Please join me in welcoming Tanya de Hoog to Southridge.

Southridge Video Release: Parking Lot Safety – please watch!

Many of you received an email from me yesterday about safety in our parking lots. Rather than repeating messages you've already heard, we thought it would be interesting to highlight this topic in a light-hearted way – using the voices of our students!

Today, I'm again pleased to share this video with you. And this time, we've included some really funny bloopers! I hope that you'll watch it, and share it with anyone who participates in your child's drop-off or pick-up routine. You can access the video by clicking below, and it's also been posted to the Video Gallery in the Parent Portal on the website.

Random Acts of Kindness

This week, February 14- 20, is International Random Acts of Kindness Week. Thank you to Mrs. Hugh, one of our Learning resource teachers, for bringing this fact to my attention. It is fitting that Valentine's Day kicks the week off and hopefully allows us to be a little more focused on treating one another with kindness. According to the Random Acts of Kindness Foundation, being kind to someone actually allows you to feel happier, less stressed, less anxious, and more energetic. It may even contribute to longevity; clearly. there some benefits to beina kind. are areat (https://www.randomactsofkindness.org) I think it is important to feature a random acts of kindness week as a reminder, but we should strive to make kind acts a part of our everyday life.

I want to share a story of a simple kind act that took place last week in the Junior School. Two students in Grade 6, Matthab and Liam, noticed Mrs. Beer setting the chairs up in the Great Hall and offered to help her. They worked with her for a short time lining up and organizing the chairs and went on their way to class probably feeling a little happier and maybe a little more energetic. I'm sure they were not expecting that Mrs. Beer would share their act with me nor that I would write about it in the Wednesday; however, that small act had an impact. A lot of these small acts together help shape our school culture. I think we are lucky to be part of a place where Grade 6 boys help out without being asked and where staff recognize and appreciate the kindness shown. As members of a community, we all have a hand in shaping its culture. I am thankful for Liam, Matthab and Mrs. Beer who, through one small act, demonstrated that the little things do matter. So know that when you show kindness this week (and beyond) you will be brightening someone's day and the ripple effect will be felt by others.

I look forward to seeing you at the student-led conferences on Thursday.

Ms. Alison Graham Interim Head of Junior School

Just a friendly reminder to please communicate all absences or late arrivals to the following address attendance@southridge.bc.ca

Student Led Conferences: Thursday, February 18th (noon dismissal)

Throughout the school term, students have been actively selecting their own pieces of work to add to their portfolio. These pieces reflect many different subject disciplines and should demonstrate their own personal growth as a student. On Thursday, February 18th, we will be holding student led conferences so that the students can share their portfolios with their parents. This opportunity is empowering for students as they can share their own journey as a learner and actively reflect on each piece. Please also be aware that there will be a 12:00 noon dismissal on this day to accommodate the conferences.

Country Fair Gift Baskets and Feb 26th Jr School Casual Day

Scrap Arts Music Performance at Southridge

On Monday afternoon, the students of Southridge Junior School were treated to a wonderful performance by Scrap Arts Music. This group of musicians, based in Victoria, has performed for the Closing Ceremonies of the 2010 Winter Olympics and for the Vancouver Canucks hockey games, as well as for audiences in 14 countries around the world.

They treated us to a creative performance called "SAM2" in which they shared instruments that they had created from materials collected in and around their home town. The students loved the high-energy show, which included audience participation. It was a terrific example of inquiry in action and the fun that music brings to our daily lives!

Gravitational Waves Exist!

If you were like me, news that came out last Thursday from the science community was mind-bogglingly exciting! As someone that studied science in university (including a number of astronomy classes), has taught science for a number of years and continues to try and stay up to date, the discovery of gravitational waves had me telling anyone who would listen how important this discovery was for scientific understanding. This was proof that Einstein's Theory of Relativity and the idea that space and time curve in the presence of mass. In fact, when Einstein theorized this idea, he actually thought that these waves would never be detected and, in response, even declared them nonexistent for a time. To think that one hundred years ago this theory was proposed and this year, scientists were able to finally provide real evidence. How can you not think this is not exciting!

Our Weekly News

If you have taken any time to read further about how these waves were detected, you will realize the magnitude of how many people needed to collaborate to make it happen and how much innovation and intelligence has been combined in this quest – it is staggering. It includes over 1,000 scientists, and an enormous detector that consists of two facilities nearly 1,900 miles apart called LIGO which stands for Laser Interferometer Gravitational-Wave Observatory. The complexity to try and describe how it works and why would make this submission much too long and likely lose its effectiveness; however, I encourage you to read a little to understand how it does work and the collaborative environment that was needed to get there. At its most basic, this observatory came from wanting to try and prove this theory; it really began with curiosity. The importance of this trait cannot be overemphasized in the success of learning.

Curious students not only ask questions, but also actively seek out the answers. Research has even shown that curiosity is just as important as intelligence in determining how well students do in school. In a recent (2014) study that looked at what is occurring in someone's brain when curiosity is piqued found two important findings. First, curiosity actually prepares the brain for learning. This sounds fairly obvious for a subject that we are interested in, but what the researchers found was that with information we are not particularly engaged about, becoming curious will help us learn more effectively. Second, that curiosity will make the learning experience more rewarding; we feel better once we've learned. This has a positive effect on subsequent learning experiences as we will remember the prior positive experience. At Southridge, inquiry is a key thread throughout all of our educational programs and our Harkness philosophy encourages and develops the skill to ask good questions. It enhances our students' curiosity and, in turn, creates deeper and more effective learning.

Returning to the news of the gravitational waves discovery the reaction from many of the scientists was unbridled joy. Their reactions reminded me of our students when they accomplish something meaningful – winning a close game, solving a difficult problem, completing a debate or speech. It shows how passionate they are in their quest to learn. It was not lost on these brilliant minded people that this discovery opens the door incredibly wide to thinking about the universe in a whole new way. As one scientist explained, prior to this discovery the universe was like a silent movie and now they have added sound.

Have a great week and stay curious!

Senior Drama – Peter Pan Production

You may have heard rumblings that this year, the Senior Drama department is performing JM Barrie's iconic Peter Pan – you heard correctly! Peter Pan will have its opening night at Southridge on Thursday, February 25th. As there are many versions, the Theatre Performance class all agreed on a script that is very close to JM Barrie's original piece with a few minor alterations made by students. The spirit of the whole piece is one that is traditional and set in Edwardian London at the turn of the century.

Up until opening week, every Southridge Wednesday features an article written by a member of the cast or crew. I hope you enjoy this next piece, written by Dolphy Pradhan.

Thanks,

Glen Pope Senior School Drama Teacher

Dolphy Pradhan Discusses Playing Michael

The long awaited opening night for this year's production of Peter Pan is quickly approaching, and on behalf of our cast and crew, I am proud to say that we are beyond excited. For this production, I am playing the role of Michael, Wendy's little brother, and I cannot imagine the experiences I had in my first year in the senior play to be any more memorable. I think that the last couple of weeks have been really important in showing us the true reality of the play and what it means to do justice to this incredible work of literature. It may be the amazingly built set pieces, the personalized costumes, or maybe the animated makeup that did it but I know that it must have been all of these individual aspects combined that have taken that extra step in making the show truly come to life. This year's production is something I have never experienced before. There is just so much artistic freedom that comes with the wonder and magic of Neverland, and being able to put that not only into words, but with shadow theatre, sword fighting, and flying, it's just fantastic. With a little over a week before show time, I would definitely encourage everyone to come out and see the play and we really hope you enjoy it!

Tickets can be purchased here.

General festival seating is $10

Premium seating is $20 and there are two choices of premium seats:

- 1. Front row comfortable seats run along the front right at the heart of all the action watch out for fairy dust!
- 2. Back row comfortable seats with a raised unimpeded view as you look over the rest of the audience. Provides a great view of the whole stage.

Early Finish for Semiahmoo House Society Mosaic Stairway

After many hours spent by the talented artists of the Semiahmoo House Society community, a planned mosaic stairway, which was projected to be finished in ten years, was completed in under two. Spanning over 30ft tall, and more than three flights of stairs, the stairway never looked so bright.

The tiling project began in 2014 when Aleksandra Golos (a previous art steward and a Southridge alumni), Sarah Sutanto (current Grade 12 art steward) and Jessy Sidhu (current Grade 12 Semiahmoo House Steward) aided in the creation of the elaborate composition. From multiple meetings to countless drafts and edits, the design was completed and given to Semiahmoo House Society. Seeing the finished artwork on the underside of the stairs was a rewarding experience for these students. Rachel Tong (current Grade 10 art steward) and Jessy Sidhu have eagerly begun work on another design for Semiahmoo House Society's second stairway.

Children's Book Drive

From the beginning of the year, our team of 13 students and 3 faculty members have been preparing to go on the first Southridge Service Trip to Uganda. During our trip there, we will be connecting with a secondary school where we will be building, and an elementary school where we will be running literacy and sports classes.

As spring break approaches and our trip draws near, we are hoping to run a Children's book drive next week, from February 22-26, to get books for the elementary students we will be connecting with. If you have any easy to understand, children's picture books you are willing to donate, please bring them in next week! The only books we will not be able to accept are books with a more challenging reading level (for older children) or books about holidays such as Christmas, Easter or Valentine's day, etc.

We would really appreciate any books you could bring in for us!

Please email sdial@southridge.bc.ca or dweaver@southridge.bc.ca if you have any questions!

Thanks!

Changes with the Vidigami App

Last week I shared with you the announcement from Vidigami about the new software release that provides improvements to album management and more features. This week, and related to the software update, Vidigami is announcing the impending release of a new app to work more effectively with the new software.

"We'd like to share some important information about our Vidigami mobile app. Firstly, we will be offering a new and improved mobile app, planned for release June of this year.

Unfortunately, our current mobile app is not working as expected, so we will no longer be supporting this version, effective February 29, 2016. On this date, the app will no longer be available on the iTunes store and the installed app will no longer work.

Any support issues related to the mobile app between now and February 29th will be captured, and considered for the June mobile app release.

Stay tuned for our next Vidigami mobile solution!

Best regards,

Team Vidigami"

I am looking forward to enjoying the benefits of all the new changes. As always, please make use of Vidigami support if you have any questions about using Vidigami.
