

1868 - 1888

1868

Concurrent with the arrival of Frank Haven Hall as superintendent of School District 129, the first high school classes were held on the third floor of Old Stone School (the site of the current Todd Early Childhood Center). At that time, lower grades were taught on the first floor of the building.

Old Stone School

1870 The first west-side high school class, comprised of 5 students, graduated.

1884 Fire destroyed the Old Stone School building. It is quickly rebuilt on the same site and was renamed Oak Street School. The high school was located on the second floor.
