Job Summary:

Wingate University's Department of Communication seeks a candidate with strong interest and ability in teaching undergraduate students and in serving as the department chair. The position is full-time and security-track as an Assistant or Associate Professor in journalism and public relations. The course load is 3-4 for department chairs; this includes introductory and advanced courses in journalism and/or public relations, and upper level special topics courses. Additional consideration will be given to candidates with a sports-reporting background and experience as a department chair or academic coordinator.

Minimum Requirements:

Qualifications for the position include an earned terminal degree in communication, journalism, public relations, or a related field.

Salaries and benefits at Wingate are competitive and commensurate with experience.

Please submit a cover letter, CV, administrative interests, teaching statement, unofficial transcripts, and names of three references. Describe your interests/experience in administrative work and your leadership style. Please include in the teaching statement titles and brief descriptions for at least two courses that you could offer that would be of interest to students as electives for Communication majors/minors. Wingate's diverse student body includes a high representation of first generation students, Pell grant recipients, and students of color. Also include in your teaching statement or cover letter your experience working with similar student populations and pedagogical strategies to foster student success. Review of applications will begin November 1st and will continue until the position is filled. Send all documents in one .pdf file to Ms. Ashley Jackson, HR Generalist, at HR@wingate.edu.
