The final piece of Wilshire Boulevard Temple’s Glazer Campus master plan has finally come to fruition. Construction began following its November 11 groundbreaking ceremony, and the parking lot at the east side of the sanctuary has begun its transformation into what will become one of the city’s most spectacular buildings, the Audrey Irmas Pavilion. In the weeks and months ahead, this corner of Wilshire and South Harvard boulevards will undergo a massive metamorphosis, as a new center of activity rises to serve not only our Temple members and their extended families but residents of the city and beyond.

The sights and sounds of progress are apparent—protective barriers, fences, office trailers, gates, and new pedestrian patterns on campus are in place. MATT Construction, our general contractor, has mobilized on-site, and demolition and clearing of the parking lot has taken place. Shoring and the mass excavation of the site has begun and will be followed by the installation of all site retaining walls and the building’s foundation system. As construction proceeds, we’ll continue to present updates regarding its progress.

Meanwhile, the construction phase provides an ongoing series of educational opportunities for children attending Brawerman East and the Erika J. Glazer Early Childhood schools, adjacent to the work site. The students are eyewitnesses to what is certainly one of the most exciting construction projects in recent Los Angeles history.

When the new building opens, in about two years, our community will have a state-of-the-art events center to accommodate activities and events running the gamut from small meetings and b’nei mitzvot to weddings and major galas. The new Pavilion will house a grand ballroom, a multipurpose room, meeting rooms, a rooftop sky garden with panoramic views, and a world-class catering kitchen. In addition, in partnership with the Annenberg Foundation, the

Miracles of Life

Parashat Ki Tisa Exodus 30:11–34:35

After the debacle of Moses’s first journey up and down the mountain, only to witness the betrayal of the entire nation at the Golden Calf, he returns for a second time with a new set of tablets. The Torah states: “Moses’s face was radiant from his encounter with God.” Aaron and the Israelites are awestruck and bow in reverence. Moses then instructs them concerning all that God had imparted, and when finished, he pulled a veil over his face. When he returns to meet God “panim-el-panim” (face to face), he pulls the veil over his face once again.

When we encounter God, we say we have experienced a moment of truth, or that we were overwhelmed with emotion, or that we felt a deep connection to life itself. In those moments of illuminated awareness, we are fully alive with the light of life, as if connected to a universal source of energy. Whenever we witness what is beyond words—the birth of a child, a first step, a word, a smile, laughter and tears, the presence of loved ones, the darkness of death and despair followed by the touch of a comforting hand—we encounter God. Often we cannot name it without removing the veil.

The Miracle of life is that we return over and over again to seek God’s presence, face to face.

building will also become home to a center of purposeful aging for residents of our surrounding community, where they can enhance their lives through various activities and cultural programs.

So, to all members of our Temple community, come take a look at the construction of the Audrey Irmas Pavilion and feel proud of being part of a congregation that has a history of progress and civic leadership—just like our ancestors who had the vision and courage to build our historic sanctuary.

Brawerwoman Alumni Spotlight

Ben Shirken, Mann Family Early Childhood Center Class of 2002 and Brawerman Elementary School Class of 2009, known by his stage name “Beshken,” was on tour in Detroit when interviewed for this Bulletin edition. For the last year, Ben, an electronic artist who sings and plays guitar, has been touring across the United States and Canada with Gus Dapperton.

Ben’s love for music started in his days at Brawerman, when he played a cover of “Hey There Delilah” as Demetrius in A Midsummer Night’s Dream.

Ben went to secondary school at Windward and was in the jazz band there. He also played covers at b’nei mitzvot. Currently a senior at NYU, Ben is studying music production and business, working toward a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Recorded Music. His interest in being a DJ, producing music, and frequenting Low End Theory, a former contemporary beat music club in Los Angeles, got him into the electronic scene.

We can’t wait to see what Ben does next!
“God Is a Superhero!”

In our early childhood centers, we provide children with opportunities to explore their thoughts, feelings, and ideas. Play is a powerful and essential means for this to happen. We find ways for children to voice their ideas and seek understanding of their perspective.

In one classroom this year, the children were particularly interested in superheroes. The teachers gave the children space to co-construct limits on superhero play and to compare notions and beliefs about superheroes. As they discussed their theories on different superheroes in our community, one child exclaimed, “God is a superhero!” Another child challenged that theory, “But God is so far away, he is up in the sky.” The children further explained that God is a superhero because “God helps people do things every day. Like fix people and fix toys and fix tools.” The children believe that God knows when people need help: “He answers people when they do a prayer...” and “God whispers something in your ear, and then you go do it.”

Yet, they wanted more answers about God. One child leapt up suddenly in excitement and shared, “The ‘Rab Guy’ and Jason, they know a lot about God; we need to ask them!”

Our spiritual development begins at birth, with the connectedness and trust an infant feels in being held, fed, and cuddled by his parents. Toddlers’ spirituality reflects how absorbed they are in the wonder of creation. They want to touch and explore everything. As children grow, they soak up the knowledge and love of God in lots of ways. Through our daily teachings and interactions at school, we strive to guide the children in feeling connected to and loved by God.

#CampDayNeverStops: Brawerman Celebrates Tu BiSh’vat at Annual Camp Day

On January 23, 2019, the entire Brawerman Elementary School community came together for another exciting and joyful annual Tu BiSh’vat celebration. Traditionally held at Camp Hess Kramer, this year’s event took place at Tumbleweed camp in the Santa Monica Mountains. Determined to maintain the Camp Hess Kramer spirit despite the relocation, Brawerman East and West students proudly wore their customized WBT Camps T-shirts to “bring out the sun” and create a spirited, “campy” feel. Together, they embodied the mantra, #KramerNeverStops.

Tu BiSh’vat, or the “Jewish New Year of the trees,” originated as an ancient agricultural festival and is celebrated on the 15th day of the month of Shevat. Today, many Jews celebrate the holiday by hosting a Tu BiSh’vat seder or by planting trees in Israel in honor of loved ones.

“This holiday honoring the trees has always provided the perfect opportunity for Brawerman students to enjoy the outdoors and experience the soul of WBT Camps while surrounded by natural beauty,” said Rabbi Elissa Ben-Naim, Director of Jewish Life and Learning for Brawerman West. “For years, our Brawerman kehillah has enjoyed the Jewish holiday of Tu BiSh’vat out in nature. This year’s day of experiential learning was a magnificent opportunity to strengthen our East/West connection while enjoying less structured time bonding with educators.”

The Tu BiSh’vat activities led by WBT clergy taught students about the significance of the new year for the trees. Tai Poznanski and Noam Yosefi, Brawerman’s amazing visiting volunteers from Israel, helped students feel close to traditions that mark the holiday in Israel. Surrounded by trees, WBT Camps Rabbi David Eshel and WBT Camps Assistant Director Ari Kaplan led the community in a camp-style t’filah filled with ruach. In addition to these enriching, educational moments, the camp day schedule included time for students to enjoy the ropes course and rock wall, play Gaga, tackle the inflatable obstacle course, try their hand at archery, and explore many other exciting camp-style activities led by faculty from both campuses.

The entire Brawerman Elementary School community emerged refreshed and reenergized after their special day connecting to nature and camp traditions. Brawerman says todah! to the Parent Association for its sponsorship of the day.
Our camp family is as strong as any family I know. You know how I know that? When our camp rabbi, David Eshel, knew he was going to be in Israel through the month of December, he thought it would be meaningful to have a reunion event, especially given the recent fire damage to our camps.

We have a Facebook group of our Israeli staff alumni from the last 20-plus years. Just a few weeks prior to the reunion event, Rabbi Eshel posted the details: “Friday, December 21. A hotel just outside of Tel Aviv. The conference room to the right of the check-in desk. T’filah. Shabbat dinner. Song session. Israeli dancing.”

One hundred and five Israelis who worked at camp from as far back as the summer of 2001 showed up. Some of them had been there for just one summer. Some of them brought their significant others. Some of them brought their children.

Now there are more enjoyable ways to spend your time than driving nearly three hours through Israel just before Shabbat. But anyone who has been to camp also knows that there are few more enjoyable ways to spend Shabbat than at camp. That night we prayed, sang, and danced the way we have for decades.

That night with our family and friends, we shared the love and joy that camp fosters. That night I became certain that camp will come back stronger than ever.

You know how I know that? Because that night, it wasn’t winter, and I wasn’t in a conference room at a hotel in Tel Aviv. It was summer, and I was at camp.

- Ari Kaplan, Assistant Director

The love and support you’ve shown since the fires are proof that camp is truly wherever we are. Camp creates lifelong friends, helps kids discover who they really are, and builds a community that loves each individual for their true self. We’re energized to keep fostering life-changing experiences in this new chapter of our camps’ history. We promised #CampNeverStops, which is why...

We’re excited to announce that Summer 2019 for both Camp Hess Kramer and Gindling Hilltop Camp (clap clap) will be at Cal State University Channel Islands!

The newest campus in the Cal State system is beautifully situated just 15 minutes north of Camp. Modern, scenic, warm and inviting, this site allows us to retain our outdoor programs while also embracing the state-of-the-art facilities a college campus offers. A combination of intimate activity spaces and large-scale natural settings gives us an exciting opportunity to bring the magic of camp to a new, yet similarly coastal home. The dedicated campus police will ensure your children are safe and carefree in private-access living spaces and activity areas.

No words can describe the experience of sharing b’nei mitzvah in Israel with Wilshire Boulevard Temple students, their families, and Rabbi Eshel and his family. It was truly a special experience, and nine of the b’nei mitzvah student participants were from the Religious School! A big thank you to the Goldhirsh-Yellin Foundation, who provided a generous subsidy for all students having their Bar or Bat Mitzvah in Israel, in memory of Bernard and Wendy Goldhirsh.

Community is everything, and with Purim with a Purpose just around the corner, I hope you will continue to help support our efforts to reach more families and provide them with opportunities to participate in all that this community has to offer. There is so much for everyone. Sponsor Purim and “Buy a Bundle!” Support religious school scholarships while at the same time supporting Karsh clientele. If every family sponsors at least one bundle for $36, we will reach our goal! More information is available at wbela.org/purim.

Cathy Gordon, Head of Religious School
Every week, Karsh Family Social Service Center volunteers and Wilshire Boulevard Temple congregants spend an average of 50 hours as Navigators at the Karsh Center, nearly 70 volunteer hours making and sharing sandwiches at the People Concern and packing food bags that they distribute at the Leanse Ratner Food Pantry. They average 25 hours per week packing and delivering food bags and other critical items like diapers to clients through the Mobile Food Pantry. Across all of our efforts to feed those in need, volunteer time results in assuring that each week roughly 500 families and individuals rest easier knowing where their next meal is coming from.

Our dedicated volunteer attorneys, teachers, and conversation partners spend an average of 26 hours each week working with vulnerable families on legal cases, preparing students for their citizenship tests, and practicing English for job interviews and general access to resources.

During the annual Big Give, 460 individuals came together to prepare and share 1,000 Thanksgiving-meal bags for our neighbors, donate 48 pints of blood, and assemble more than 100 no-sew blankets. And in swift response to our community facing crises caused by the recent fires, volunteers brought 20 Thanksgiving bags to Camp staff and donated thousands of dollars in gift cards to help those impacted begin preparations for what’s next in their lives.

We are so proud of the impact our volunteers made in 2018, and the way that the Karsh Center continues to grow through this dedication. Imagine what we can do together in 2019!

What is the difference you want to make this year? Contact Elizabeth@karshcenter.org to learn more.

The Chorale Bel Canto Performs the Grammy Award-Nominated Annelies
Sunday, February 10 @ 4:00 p.m.

Most of us know the story of Anne Frank through her diary, a radio play, and film, television, and stage productions. In recent years, a new way to tell her story—Annelies, a Grammy Award–nominated oratorio based on her diary—has shined a new light on her heroic/tragic life.

Annelies was first performed in 2005 by the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra as part of the Home Office and the BBC National Holocaust Memorial. Her Majesty The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh attended that performance, as well as hundreds of Holocaust survivors in Britain. Of the concert premiere the following week, Daily Telegraph classical music critic Geoffrey Norris wrote, “The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra under Leonard Slatkin combined the diverse elements into a coherent context, and the standing ovation signified that the work had had its effect.”

The Chorale Bel Canto of Whittier will present Annelies in Wilshire Boulevard Temple’s historic Sanctuary at 4:00 p.m., Sunday, February 10. Founded in 1982 by a group of Whittier College Choir alumni, the Chorale has performed all over the world.

Audrey Irmas Pavilion donors describe their enthusiasm for Wilshire Boulevard Temple and how they envision the Audrey Irmas Pavilion will serve the community.

Cindy Broder
For the last 28 years, Cindy Broder has been a regular attendee at services and, more recently, at classes and other Temple activities. Her experience is both unique and uplifting.

“The community here at Wilshire Boulevard Temple has always embraced me,” she said. “The rabbis, Cantor Gurney, and members have always been kind and inclusive and made me feel part of the Temple family.”

Cindy grew up Southern Baptist in Mississippi and attended services three times a week plus “revivals.” Then many years passed before she would be in any sanctuary, so it took a while before she felt comfortable at services at the Temple. But, as she explained, slowly the words from the Torah readings began to sink in and resonate. “In Judaism, we reflect back on our lives each year to see where we missed the mark and how we can make amends, start anew, and become better, kinder, more caring and active people,” she said. “The expression tikkun olam becomes a working part of our lives. What better way to live?

About 20 years ago,” Cindy continued, “my mother passed from breast cancer. I was devastated. The very first call I received after returning from Mississippi was from Rabbi Leder: “Cindy, when are you coming in? I’m waiting to see you.” No clergy had ever done that for me. That was the moment when I knew I would become Jewish one day.”

On January 17, 2018, Cindy officially converted. When Rabbi Leder showed Cindy and her husband, Bob, the model for the Audrey Irmas Pavilion, it was an easy decision for them to support, and donate to, the project. “This new space is vital to the continued growth of our congregation,” Cindy said. “It is our responsibility and privilege to do what we can to help and support the Temple. What better way to contribute to the continuing growth of our Temple than by supporting the Irmas Pavilion?”

The Broders are involved in a number of philanthropic endeavors—in health care, education, the environment, and conservation. In addition to the Temple, particularly close to Cindy’s heart is her work with the Dian Fossey Gorilla Fund International, an organization committed to protecting and studying mountain gorillas, along with the Grauer’s gorilla of the Democratic Republic of the Congo.
