A Little Note...

I hope everyone enjoyed the unexpected snow day on Friday. I hate to say that winter is not done with us yet, but I am looking forward to the nicer weather this week (or at least the early part of the week). As I always tell the kids, we just need to be flexible and kind of roll with things, and they have really been great about that, especially given our erratic schedule changes. This month we will celebrate Valentine's Day, start our next novel study, and prepare Mass at the end of the month. Lots of fun things packed into a short month!
