Description

Daily Reading/Writing in June

- Choose one or more of the books from the Common lit Website.
- Post your selection as an assignment in Google Classroom, by June 3.
- Read daily.
- Create a writer's journal in which you chronicle your reaction to the reading. Write every day, even if it is only a single sentence. Date each entry. Don't fudge it. If you don't write, don't pretend you did.
- Post your journal as an assignment in Google Classroom on or before July 1.

Read in July: A Sacred Trust, by Wayne King

- Read every day.
- Continue in your journal, every day.
- Write a response to the following prompt.
Novels often explore character relationships in greater depth than we see in poetry, short fiction or drama. Select a relationship from Wayne King's novel and write a well-developed essay which demonstrates the complexities of this relationship.
- Post a draft of your response piece and your journal in Google Classroom on or before August 1.

Read in August

- Read Sophocles' Three Theban Plays or Aeschylus' Oresteian Trilogy.
- Write every day in your journal.
- Develop an idea about the trilogy! What do these characters and their plots teach us about who we are?
- Post your draft and your journal in Google Classroom on or before September 1.

Throughout the Summer: Google+ Community Page

- Read the posted material on the AP Lit 19-20 Google+ Community page.
- Check this page weekly, commenting thoughtfully when prompted.
