Dear Friends,

Fairfield Prep is a learning, discerning community. We all know that high school boys are high energy, abounding in enthusiasm and curiosity. You may be surprised to see the varied ways this dynamism gets channeled in positive ways that lead to learning and service. These pages display academic initiatives that not only develop the whole person, but are also a lot of fun. It is wonderful watching students discover their talents and passions in unexpected ways. The real joy is to then see them transform their gifts into service to others.

This summer, I traveled to Jamaica on Prep's annual immersion trip with 12 students and Sarah Stanley, our Director of Christian Service. We shared a powerful experience at the Mustard Seed orphanage in Montego Bay. It was so impressive seeing how quickly our young men, juniors and seniors, adapted and responded to new situations in a different cultural context. Every day, we > learned so much from the children and their caregivers. They inspired us with their faith, hope, and love. Indeed, we saw true holiness in action. Every evening during our faith sharing, we reflected on how the day's events were forming us and how God was calling each of us to greater service.

Fairfield Prep is special because of our Jesuit tradition of "Finding God in all things." It is a reminder that the love of our Creator can be found in every friendship, classroom, and cocurricular. If we are open to growth, God can even be found in the cockpit of a flight simulator! Hopefully, you too will find a glimpse of the Divine in the pages that follow.

Ad Majorem Dei Gloriam!

LETTER FROM THE PRINCIPAL

Dear Prep Community,

It is with great enthusiasm that my family and I join the Prep community for the 2018-2019 academic year. It is an honor to be a part of a school with such a rich history and tradition. As a young man, I was fortunate to have had the experience of a Jesuit education, and that opportunity ultimately inspired my vocation to teach. It is an awesome opportunity to be able to educate and form intellectually competent and compassionate young men in the Ignatian tradition. My goal as an educator has always been to afford students the very best experiences academically, spiritually and athletically. I am most excited about making the student experience at Prep memorable, and it will be a privilege to work alongside our exceptional faculty in achieving that goal.

My interactions with members of the faculty, students, parents and alumni have conveyed Prep's pride and given me a great sense as to how special this school family is. The enthusiasm is contagious, and our sincere goal is to build upon the successes of the past. Our Jesuit education challenges us to be leaders in our school and to serve others. My expectation of all the students is that they leave their very positive mark on Prep. The specific expectation of the seniors as leaders is to make this, their final year at Prep, their very best.

I look forward to collaborating with everyone as we work to make the new academic year great and to meeting many more of you in the fall.

Go Prep!

Hands-On Learning

he energy in the classroom was palpable. During a chilly Saturday morning in January, a group of Prep students zipped around a Xavier Hall science lab, crunching numbers on a computer, listening to reports over a two-way radio and engaging in intense discussions in front of a topographical map of Montana projected onto a wall. The situation was dire. A fighter pilot went down in a mountain region, and these Prep students were working diligently to locate the crash site.

This whole scenario was, of course, a simulation — one meant to encourage leadership and team building, and streamlined from a similar simulation used by companies like GE and Bigelow. It was the first major exercise in Prep's after-school Engineering & Aviation program, a 30-hour STEM course created and administered by Orange-based company Milestone C in which Prep students learned how to design, construct and fly their own drones.

"That (simulation) taught us that you need to communicate with others to get stuff done... and that you need to overcome challenges and learn to adapt on the fly," said Henry Houghton '19, one of the program participants who wants to study engineering in college.

Offered for the first time at Prep during the 2017-18 school year, the program was facilitated by aerospace and engineer professionals who seek to apply the knowledge taught in STEM courses — science, technology, engineering and math — to real world situations, said Cemocan "Gemo" Yesil, Milestone co-founder and CEO.

"The whole point in what we do is not to supplement the STEM education," Yesil said. "But to give (the students) real world context for STEM." The program — which both Yesil and co-founder David Conelias administered themselves — begins with the team-building simulation, moving after that into a small flight school before heading into the main project: the drone construction. The Prep students worked in teams of five or six, with each student assuming a necessary role similar to engineering projects at real world aviation companies, Yesil said. Some of the roles included engineers, program leaders and pilots, and the students were tasked with making their own objectives and encouraged to solve problems on their own.

"We stay out of the way as much as we humanly can," Yesil said. "We only step in and help if they are about to hurt themselves."

The construction process included assembling the drone, wiring the motors and making sure the more complex parts of the device — the computer board and power distributor — were in place, said Connor Nitka '19, who acted as chief engineer on his team and also wants to focus on engineering in college.

"The majority of the program for me was working on the drone, which was a lot of fun," Nitka said. "A lot of it was figuring it out on our own." Nitka said his group got along well. Some of the students he didn't know ended up being friends during the process, he said.

The students were also allowed to fail an aspect of the course that Yesil said is very important in the engineering field. He said the students are given a large portion of data, and they have to sort their way through it to figure out what's important to them. "The more hands-off you are in the project-based classes, the more hands-on the students will be," Yesil said.

Houghton, who acted as the chief engineer on his team of six, said his biggest takeaway from the program was learning how to work with others and how to diagnose a challenge in a number of ways. He said each member of his team was able to contribute a part to the project, and that he enjoyed the hands-on aspect of the program the most.

"Overall, the Milestone C program is the first thing that I've done at Prep that felt like real life," Houghton said. "When you make the wrong choice, you mess up and you need to deal with the consequences."

Math Team Takes 3rd in State

The Fairfield Prep Math Team won 3rd place in the state competition held at Bristol Eastern School. They also qualified for and competed in the Regional Competition in Canton, Massachusetts, in April.

The Math Team participated in the Fairfield County Math League, competing against 26 other schools. The top 13 schools advanced in the state competition where there were 40 other schools from the entire state. The state competition included three divisions: small, medium and large. In the medium division, Prep took 3rd place. Since the team finished in the top three, they qualified for the regional competition in Canton.

Dune Restoration at Stratford Point

Prep's senior elective Environmental Science class spent a day at the Stratford Point shoreline restoration project in the spring. The project is a cooperative effort involving the town of Stratford, Audubon of Connecticut, and Sacred Heart University. Students learned about environmental renewal and spent more than 100 man-hours working on dune restoration.

AP Physics Takes on Rube Goldberg

A P physics students demonstrated their knowledge of physics by designing, creating, and explaining a Rube Goldberg device. The challenge was to build a device that was capable of setting off a mousetrap through a series of self-driven interactions. Through the study of Rube Goldberg machines, students were able to evaluate the importance and usefulness of the many machines in the world around them while exploring new engineering techniques.

Reading for Others

MEET THE TEACHER CHAMPIONING EMPATHY THROUGH SPORTS STORIES

otivating young men to become critical readers who question the world around them and respect multiple perspectives is my primary goal here at Fairfield Prep. Jesuit schools encourage people to be Men and Women for Others, and I want my students to see themselves as individuals influenced by larger networks outside their own environmental bubble.

A few years ago, I began exploring the theme of empathy in each new book I taught to help my students appreciate other cultures and lifestyles. As an African American female educator—who knows what it feels like to be the only black woman in the classroom—my personal story differs vastly from those I teach, so I've had to be creative with my methods. But I quickly found a link between our experiences and literature: sports.

As a Division I track runner,

I can relate to the 95plus percent of Prep students who participate in athletics. I realized sports stories might be the way to expose Jayné Penn, English teacher, was the recipient of a 2018 Dean's Award for Student Excellence at the Graduate School of Education and Allied Professions at Fairfield University. She was also selected to present her curriculum at the NCTE (National Council of Teachers of English) conference in November. As a Division I Track athlete at Georgetown University, she grew interested in sports stories and community activism. She is looking to the potential of Young Adult Literature, with a focus on sports, to explore empathy with her students. The following story is a summary of an article Jayné wrote for YAWednesday.com titled "The Potential of Young Adult Sports Literature in Teaching Empathy at a Jesuit High School."

my students to different cultures and backgrounds, and to bridge their worlds with the worlds lived by others. Many students who identify as athletes relate positively to athletic narratives. An athletic lens, especially in relation to teaching empathy, provides one way to diversify reading experiences in the classroom. Sports stories unite their stories.

To better help them understand empathy, I designed a project for my sophomore class named The Athlete Narrative, which also explores the idea of the hero in moral conflict. Students choose one athlete who they respect but know very little about, then research and write a report on their journey, looking critically at their career and the many influences that shaped them. I wanted them to see that like the characters in the books we read, we are impacted by the communities we belong to. That is, a person is a person because of other people.

> In an effort to mix up the curriculum, I began teaching August Wilson's play Fences, which touches on relevant themes including: sports, race issues, family issues, personal growth challenges, the journey into manhood, and ethics. Fences explores the conflicts within a male protagonist, Troy Maxon, and his effect on family and friends.

In order to be most effective as a teacher, I've had to be creative in my teaching methods.

As a former baseball player in the Negro Leagues who was rejected from being integrated into Major League Baseball, Troy blocks his son Cory's opportunity to play college football. The play serves as a vehicle to dig into Troy's history and to question the choices he makes throughout the book. Troy's decisions throughout the script make it hard to like him yet learning his past helps to understand that his flaws make him the individual that he is.

Promoting sports narratives and stories that expose cultural differences and have relatable characters help my students to better engage with literature. Reading stories like Fences enables students to avoid preconceptions of people they do not know and provides a scaffold to connect students' prior knowledge with new knowledge. Using the theme of empathy has allowed my students to understand experiences different from theirs and, in turn, to see the humanity in people and not just occupations or labels. This kind of multicultural knowledge is something I hope my students appreciate not only in their high school experience but throughout their lives.

Freshman Field Day

The Prep Class of 2021 had a fun-filled day hosting their buddies from St. Raphael's in Bridgeport as part of their Christian Service curriculum for freshman year. It was a beautiful day and enjoyed by everyone. Prep is grateful to continue its partnership with St. Raphael's and their students.

Serving in Jamaica

In July a group of Prep juniors and seniors traveled to Montego Bay, Jamaica, to partner with Mustard Seed Communities, an organization that serves people living with disabilities. The immersion provided a great experience for the Prep students to form relationships and provide service to the community. Rev. Tom Simisky, S.J., led this year's trip with Director of Christian Service Sarah Stanley.

community. This year, Prep's group visited Padre Damien House (a home for people living with Hansen's disease – more commonly known as leprosy) and Semillas de Mostaza (an after-school program for children in the community). The group was warmly welcomed into many homes of families in the area for meaningful conversation about diverse topics. Rostro's program focuses strongly on building relationships and deepening the faith and commitment to issues of justice of their retreatants.

Christian Leaders in Training

The Campus Ministry office held a Christian Leadership Retreat and Workshop designed to empower our students to explore their leadership potential. Students develop key leadership skills and engage in team-building activities including a high ropes course. The group will meet during the upcoming academic year to discuss how they are putting their leadership skills into practice. Students who participate in this program are recommended by faculty and staff and are offered the opportunity to apply. At the end of the experience students wrote leadership mission statements:

"I will strive to be empathetic, compassionate, mature, assertive and adaptable; these qualities allow me to set myself apart from the pack and be a leader, not a follower."

2018 FAIRFIELD-ÜBERLINGEN FOREIGN EXCHANGE PROGRAM

Global Citizens

uring the summer of 2018, Fairfield Prep initiated a union with Überlingen High School on Lake Constance in Germany and fellow Jesuit school, St. Blasein, in the Black Forest. As a Jesuit school, Prep is interested in making connections with educators and students from a variety of school systems around the world. The current mission of the Jesuit Schools Network (JSN) involves a focus on promoting and fostering international connections by linking Jesuit schools in a variety of countries. The connection between Connecticut and Überlingen has been longstanding since 1980 when Annelies Venus (Ridgefield, CT) and Lothar Fritz (Überlingen) embarked on the initial exchange. As the last Ridgefield-Überlingen exchange happened in 2016 many involved were concerned that after 36 years of exchanges this opportunity would be lost. This is where Fairfield Prep saw an opportunity to engage its community on a global scale with students and families in Germany.

"There's so much media on how we're so different than others, but this exchange showed me how close I can be with someone on the other side of the world."

OUR IGNATION MISSION

Prep students attended classes at Überlingen and St. Blasein and saw the similarities high school students share worldwide. They toured both cities and experienced the culture firsthand. Our students have made connections with their host families that will hopefully last a lifetime. By sharing resources, experiences, challenges and ideas the schools are creating global citizens. As an integral part of our Jesuit education, Prep students learn about the importance of being 'Men for Others' locally and globally. Überlingen and Fairfield Prep are working on a combined 3-day service project with St. Blasein for 2020. "These endeavors will provide ways for our students to be aware of, connect to, and collaborate with their peers across cultures. The aim is to help each student learn with an awareness of global citizenship and social justice through the service requirement and an appreciation of the world around them; producing people of conscience, competence, compassion and commitment." (JSN)

MOUSETRAP MANIA IN

PHYSICS Physics students' top performance in the annual Mousetrap Car project finals earned them a spot in Prep's "Championship of Champions" competition to determine the best car of the year. The top performers from each of the 12 sections of Physics were invited to participate along with several "wildcard" picks at the discretion of the three Physics teachers. Winning the first ever Mousie Award for farthest traveling mousetrap car in the Championship was Richard Nolan '20 (center left).

WELLNESS FAIR On April 23, the Guidance Department presented Fairfield Prep's fourth annual Wellness Fair. Presenters from Fairfield University's School of Nursing and Counseling and Psychological Services Center, as well as representatives from the Norma Pfriem Breast Center, helped to raise awareness on crucial areas of health and wellness. Mrs. Lisa Sheehan, P'19 presented about the development of mindfulness. The fair was open to the entire community and served hundreds of Prep students as they learned in an interactive format about skin cancer, breast and testicular cancer, vaping, stress reduction, texting and driving, and the effects of drugs and alcohol.

CT SCIENCE FAIR Antonios Boudreau '21 was awarded 2nd honors for his CT Science & Engineering Fair project about "Low to zero cost water filtration using common fungi." The fair was held at Quinnipiac University from March 12-17. Its objective is to attract young people to careers in science and engineering while developing skills essential to critical thinking.

BARNUM FESTIVAL PRINCE Michael Fickes '19 was named Barnum Festival Prince for 2018. Members of the Court were chosen based on their scholastic achievement (top 20% of their class), their leadership ability, and their extracurricular activities. They also must be community spirited and must support fellow students in their academic, nonacademic, and/or social endeavors. Michael was nominated by Prep. The annual Barnum Festival is a seasonal celebration of the City of Bridgeport and its surrounding towns, dating back to 1948.

SENIORS WIN $10,000 FOR CARDINAL SHEHAN CENTER

On April 23, five seniors from Fairfield Prep participated in the first Social Justice Tournament in partnership with four other Jesuit high schools in New York City. Each school prepared a presentation on an organization the students had a partnership with and wanted to raise awareness and funds for. The students presented on why donors should support the organization. Our students selected the Cardinal Shehan Center in Bridgeport where they all volunteer for their senior year service commitment. The group won $10,000 for the Shehan Center, who will use the funds to support their after school and Saturday program which "provides a variety of growth enhancing educational and recreational activities."

INTRAMURAL COMPETITIONS The 2017-2018

Intramural season is in the books! This year, the Intramural Program introduced a new sport (Volleyball) and recorded repeat championship teams in two different sports. With hundreds of students participating in the Intramural Program throughout three seasons, the Fairfield Prep day does not end at 2:30. On McAuliffe Hill, the Quad, or in Brissette Gym, students compete for Championship t-shirts and bragging rights in Wiffle Ball, Ultimate Frisbee, Volleyball, Basketball, and Flag Football. BRICKS IN THE WALL OF enior Week turned what could have been a week of sad goodbyes into one of enjoyable unity and communal reflection upon four years of intellectual and spiritual development. This series of fun events brought us much closer together as a class of 207 young men and instilled within us a desire to remain active members of the Prep community in the years to come. Dr. Perrotta's speech at our commencement ceremony touched upon the themes of dedication, hope, and resilience. He assured us that although we were leaving Prep, we had learned a great deal about our dreams and ourselves and were prepared to take on the future with an open mind. Hearing the names of my classmates being called at commencement reminded me that, as Alexander McMullen stated in his introductory remarks, each senior truly was a "brick in the wall of brotherhood." Each name supported the one that came before and after it, culminating in a cohesive wall of unique and talented young men. As the names of my classmates reached the far corners of Alumni Hall, I knew that each graduate was about to begin a new life consisting of new experiences, friends, and family. Yet as each senior enters this stage of his life, he undoubtedly will remain a foundational component of Fairfield Prep's Class of 2018.

As time stretches its arms forward and we move further away from our time at Prep, we will remember most keenly the times of great success, strife, and satisfaction. By providing us with the opportunity to take a step back and reflect upon these moments outside the classroom with friends, Senior Week helped us recognize that our four years at Fairfield Prep had shaped us into a completely different people than the ones who entered Arrupe Hall for the first time in the fall of 2014 and enabled us to begin the social and academic transition to higher education. I greatly appreciate the events of the week for giving us the chance before commencement to unite as a class and lay the foundation for a new period of our friendships following commencement. The time we spent together during Senior Week gave us confidence that this was merely the beginning of our journeys as Prep brothers in the global community around us. This time of enjoyable reflection encouraged us to recall the importance of continuing to live according to the Jesuit teachings of cura personalis, the magis, and eloquentia perfecta and will forever remind us that Fairfield Prep molded us into young "Men for Others."

By Nick Allen '18, pictured above far left, who received the Gerard Manley Hopkins, SJ, Award for his success with a literary publication, the Biological Sciences Award, and the Medal of St. Ignatius of Loyola at the Baccalaureate Mass. He will attend Columbia University in the fall.

Words of Wisdom

Taken from the commencement address given by former Principal, Dr. Robert Perrotta, retiring after 49 years of service have been asked to impart to you words of wisdom gleaned from a 49-year career at Prep — a career surrounded by outstanding Ignatian educators and exceptional students whose competence, conscience and compassion never cease to amaze me.

However, to wax profound on Prep's virtues would make for a boring speech. Instead, I would like to share my insights on what is wrong with Fairfield Prep.....

Let's face it. Prep is out of step with popular culture. Our Ignatian values do not resonate with what we hear, see, and read in the media, and especially not with the quintessential shaper of young minds — television or social media.

Contrary to what is in vogue in our "age of self-esteem," the faculty, administration, and coaching staff have praised you for your successes and hard work but have also corrected and disciplined you for a lack of effort or for poor performance. You were taught to accept responsibility for your own actions; and, you have learned hard lessons from failure and disappointment.

At Prep, you were academically challenged to think critically and to express your opinions in a respectful and thoughtful manner. While many schools shy away from addressing thorny societal issues due to the controversy that may surround them, Prep tackled these issues head on. Yes, at Prep you were assigned to read literary works that were banned by other schools such as Of Mice and Men, The Catcher in the Rye, and Huckleberry Finn. You were challenged to address the care of our environment, to hold a preferential option for the poor, to show tolerance towards and acceptance of those different from you. You were taught to be global citizens of an interconnected world. I am confident that you will carry these Ignatian ideals throughout life, allowing them to shape your discernment and decision making as leaders who will change our world through justice and compassion.

At Prep, you studied a faith that does justice. Through your four years of Theology, your attendance at Masses and retreats, and your participation in daily prayer and the weekly Examen, you developed a moral compass which will help you navigate your way through a society whose emphasis can be on the superficial and whose values can be amoral. I believe that each of you will agree that a sense of morality, faith and charity are bright lights in a society that focuses on the ego, on self-fulfillment, and on excessive consumerism - a society that is the leader in what Father General Nicolas Adolfo referred to as the globalization of superficiality.

At Prep, you have eschewed the concept that "It's all about me" and about "taking care of number one." Instead you espoused the Prep Brotherhood not by mere words but by your actions. I applaud your commitment to those less fortunate than you through community service projects and your participation on Urban Plunges or on global missions to Ecuador, El Salvador, Jamaica, Appalachia, and Immokalee.

I applaud how you care for one another on a daily basis. I am never more proud of being a part of this amazing educational ministry than when I hear one of you chide a classmate who is giving an underclassman a hard time telling him: "Cut it out, we don't do that at Prep." You sing the fight song after every game, win or lose; you proudly display Prep stickers on your cars, and with great pride wear Prep spirit wear. For you, the Prep Brotherhood is much more than just a catch phrase. It is, I know, an integral part of your life now and in the future.

We are not, as some may say, behind the times in an age when everything is labeled "instant and disposable." No, we truly believe that there is real value in clinging to values such as respect of self and others, hard work, and service to those in need.

Our history is replete with examples of the young making the world more just, more compassionate, and more equal under the law. I am from the generation of the '60s who promised the Age of Aquarius marked by love, understanding and social justice.

So, what will be your generation's legacy? How will you be remembered?

I truly believe that you will be remembered for your compassion, your conscience, and your willingness to act to make this world a just place for your children and your grandchildren.

Finally, having given his companions the requisite training, St. Ignatius sent them to the far corners of the globe. My final words to you come from his mandate: "Ite inflammate omnia"– "Go set the world on fire!"

I thank each and every one of you for being a part of my 49 absolutely memorable and rewarding years.

TEACHERS HONORED

MR. TOM SHEA '73

Most Inspirational Teacher

met Tom Shea '73 when I was looking to make a transition back into secondary school education after being a collegiate football coach. He answered an unsolicited cover letter and resume strewn with words like "passion" and "discipline" highlighting what I thought educating young men was all about. Lucky for me Tom agreed as he had just been hired to re-establish a proud football tradition here at Fairfield Prep. Our correspondence led to a couple of interviews, followed by me earning an unbelievable job opportunity that ultimately resulted in a deep friendship that I am forever grateful to have found.

Prep is akin to a personal guru and superhero wrapped up in one. Tom's character, intellect, and work ethic led him to be an exceptional success in the business and telecommunications world prior to returning to Fairfield Prep. Since that time he has become a well-regarded teacher in the English department, served quite successfully as both an assistant and head football coach – not to mention sent two sons through his high school alma mater. It's here where we add honor, compassion and selflessness to Tom's list of innate qualities as he continues to follow his second career path.

As Ignatian educators we are responsible to set a daily example of personal integrity and leadership through service that our young men learn from and follow for their betterment. Tom Shea does all that and much more. The 2018 Most Inspirational Teacher award is one he has well earned. Congratulations Mr. Shea! MR. JAMIE CHESBRO Yearbook Dedication

Ver the course of his time at Prep, Jamie Chesbro has shared his gifts and talents with the Prep community. As a coach he has encouraged Prep's past soccer players and present day golfers. In the classroom, his love of literature and writing coupled with his own high standards, inspires students to strive for excellence... Knowing how important it is for students to explore literature from the perspective of the writer, he founded Prep's Living Author Series which has brought celebrated authors to Prep to speak to students about crafting powerful pieces of writing. Quietly and never seeking praise for himself, he built [many literary] programs simply because of his love, not only of storytelling, but also for all Prep students... A published author, excellent teacher, loving son, devoted husband, doting father, and loyal friend, Mr. Chesbro serves as a faith filled example of a Man for Others. In the spiritual exercises, St. Ignatius writes that, "Love ought to manifest itself in deeds rather than words..."In considering St. Ignatius' definition of love, it seems to me that Mr. Chesbro epitomizes the very essence of its meaning. While at Prep, he has given completely and fully of his talents sharing his love for us in deeds and words.

SPORTS WINTER 2017-18

State Champions

y any measure, the 2017-2018 Fairfield Prep Varsity Hockey team was an incredible success. Winning the Mount St. Charles Tournament, the SCC Championship and Fairfield Prep's 17th State Championship, this team truly left no doubt. They finished undefeated against Connecticut competition, amassing a 22-2-1 record.

Led by 13 seniors, this group embodied the "team first" mentality, often sacrificing personal achievements for team success.

Throughout the season offensively, it was a different player stepping up almost every night as nine players finished with more than 20 points. Incredibly, all six senior forwards reached the 20 point plateau (Skyler Celotto, Carter Kral, Devin Blanchette, Ryan Eckert, Joe Mancini, and Kevin Oricoli).

While the offensive numbers are impressive, the defensive numbers are incredible. Seniors Cole Casl, Evan Uva, Matt Kernaghan, Ryan Dowd and Shane Murphy led a defensive corps that allowed only 43 goals and only six power-play goals all season. Senior Jack McGee was sensational in net all year posting a rare 20 win season while logging more than 1,000 minutes.

While the statistics help tell the story of a dominant season, this team will most be remembered for the camaraderie off the ice and the improvement on the ice. Led by student-assistant coach senior Matt D'Amore, this was a team that came together early in the season and never wavered from their selfless goals. They worked extremely hard during early-morning skates and remained focused on long bus trips to Massachusetts and Rhode Island. For their efforts, they go down in Prep history as one of the greatest hockey teams the state of Connecticut has ever seen.

The impressive lead was unexpected because the season had started earlier than previous years. Prep went on to defeat a strong Amity team and longtime rival Greenwich High School. Prep's veteran lineup won 9 of 12 events and captured the 6th dual meet victory over Greenwich in school history. The Prep veterans took control of the SCC Championship meet by winning the first medley relay in the competition. 28 swimmers and divers scored overall, and Fairfield Prep obtained its 14th straight SCC Championship. Oliver Rus '18 was voted Most Outstanding Performer at the meet.

At the LL championship the Jesuits would go toe-to-toe with FCIAC powers Ridgefield, Staples and perennial state champion Greenwich – ultimately finishing Runner-Up for the second straight year. The team

SPORTS SPRING 2018

Baseball Team Makes History

he Fairfield Prep Baseball team had a remarkable season marked by winning their first Southern Connecticut Conference Tournament title, set a program record for wins with 25 and garnered some national recognition in the process. The Jesuits went 19-1 (16-0 in the SCC) during the regular season earning the #1 seeds in both the Southern Connecticut Conference Tournament and the CIAC LL State Tournament.

The Jesuits opened the SCC tournament with a thrilling 1-0 victory in ten innings over Hamden. With inclement weather backing things up and a desire to get a champion crowned the league brass decided that the league semi-finals and championship game would be played on the same day, and that's what the Jesuits did. The team hosted their semifinal game against North Haven, a 7-0 victory, and then traveled to West Haven H.S. to play Daniel Hand for the SCC Championship. Dan Fallacaro '18 drove in Will Lucas '18 with an RBI single in the bottom of the sixth and Pat Browne '18 sealed the victory as he caught the final out in the top of the seventh to secure the victory and the SCC Championship. The victory marked the first league title for the Baseball program in 25 years and the program's first SCC title. The program has now reached the SCC final four times, 2010, 2015, 2017 and 2018.

After securing the SCC championship the Jesuits moved on to the CIAC Class LL State Tournament. The Jesuits defeated Norwalk 15-2, Southington 4-1 and East Hartford 1-0 in the quarterfinal. The Jesuits' historic season came to an end with a 5-4 loss in ten innings to Cheshire High School. The Jesuits finished the season with a record of 25-2 (program record for wins), its first SCC Championship, a #2 State ranking by both the New Haven Register and Hartford Courant, and spent three weeks in USA TODAY TOP 25 for high school baseball (#21 in week 13, first time ranked in the top 25 in the country in school history).

Crew

The 2018 spring season ended with the Crew team raising the bar yet again. All three Prep boats earned spots in the Grand Finals of their events during the season end NEIRA Championships.

Seniors Chris Massaro, Kyle Bakonyi, Jon Psaras and Frank Gallagi helped push the 3V boat into the Grand Final with a top 3 finish in the morning marking the first time the 3V advanced to the afternoon. The 2nd Varsity boat defeated Phillips Andover by an incredible display of heart in the last 250 meters to join 3V in the Grand Finals. Another first for Prep and a huge accomplishment for seniors Derek Grabe, Nick Stachurski, Eric McDonald and Brian Helfrich to end their careers.

Similar to the 2V, the 1st varsity needed to get top 2 to advance to the Grand Final. Phillips Hanover put up a tough competition and forced the Prep crew to work all the way down the course to nab a narrow victory of just .49 seconds to advance for the second year in a row to the Grand Final. Bow man Will Del Col and his fellow senior captains Will Short and Billy Duffy gave everything they had all season and set the example of leadership and resilience.

Golf

The Fairfield Prep Golf team fell just a few strokes short of its goal of repeating as SCC champion. After a regular season which produced a 14-5-1 record, the team shot a Prep all-time best score 308 at the SCC Championship held at Race Brook Country Club. Will Mallek was comedalist with an even par score of 71 and was named to the All-SCC team. Rounding out the Prep scoring were Jack Kane (78), Tyler Blose (79) and Pat Louzan (80). At the 49th annual Chappa Invitational both of Prep's twoman teams (Mallek-Blose and Kane-Louzan) shot even par to finish tied for 6th place

In the Division I State Championship the Prep team finished 5th. Will Mallek led the way, shooting a team-best 72 (+1), followed by Tyler Blose (77), and Evan Farruggio and Pat Louzan who each shot 80. Will Mallek was named to the Division I All-State team and qualified for the inaugural CIAC Open Individual Championship, where he finished tied for 11th place.

Lacrosse

The Jesuits opened their season playing 3 of the top 20 teams in the country; Massapequa, St. Anthony's and Chaminade. The experience helped prepare the Jesuits for the rest of the season where they would go on to defeat perennial instate powerhouses New Canaan, Cheshire and Staples. The 2018 team was led by senior captains, Skyler Celotto, Justin Keith, Sam Keresey and Jae Stuhlman.

Rugby

The Prep Rugby team closed its 37th season at the state championship. Prep fielded 5 teams and 118 players, for a combined season record of 23-26. Prep's Red team won the Division II Championship with a 43-35 victory over Ridgefield. Prep hosted the Northeast Jesuit Tournament, welcoming teams from Fordham, Canisius, McQuaid, St. Peter's Prep and Loyola-Blakefield. Despite Prep's fall to a strong Fordham team in the final, the team earned the respect of every spectator. Three-quarters of this year's graduates will be playing Rugby in college. Shane McGorty '18 was named a SCC Scholar Athlete.

Sailing

The Fairfield Prep team took part in the annual "Fairfield Cup" at Pequot Yacht Club. The Jesuits were led by Jamie Paul and Chase Reynolds in the radial and standard Laser division with both of them coming 1st overall. In 420s, John Sisk and Will Donovan came out of the day with a 4th place overall finish in the B division. A combination of Matt Wiig, Jack Solway and Ronan Flynn then placed 3rd overall in the A division. Those finishes helped the Jesuits win the Fairfield Cup over rivals Darien, Ludlowe and Brunswick for the first time in 20 years.

Tennis

Tennis finished the season with an overall record of 13-8 (11-5 SCC). The Jesuits opened with an important 6-1 league victory over Cheshire, followed by a 5-2 victory over rival Ludlowe with key wins from Chris Hilton and Nash Lovallo (All-SCC) in singles and Nick Allen, Brian Donohue, Pierce Barry (All-SCC), Ethan Fabro, Julian Richtarich and Kyle Barry in doubles. The team defeated Cheshire again, receiving wins from Sean Lynch, Jared Dlenst, John Godino and Louis Guzzi. They wrapped up the regular season beating Xavier and defeated them again in the SCC quarterfinals. In the CIAC tournament Lovallo reached the 3rd round of the singles, while Barry and Fabro reached the doubles quarterfinals.

Track & Field

Team leaders (seniors) Drew Thompson, MacKinnon Sheldon, Drew Newcomb, Gregory Anderson, John Gnibus; (juniors) Edward Thristine, Robert McCullough and freshman standout Azaan Dawson, set the stage for a school record-setting season and the leaders did not disappoint. Drew Thompson finished his Prep career setting multiple school records. He and the following seniors will be missed: Gregory Anderson, Drew Newcomb, John Gnibus, Mackinnon Sheldon, Jack Meszaros, Frank Denhup, Peyton Denson and John Feeney. SEED Students for Educational Excellence through Diversity

2018 SEED DINNER

Celebrating Diversity

The annual SEED Diversity Dinner, one of the largest Prep family events, was held on April 26 in the Student Life Center. Approximately 450 guests attended, honoring the graduating seniors and welcoming the incoming freshmen. Families were asked to bring dishes that represented their culture or ethnic background, and with more than 100 families, the food was plentiful! Speakers included seniors and freshmen, as well as parents, who gave testimony to the success of the SEED (Students for Educational Excellence through Diversity) program.

SEED celebrated its anniversary this year as an integral and important program in the Prep Community, promoting racial, academic, socio-economic, religious, and cultural diversity. This was a milestone year for the event as Dr. Robert Perrotta was honored for his commitment to the SEED program as it encapsulates his passion for diversity among the student body. Dr. Donna Andrade, founder of SEED announced an award of distinction for his support of SEED during his tenure at Prep. (See photo at right with Mrs. Thomas).

Special thanks to Mrs. Alecia Thomas, Director of Diversity & Academic Support Services, the Faculty Committee on Diversity (FCOD), Prep families, and Prep staff members for making this evening possible.

Washington, D.C. Visit

SNBA

During Spring Break, 35 SEED students with Prep chaperones visited the Washington, D.C. area on a college/cultural tour. During the trip, students visited destinations such as the White House, Washington Monument, Ford's Theater, the Memorials (Abraham Lincoln, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and the Vietnam Memorial), and the African-American Museum. In addition to visiting the historical sites, students toured college campuses including Georgetown University, Howard University, and Loyola Maryland. The purpose of the trip was to educate students on the history of the United States as well as introduce them to college campus life.

Honoring Prep's Greatest

Fairfield Prep honored seven of its former athletes and coaches at its 2nd Annual Athletic Hall of Fame in front of a crowd of more than 300 on June 1, 2018. Alumni, family and friends enjoyed tributes to all of the honorees, and Traug Keller '78, P'11, '17 (SVP, ESPN) served as Master of Ceremonies. This year's honorees were: Jim Lyddy '63, Tom Lyddy '67 (posthumous), Jack Ringel '54, Bob Skoronski '51, Roger Ratchford '51, Ed Rowe '59 and Bob Sylvester.

BOB SKORONSKI '51 The Ansonia native and former Derby resident became the first Prep graduate to play in the NFL. The left tackle and offensive captain of the Packers under legendary coach Vince Lombardi played 11 seasons, all with Green Bay, and was a member of the first two Super Bowl winners in 1967 and 1968, respectively. The 6-foot-3 Skoronski played center and linebacker in his senior year as Prep went 5-2-1 in 1950. He then played three seasons at Indiana before being drafted by the Packers in 1955. He was selected as the center on Prep's All-Decade team from 1942-1951. Gene Skowronski '61 accepted the award for his brother Bob.

ROGER RATCHFORD '51

In a stellar career that spanned 40 seasons (1966-2005), the venerable golf coach racked up an astounding 690 victories, presided over five state championship teams and was named CHSCA Coach of the Year in 1983. Although he never had an undefeated season, seven of Ratchford's squads finished with only one loss. In 1998, a second-place finish in the Division I state championships derailed Prep's shot at a perfect season (25-1).

JACK RINGEL '54

Jack was talented enough to play four seasons of varsity football and baseball at Prep. A bruising 6-foot-1, 185-pound fullback, Ringel was co-captain of the Jesuits' first undefeated and untied team (8-0) in 1953. He set a Prep and regional scoring record that season with 128 points and was an honorable mention All-American. Ringel then went on to play three seasons of varsity football and baseball at Holy Cross. With Ringel in the outfield, the Crusaders finished third in the 1958 College World Series.

ED ROWE '59 Except for a one-year sabbatical in 1978, Ed Rowe was synonymous with Prep baseball. From 1968-77 and then from 1979-2005, Rowe guided the Jesuits for 36 seasons, compiling a 477-326 record with 11 league championships and two appearances in the state championship finals. Rowe had three seasons of 20 or more victories and his teams made 28 state playoff appearances, including a run of 21 straight. He was named Daily News Coach of the Year in 1983 and CHSCA Coach of the Year in 2000.

JIM LYDDY '63 The 6-foot, 170-pound guard has the distinction of being the school's first All-State selection in basketball. At the time of his graduation, Lyddy was Prep's all-time leading scorer with 1,308 points and was named to a pair of All-MBIAC first teams. He was also a two-time All-MBIAC selection in baseball. Lyddy played college basketball at Georgetown, where he captained the Hoyas his senior season.

The late TOM LYDDY '67 Another multi-sport standout, Lyddy played football, basketball and baseball at Prep, but his prowess on the gridiron made him stand out. The late end/defensive lineman was named All-MBIAC, All-State and Catholic All-American his senior season. He received a football scholarship to Maryland, but a severe knee injury curtailed a promising career. He transferred to Fairfield, where he starred in baseball before graduating in 1972.

BOB SYLVESTER If nothing else, Sylvester's legacy as Prep basketball coach was validated when he delivered the school's long awaited first state championship in 1969. That team, featuring Prep Hall of Famer Jim Fitzsimmons and the late Hal Smith, went 23-1, was ranked No. 1 in New England and came to be regarded as one of the Connecticut's all-time best. It was Sylvester's only title, but for 16 seasons at the helm, he was overwhelmingly successful. From 1961-62 until his retirement following the 1976-77 season, the 2006 New England Basketball Hall of Fame inductee compiled a 286-114 record, a 71 percent winning percentage. From 1966-67 through the title season of 1968-69, Sylvester's Jesuits went a phenomenal 64-6, winning three MBIAC titles and reaching the state championship game each season.

Fr. Jim Bowler, S.J., Honored

n May 18, Fairfield University and Fairfield Prep honored Rev. James M. Bowler, S.J., for his many years of service to both institutions, with a dinner and program held in the Student Life Center. A leader in the field of Jesuit education, Father Bowler served as Prep's principal from 1977-1983 and implemented many changes that have endured to this day. Noteworthy examples are the Christian Service program, the Graduate-At-Graduation foundational document, and Prep's administrative structure.

Christian Service: As a direct response to Father General Pedro Arrupe, S.J.'s mandate that Jesuit schools re-orient themselves to educating "Men for Others," Father Bowler instituted Fairfield Prep's service program and made it a requirement for graduation, which was at that time a novel (and somewhat controversial) undertaking.

Grad-At-Grad: It was under Father Bowler that Fairfield Prep became the pilot school for formulation and implementation of the Graduate-At-Graduation philosophy, which subsequently was adopted by all Jesuit schools as the foundation for the mission of Jesuit education.

Administration: A visionary in leadership, Father Bowler oversaw a wholesale re-organization and modernization of Prep's administrative structure, which (notwithstanding changes in titles and added positions) remains essentially unchanged to this day.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Prep Family,

It is always with pride that I tell people I graduated from Fairfield Prep. Usually I joke that my class rank was 210 out of 200. I wasn't a great student, but I graduated and have had a very successful life with volunteerism and community service an important part of my life. Much of my success I attribute to my Prep education.

Recycling and the environment are two areas that have been a big part of my volunteer efforts. Reading the "Waste Not!" article by Sarah Stanley in the Spring 2018 Prep Today motivated me to send this note and a small donation to be used in the area of greatest need. Keep up the great work and keep making me prouder every day. Sincerely, Bill O'Brien '64

reg Marshall '73 wrote a wonderful retirement tribute to Dr. Perrotta (Prep Today, Spring 2018). But Greg, like the Tom Dever '73 he referred to and Greg's cousin David Quatrella '73, were all Spanish 101 stars who recall our former teacher through the blissful memories of "A" students. I have the privilege of remembering then-Mr. Perrotta as the first teacher who ever gave me an F, and as one of the best, most dedicated, giving instructors ever.

After Mr. Perrotta awarded me a series of well-deserved Fs, he sat me down and encouraged me to work on assignments in his presence during mutual free periods and after the regular academic day. In time, Fs became Ds – and eventually Cs. Though difficulties continued, I stayed with Spanish – as a sophomore (without Mr. Perrotta) and as a junior where, again with Mr. Perrotta's encouragement, Cs became Bs. I signed-up for senior-year Spanish, not as Greg's article stated due to rumors of a much easier instructor, but only after learning that Mr. Perrotta would be teaching.

That summer, Mr. Perrotta taught me as part of Fairfield University's Upward Bound program for Bridgeport inner-city students. Due to Mr. Perrotta's ceaseless summer and early senior year drills, I scored wellenough on a national exam to earn Spanish Honor Society membership. I can still see Mr. Perrotta's congratulatory smile (perhaps mixed with surprise) when I told him about the honor – and profusely thanked him for all he had done.

ERROTTA

In a past life as a legal services attorney working with migrants, I leaned upon Spanish lessons learned in Mr. Perrotta's classes enough to start client relationships until real translators arrived. However, after years of minimal use, I have forgotten most of the Spanish lessons taught. But the real lasting lessons Mr. Perrotta helped to teach me remain ever clear: When things get too difficult, do not give up. Failure can lead to success – not over-night, but with incremental, often extremely small, steps. And, while I have been teaching a paralegal certification course this past decade: Never give-up on a student or anyone else having difficulties – as long as they remain willing to try.

Great Turnout for Boston Alumni Reception

The Boston Alumni Reception was held on April 18 at the Liberty Hotel. Prep alumni from the area gathered to reconnect, reminisce, and network with fellow alums. The event was a great success reuniting more than 30 alumni in the Boston area. Fairfield Prep President Father Tom Simisky, S.J., engaged the crowd with an informative "State of Prep" address and his Strategic Vision for Prep's future. Fun was had by all.

AWAY FROM HOM

McKeon '15 Steps Up

f you ask Jack McKeon (Prep '15, BC '19) why he decided to run the Boston Marathon, he'll tell you all about how much his friends who had run it previously inspired him. "It started off as, 'I want to do this before I leave BC, so I'll apply,'" McKeon said.

"I applied for probably 25 charities with a $7,500 dollar baseline," he said. "I got all rejections and waitlisted by one, which was Dana-Farber. I said 'Yes, I'd like to be considered for the waitlist.'"

He went home last winter with low expectations for April. Soon after, his sister passed away from NORSE, a medical condition characterized by severe seizures that don't respond to typical treatment methods.

"It was a bucket list thing at the start, and then it became much more," he said. "I wanted to run something for her."

He started 2018 with a renewed purpose—but still no bib. He turned to his uncle, who had previously run the marathon for the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. Shortly afterward, he returned with a belated Christmas present with one major caveat. "I kind of gave him a 'You speak for me as far as this,'" McKeon said. "But he was like, 'Oh yeah, by the way, I may have told them you could do $20,000.'"

The minimum amount each entry in the Boston Athletic Association's Official Charity Program has to raise is $5,000, with the average per runner clocking in at $10,000. With only a few months to go, McKeon faced twice that, on top of training for his first-ever organized running experience.

"I've only been running since the day I found out," he said.

His fundraising efforts also constituted a community effort, as friends, family, neighbors, and strangers banded together to fuel his journey to $20,000, primarily through Facebook. More than $2,500 dollars of his total came from selling Marathon Monday t-shirts at BC, which was accomplished with the help of a fellow student and McKeon's neighbor, a t-shirt distributor.

With less than a week to go, McKeon had the easiest part of his journey remaining: running the marathon—a bizarre thought. In the end McKeon was left in awe of the outpouring of support he's received over the previous months. "I just want to make sure my friends get credit, because they've been a big part of this," he said.

Carter White '13 in the Jesuit Volunteer Corps

• arter White '13 (pictured front) writes: "I have been absolutely loving my experience with the Jesuit Volunteer Corps (JVC) in San Diego. My community has been a wonderfully supportive and challenging group to live with, my work in campus ministry has been very rewarding and it's not half bad getting sunshine 365 days a year! The shot of me and my community are from our Orientation retreat in August. Speaking from my experience going from Prep to Georgetown to JVC, I've loved staying connected to the Jesuit mission."

Thank You!

Taken from a speech by Jordan Wingate '18 at the 2018 Spring Auction s a kid from Hamden, I lived on a street where if you followed it south you'd pass Albertus Magnus College and Yale. These two colleges are sandwiched in between a dangerous neighborhood that my parents wouldn't let me walk through. They didn't have to worry because I knew I had no business there.

What I didn't realize was this would be a metaphor for my life. As a minority, society places an immense burden that comes in the form of two choices: succeed or become a statistic. Four years ago I attended a high school night trying to decide which school I would go to. Mr. Marshall gave a presentation on Fairfield Prep. I went to three other presentations and none of them interested me as much as Prep did. I knew I wanted to go to Prep. What I didn't know was how my family would be able to afford it. My parents insisted that I apply and that they would find a way.

When I got the big acceptance letter in the mail I was so excited. I didn't even bother applying to any other schools because I knew Prep was where I wanted to be. Only a few days later, my parents were in contact with Mrs. Thomas. With the help of her seeing my potential, in addition to my parents and donors investing in my future, my dream of attending Fairfield Prep became a reality.

Out of all the years in high school, junior year is the hardest. It is the last year to make a good impression with > colleges before you send out applications, so it is important to perform well academically. I found out just how hard junior year could be.

After returning from my first immersion experience in Immokalee, Florida, my family sat me down to talk. I learned of my mom's cancer diagnosis and that she was going to have a procedure on the following day. That was the longest night of my life filled with every emotion imaginable. That next morning I was given the option to stay home or go to school; I chose school so I could keep busy. Sitting in classes consumed by my worries, my theology teacher, Mr. Cashman, called me outside. Mrs. Thomas told me she saw that I was not able to get through all of my requirements of that day. It was through the help of Mrs. Thomas, my teachers, and my friends that I was able to get through that day and the days that followed. Today I am happy to say my mom is 100% cancer free.

Fairfield Prep boasts about its quality of education but education expands further than the walls. It is in near and far communities that we are able to learn different ways of life which allow us to be well-rounded thinkers. These are done through immersion trips which cost money to attend. Countless people every year are able to learn this way only through donations. I've had the privilege of attending five immersion or school trips in my time here. All were made possible through donations from people like you. I whole-heartedly believe that my experience at Prep is only complete because of these trips. These service trips were especially important to me because it was my way of showing that I am thankful for the services that I have benefited from. I found this through Mrs. Thomas always having my back, to my friends, SEED brothers, and educators sending prayers towards my family when we needed it most, and from all of you for investing in our education.

I'd personally like to thank my parents for supporting me in all I do, my teachers for preparing me, and donors for giving me a chance to attend this wonderful school. Fairfield Prep teaches us we have control over our choices. So it is my decision to choose to be great.
