Summative Performance Credit Completion for an Excused Absence

Band performances demonstrate knowledge and technical fluency of the music studied in class. Additionally, summative performance attendance is an obligation that bonds all band members. If a student does not attend a performance and has filled out a conflict form within the required timeline, meets all of the criteria for a makeup, and is approved by the band director, that student may complete a makeup assignment to earn credit for the missed performance.

In order to make up a missed pep band performance, the student should:
- Create and submit via email a video recording of themselves playing three pep band tunes of their choice.
- The recorded performance should be at performance tempo and include all of the rests written in the part.
- The student may use a publisher's play along track as they play, but this should not be audible in the recording.
- The video performance will be graded based on the Habits Performance Rubric found on the High School Band website (under "Grading").

In order to make up a missed parade performance, the student should:
- Create and submit via email a video recording of themselves playing the parade tune(s). Percussionists should play the street beat as well.
- The recorded performance should be completed with the metronome. This should be audible in the recording.
- The recorded performance should be at performance tempo and include all of the rests written in the part.
- The video performance will be graded based on the Habits Performance Rubric found found on the High School Band website (under "Grading").

In order to make up a missed concert performance, the student should:
- Created submit via email a video recording of themselves playing all repertoire from the concert.
- The recorded performance should be at performance tempo and include all of the rests written in the part
- The video performance will be graded based on the Habits Performance Rubric found found on the High School Band website (under "Grading").
- The student should make an appointment to watch a video recording of the concert in the HS Music Office
- After watching the performance, the student should complete the WSMA Ensemble Critique Form (available at the make-up).
