Garhett Wagers shakes the hand of recent graduate, Nathan Vu, '17

“Graduates, our core goal during your time here is to launch young men and women into high school, and beyond, equipped to lean on your strengths and recognize your challenges, to feel empowered in seeking help when needed, to make choices that are ethically grounded, and to own your authority as you grow to lead within the community.

A friend of mine said it best, “The goal of education is for a person to be comfortable in his own skin as that skin struggles to keep harmonizing itself with a challenging and changing world.” This won’t change in high school, and the good news is we won’t either. So, when you need to reconnect with a source of grounding for who you are are becoming, we will be here, welcoming you back, remembering your name, ready to celebrate your uniqueness. I’m proud of you and wish you all the best on the road ahead.”
