ROUND UP!

We Are Wranglers and We Are Awesome!
REACH FOR THE STARS Dec. 7, 2018

Did you know...

students who work with Mrs. Tagud will have a new speech-language pathologist when they return from Winter Break? We would like to welcome Esther Jane Ward to Reading Elementary! She will be here Monday to meet the faculty and shadow Mrs. Tagud for the day. Davis District has procedures for deciding whether to declare a "snow day?" The decision occurs in the morning when plow drivers are attempting to clear parking lots before school. When drivers think conditions are poor, they call the district's maintenance director, transportation director and facilities administrator, who then contact the superintendent of schools. That group reviews road and weather reports provided by the local media, law enforcement and highway representatives, and take into account student and employee safety, busing and security. If the decision is made to close schools it will be announced well before buses hit the roadways.

District Guidelines for Indoor Recess

As temperatures drop and inversions set in this winter, we would like everyone to be aware of Davis District's guidelines concerning indoor recesses. Parents can help us a LOT by sending students to school properly dressed for cold weather. We will go outside whenever possible.

- The onsite administrator should consider many factors in determining when to hold indoor recess. Indoor recess must be held when temperatures are less than 20 degrees, including wind chill.
- Schools should refer to air quality standards set forth by the Utah Department of Health. The air quality guidelines can be obtained at various websites, including <http://health.utah.gov/asthma/> and <http://www.airquality.utah.gov/>
- Weather conditions such as strong wind, rain, freezing rain, snow, sleet or hail may make conditions on the playground unsafe for outdoor play.
- The decision to keep students indoors is typically made after a site evaluation of the facility's conditions by the principal. Input for this decision may come from administrative interns, support services staff, school nurses, PTA members, JSSC teacher reps, elementary school directors or the district Risk Management Dept.
- Indoor activities must have the same standard of supervision as regular classroom activities. Suggestions for indoor activities include: board games, card games, marbles, jacks, computer games, hangman, tic tac toe, reading, art projects, etc.
