8a. Report of the Superintendent

Highlights since our last board meeting:

Village School –Ms. Klinger-Rossi met Governor Christie at a little league baseball game. She approached him and asked if she could speak with him for a moment. Ms. Klinger-Rossi invited the Governor to come to her classroom to see what is involved in teaching a third grade class of 25 students with different learning needs. He agreed to come as long as the visit remained confidential. After speaking with different staff members, the visit was set for June 8th. Governor Christie read a story to the class and then the students were given an opportunity to ask the Governor questions.

Below is a sample of questions they asked:

One student asked the Governor what was the coolest part of his job, and Governor Christie responded, "Having dinner at the White House with the President and Mrs. Obama and all of the other governors in the nation."

"Another student asked what his major goal was and he responded, "To have everyone in New Jersey have a job."

The students asked about the hardest part of his job and he said that it was telling people, "No." One student asked what it was like when he first became Governor. Governor Christie explained that every day provides opportunities to learn.

One student asked what the best part of being Governor is and he said, "Visiting students in schools." He also likes to let students into his office when they are on tours of the State House where his office is in Trenton on the Delaware River.

Mrs. Duncan, Superintendent of Holmdel schools asked the last question before the Governor posed for pictures with the class. She asked Governor Christie why reading is so important to him that he would spend his time visiting Village School to read a book to our 3rd grade class. The Governor answered, that reading has always been very important to him and he encourages his children and all children to be avid readers.

Mrs. Klinger-Rossi and her class then presented Governor Christie with a certificate for excellence in reading!

On June 3rd, the teachers, principal, and "Sing like an Idol" camp participants from Village School performed a version of American Idol for Village School students. The students enjoyed seeing their teachers, building principal, and fellow students perform as a way to celebrate the school year and to promote school spirit. Dr. Riso, music teacher, coordinated this event. Then on June 8th, the "Sing like an Idol" camp participants performed for families and friends in a culminating event. This camp is part of the Primetime Camps, under the direction of Mr. Braun, made available to Village School students after school. Students met and rehearsed 1x per week for 8 weeks as preparation for this event.

Indian Hill School – All of the 6th grade classes took part in a great orientation at Satz School. They came back very excited about what lies ahead for next year. Patriotic Day was a huge success for the 4th grade students. The band/chorus groups did an amazing job showing off their growth through the course of the school year. Their concerts had everyone smiling ear to ear. Lastly, Field Days have been packed with sports, swimming, and relaxation. What a great way to wind down the school year with friends at the Holmdel Swim Club.

Satz School – Thirteen students from Mrs. Williamson's 7th grade Writing Lab class shared Children's Books they authored with students from Mrs. Remuzzi's 3rd grade class in Village School. Each of the 13 Satz students had an opportunity to read their book out loud to a different small group of students from the class. Both the Village and Satz students benefited greatly from this reading and sharing activity. It is the hope of both teachers to continue this kind of peer to peer interaction in the future.

America's Best High Schools: The List

Each year, Newsweek picks the best high schools in the country based on how hard school staffs work to challenge students with advanced placement college-level courses and tests. Just over 1600 schools— only six percent of all the public schools in the U.S.--made the list. This year's rankings have some fantastic new interactive features. We've teamed up with a data company called Factual to create individual profile pages for each school where students and faculty can comment and contribute. Check out the profiles by clicking on the name of any school in the list. America's Best High Schools: The FAQ

The methodology behind—and most frequently asked questions about—NEWSWEEK's list of America's best high schools.

From: <http://www.newsweek.com/2010/06/13/america-s-best-high-schools-faq.html>

How does the Challenge Index work?

We take the total number of Advanced Placement, International Baccalaureate or Cambridge (AICE) tests given at a school each year and divide by the number of seniors graduating in May or June. All public schools NEWSWEEK researcher Amy Novak and I could find that achieved a ratio of at least 1.000, meaning they had as many tests in 2009 as they had graduates, were put on the list on the NEWSWEEK Web site. Each list is based on the previous year's data, so the 2010 list has each school's numbers for 2009.

NEWSWEEK published national lists based on this formula in 1998, 2000, 2003, 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008 and 2009. In The Washington Post, I have reported the Challenge Index ratings for every public school in the Washington area every year since 1998. I think 1.000 is a modest standard. A school can reach that level if only half of its students take one AP, IB, or Cambridge test in their junior year and one in their senior year. But this year only 6 percent of the approximately 27,000 U.S. public high schools managed to reach that standard and be placed on the NEWSWEEK list.

To send a student off to college without having had an AP, IB, or Cambridge course and test is like insisting that a child learn to ride a bike without ever taking off the training wheels. It is dumb, and in my view a form of educational malpractice. But most American high schools still do it. I don't think such schools should be rewarded because they have artificially high AP or IB passing rates achieved by making certain just their best students take the tests.

NEWSWEEK and The Washington Post, however, have added a new statistic developed by the College Board that indicates how well students are doing on the exams at each school while still recognizing the importance of increasing student participation. It is the Equity and Excellence rate, the percentage of ALL graduating seniors, including those who never got near an AP course, who had at least one score of 3 or above on at least one AP test sometime in high school. That is the "E&E" on our list. "Subs. Lunch" on the list stands for the percentage of students who qualify for federally subsidized lunches, the best measure of the percentage of low-income students at each school.

The average Equity and Excellence rate in 2009 was 15.9 percent. In the 2010 NEWSWEEK list, we give the Equity and Excellence percentage for those schools that have the necessary data. We ask IB schools to calculate their IB, or combined AP-IB, Equity and Excellence rate, using a 4 on the seven-point IB test as the equivalent of a 3 on the AP.
