf Field. Our local Fire Department was on-site in minutes to assess the situation and clear the building for re-entry. While the incident was minor, it was important to ensure that everything was safe for students before we re-entered the building. It was determined that a Cup of Noodles contained in a Styrofoam cup had been put in the Primary Kitchen microwave for heating. Styrofoam is not supposed to be heated in the microwave, and the resulting smoke tripped our fire alarm. I want to congratulate everyone for their quick response – everyone's safety was first and foremost and students were delighted to return to their afternoon classes.

Victoria Day Long Weekend and Late Arrival, Monday, May 22 and Tuesday, May 23

Monday, May 22 is Victoria Day and school will be closed for this Statutory Holiday. Classes will resume with a late start on Tuesday, May 23 at 10:25 am. Please do not bring students any earlier than 10:10 am, as all faculty and staff are in meetings and no supervision is provided.

PYP Exhibition Extraordinaire

Living in the present is challenging in today's fast-paced world. In fact, in my role as PYP Coordinator, I rarely operate in the present. I schedule a multitude of future meetings, arrange for upcoming exciting professional development for my colleagues, plan approaching and distant school events, explore new directions and possibilities for our faculty, and constantly reflect on student and staffing needs. The Exhibition process is a lot like this for students. They have always been aware that late in the school year they will present their learning about issues of their choice. Step by step, over the last three months, they have steadily prepared for that time. Today and tomorrow, that "day" is here with today's afternoon presentations and tomorrow's important evening event.

Come and see just how amazing our Grade 4 learners are! They show enthusiasm for inquiry, exhibit functional skills in research and communication, form deep questions and subsequent opinions, and enjoy sharing everything they come to understand about the world around them. It is truly impressive that they achieve what they do in a relatively short time and at such a young age! During the Exhibition process they identified issues of relevance, investigated via print, websites, and experts, engaged in experiential learning, and expressed their ideas artistically and verbally. They can plan, draw, create, sing, write and most importantly, inspire, freely and openly. With the fine direction of their dedicated, child-centred homeroom teachers and supportive mentors, these young learners explored real issues, considered multiple perspectives, imagined and built prototypes for solutions, and expressed themselves artistically. Now, they speak directly from their hearts, and take personal action to support their causes. That is living in the present and even in the future when they will be even more powerful leaders!

On behalf of my Southridge PYP colleagues, I invite you to come to our evening presentation tomorrow evening, May 18th, from 5:30 pm to 7:00 pm in the Junior School Great Hall, so you can witness this important culmination of our International Baccalaureate's Primary Years Programme. Listen to the knowledge our Grade 4 students have gained, appreciate the conceptual understanding and attitudes they already display, acknowledge the vast array of their growing skills and pay attention to what actions you might also choose to take if we really are going to address the world's challenging issues.

To the Grade 4 students, I extend my warmest congratulations to all of you in successfully completing the IB Primary Years Programme. We value your individual personalities and talents, and enjoy your collaborative nature and deep engagement. Best wishes to you as you soon begin the Middle Years Programme. May you maintain your level of compassion, commitment, and innovation, so that you will always make a difference in our world today and tomorrow.

The Student Code of Ethics: Integrity

Last week, I referenced the Senior School Student Code of Ethics, written by students that would serve to guide behaviour and highlight the values that students felt were important in forming a strong and positive character. The process, developed in conjunction with the Institute of Global Ethics, involved students discussing the values which they believed an ethical person should have. Integrity is one of the terms they added to the code, and I am glad that they did.

The Merriam-Webster Dictionary defines integrity as 1) firm adherence to a code of especially moral or artistic values; incorruptibility; 2) an unimpaired condition; soundness; 3) the quality or state of being complete or undivided. When someone is incorruptible, unimpaired, and undivided, it means that they will not waver when faced with peer pressure, or with the temptation to steal or to cheat. Southridge students defined this in the Code of Ethics as being ‘true to your word’. I often define integrity as consistently choosing to do the right thing, even when nobody's watching.

University research professor, author and renowned public speaker, Brené Brown, defines integrity this way: “Integrity is choosing courage over comfort; choosing what is right over what is fun, fast, or easy; and choosing to practice our values rather than simply professing them.” I really like her definition.

I used to have a problem, as a kid, for taking the fast and easy way out. In Grade 1, my teacher Mrs. Muttitt (who was, by the way, my favourite teacher) told the class that she had a special surprise for the first student to finish reading the story we were assigned (questionable teaching practice there, Mrs. Muttitt). I raced through the story and was the first up at her desk in record time. Suspicious, she asked me a few questions about what I had read and of course, I couldn't answer any of them. Dejected and embarrassed, I went back to my seat – snickers from other students following me – knowing that the special surprise (a pencil that had a big cowboy hat for an eraser) would go to someone else.

Had Mrs. Muttitt given me that pencil, I would not have deserved it – I doubt I would have enjoyed it. When we gain things through dishonest means it never quite feels right. Integrity is that voice inside of us that says, is it worth it? Is that cowboy hat eraser worth my integrity? Tough question for a 7 year-old, perhaps, but students have to face much more serious decisions in high school and university than I did in Grade 1, issues like: “I'm really swamped right now and could save myself a lot of work if I just went online and bought that essay;” or, “If the three of us were to split up these 10 questions and share our answers, we'd only have to do a third of the work;” or, “It's only a short drive home and I only had a few beers. Taxis are way too expensive.”

I love that our own students saw the need to include such a powerful word as integrity in their Student Code of Ethics. More than straight-A's, athletic championships or admission into the best university programs, it is a quality I hope every Southridge graduate leaves with.

Have a great week!

TREK – Teens Running for Every Kid

On Friday, May 19th, Senior School students will participate in Southridge's twelfth annual TREK (Teens Running for Every Kid) by walking or running 5 kilometers in our neighbourhood. 100% of the funds raised from this event will go directly towards Project Somos, a non-profit organization that works to build a Children's Village model in Guatemala. In doing so, the organization is able to create a better future for underprivileged children and their families. Several students attended a service trip to the village this past Spring Break, and have shared the special memories and bonds created from this unforgettable experience at our last full school assembly.

Registration for the event will be open during lunch from Wednesday May 10th to Thursday May 18th. To register, students must fill out a consent form, indicating their chosen method of payment - by account or by cash. Students will then receive a TREK t-shirt and raffle tickets for prizes at the end of this awesome event! Supervision in the library will be available for those unable to participate. Thank you in advance for your support!

Laptop Warranty Repairs

Does your laptop need some 'TLC'? Did something happen to it that requires a visit to Mr. Latta's office but you've been putting it off?

Every year we must get all warranty repairs on laptops done prior to exams. This year, we are asking that all warranty repairs be done prior to May 31st. Please bring your laptops to Mr. Latta's office (Room 216) and he will be able to assist you with your repairs.

If you do not bring your laptop in for repairs prior to May 31st, any required warranty work will be done in September; thus, we highly encourage you to come in so that next year you can start the year with a device that looks like it's back to new!
