From the Administration

Hello Oak Hills Eagles:

This week completes the second Parent-Teacher Conference for the year. Parent-Teacher Conferences play an important role in the education process of each child. Thank you for attending and supporting your student and their teacher.

Last week we sent home a survey link about the EagleGram. We heard from a few of you that the link did not work. We think we fixed the problem. Will you try the link again and take the survey? We are interested in how you feel about this form of communication.

Counselor's Corner

For the month of February, we will be working on habit #5 "Seek First To Understand Then to be Understood." Students will learn how to listen to other's ideas and feelings and not interrupt. They will learn about seeing things from other perspectives. When we have conflicts with others, it is important to be a listener and show understanding for the other person. When we show understanding and validation to people, they are more likely to listen to us and see our perspective too. When everyone has the opportunity to share their voice, conflicts are minimized and solutions can take place. So get those listening ears turned up and focus this week on being the best listener YOU can be!!!

Soaring Students...

One of our 2nd Grade students, Ella Jensen, pictured below, won First Place in 3D Art for her Reflections entry this year. She is moving onto the State level in this category. We are so proud of her and her artistic expression with this year's Reflection theme. Nice work, Ella!

Miss Merrill and her students, pictured below, celebrated the 100th Day of school today. Boy, this year has really aged some of these kiddos! Happy 100th day of school to all of you.
