MAY CONTAIN PORCUPINE.

The fisher is a cat-sized weasel that lives in wooded areas in New England and elsewhere in the U.S. Along with the mighty mountain lion, the little fisher is the only predator that regularly preys on porcupines. When the porcupine shows the fisher the deadly quills on its rear, the fisher jumps completely over it to get face-to-face again, and repeats this tactic until the porcupine grows confused and tired and weakens.
