Lois Dodd & Friends: Painting in Blairstown

November 18-December 21; reception: December 5

New York City-based landscape painter (and mother of Blair architecture teacher Eli King) Lois Dodd will showcase her work alongside that of more than a dozen of her artist friends, including Paul Carrellas, David Dewey, Jeffrey Epstein, Daniel Finaldi, Joseph Fiore, Leslie Hertzog, Julie Jankowski, Lynn Kotula, Barbara Kulicke, Arthur Kvarnstrom, Elizabeth O'Reilly, St. Clair Sullivan and former Blair fine arts teacher Rita Baragona. Ms. Dodd transforms the ordinary into poetic moments filled with light and color, exhibiting her work in New York City, across the U.S. and internationally.

Lydia Richardson '20 submitted a concentration portfolio for Blair's AP photography class focused on the power of color. According to Lydia, color "brings the world to life and makes up all of the beauty we see in the things we love most." Dear members of the Blair community,

All In, Blair Academy's Strategic Plan for 2018 to 2025, charts an exciting course for the important and inspired work we will undertake as we write the next chapter in our great School's nearly 175-year history. Enthusiastically approved by the Board of Trustees at its spring 2019 meeting, our strategic plan builds upon the growth and success Blair has achieved over the past two decades. Honoring and amplifying our core values of relationship-based learning and superior academic preparation, more than 60 Trustees, parents, alumni and faculty members collaborated over the past year to create this plan, which focuses on four key priorities: faculty talent and excellence, forward-thinking programs, our historic and state-of-the-art campus, and Blair's long-term financial strength.

Our plan focuses first and foremost on people and the powerful teacher-student relationships that form the foundation of great learning and make the Blair experience life-changing. These impactful relationships develop because our outstanding teachers are dedicated to knowing our students well and creating a richly diverse, dynamic and inclusive community where they are challenged and supported in every endeavor. This, in turn, enables our students to more authentically and deeply know themselves so they can make a difference in the lives of others on this campus and far beyond.

Thus, we are committed to recruiting, retaining and investing in the most talented teachers and professional staff, and empowering them with the most effective training, the latest research and the resources they need to do their best work. Such hiring is critical to preparing our students to not only navigate the complex 24/7, global society beyond Blair but also to do so as grounded, resilient, joyful and purposeful young people. Moreover, we are committed to providing financial aid to students from all backgrounds, so they too can experience the exceptional relationships, robust and cutting-edge programs, and the diverse and supportive community that distinguish Blair.

Of course, any plan for Blair's future must consider our beautiful campus, and herein we enumerate several initiatives—some of which are already complete or in progress—designed to further amplify our mission and enhance the experience of learning and living at Blair. Finally and importantly, this plan serves as a commitment to offering an exceptional Blair experience for generations to come by raising endowed funds to support our people, programs and campus and secure the School's financial future.

We would like to thank the members of the Blair community who diligently served on the strategic plan working groups, participated in meetings and calls, and attended site visits at a variety of our peer schools. Their expertise and input were invaluable in crafting this strategic plan, and their care for Blair Academy is inspirational. This is a dynamic and evolving blueprint for Blair's future, especially as we look to our 175th anniversary in 2023 and beyond. We are excited and gratified to bring it to fruition.

BLAIR ACADEMY
STRATEGIC PLAN 2018-2025

An aerial photograph of the Blair Academy campus. The image shows several large, multi-story stone buildings with multiple chimneys, surrounded by lush green lawns and mature trees. A winding path leads through the grounds. In the background, a golf course and more residential-style buildings are visible under a clear sky.

we appreciate our students for who they are, what they stand for and all they can achieve. Our faculty know our students well and use that knowledge to imbue individual experiences with a shared commitment to becoming one’s best self. Strong relationships between teachers and students lead to exceptional learning, and through these meaningful connections, we empower our students to become persons of great accomplishment, character and passion.

Blair is and must continue to be a leader in education. We emphasize innovation, collaboration and key leadership competencies across all disciplines, setting the standard for college preparation and inspiring lifelong learning. In our vibrant, inclusive community, kindness and competition go hand-in-hand, and we prepare our students for success in an always-evolving, globally connected world.”

—Chris Fortunato, Head of School

FACULTY TALENT & EXCELLENCE

GOAL:

Recruit, retain and develop diverse and talented faculty who embrace our mission of knowing our students; share our commitment to excellent and innovative teaching and coaching; and have the training, resources, and time to thrive professionally and personally.

Teachers who challenge and connect with students as scholars, mentors, coaches and leaders are Blair's most powerful asset. We must invest in attracting and supporting gifted faculty who are committed to boarding school teaching careers at Blair and whose multifaceted identities and experiences create a superior learning environment for a diverse student body.

We will continue to foster a rich and rewarding student-centered professional environment that supports the best and brightest teachers from different disciplines and industries as they devote time to their craft; develop skills, pedagogies and partnerships beyond Blair; and model fulfilling personal lives and well-being for our students. This will enable us to best prepare our students to navigate a complex global society as effective communicators, collaborative and imaginative problem-solvers, and discerning thinkers.

INITIATIVES:

Recruiting & retaining top talent

- Enhance faculty compensation and benefits to reward excellence and to reflect the competitive market for talented independent school teachers.
- Ensure that Blair's faculty more fully reflects the diversity of race/ethnicity, identity, background and experience of Blair's student body, alumni/ae and families.
- Hire additional teachers to meet the evolving needs of our programs and to create the conditions that best allow faculty to know our students very well and to nurture their own personal and professional growth.
- Build an instructive and engaging teaching fellowship program to attract and develop energetic and talented young faculty from top colleges.

Promoting professional development & honoring excellence

- Offer a comprehensive array of faculty training opportunities, including in-depth summer teaching institutes, educational travel, professional conferences, and graduate and professional studies.
- Support faculty through a growth-oriented feedback and evaluation process based on the latest research and best practices.
- Establish new endowed faculty chairs that recognize outstanding teachers and provide additional compensation, growth and leadership opportunities.

FORWARD-THINKING PROGRAMS

GOAL:

Prepare students to confidently navigate life in college and beyond through programs that emphasize health and well-being, diversity and inclusion, and meaningful connections between classroom work and real-world issues.

Student health & well-being

Given the ubiquity of technology and the increasingly rapid pace of life and change in society, today's adolescents face a unique blend of social/emotional pressures and moral challenges. Through programs that emphasize personal wellness, character, values, kindness and moral leadership, we must position our students to navigate the challenges of adolescence and develop a strong sense of self, values and place in the world.

We will support students in becoming resilient, self-aware and confident young adults who possess the social, emotional and leadership tools they need to build successful and fulfilling lives.

INITIATIVES:

- Expand and implement research-based programs, curricula and services that support student physical and emotional health, positive relationships and resilience.
- Develop a comprehensive academic support office to foster critical study and organizational skills and to counsel students of all learning styles.

Diversity & inclusion

Belonging, understanding and empathy are hallmarks of Blair's culture that foster authentic enthusiasm for working with and learning from individuals of diverse backgrounds. In an increasingly interconnected and complex world, it is essential to deepen our students' abilities and give them opportunities to meaningfully communicate, collaborate and strategically leverage the power of diverse teams.

We will build upon Blair's inclusive culture by affording students and faculty enhanced skills, training, experiences and ideas that empower them to build meaningful relationships across lines of difference and more fully understand the ever-changing world around them.

INITIATIVES:

- Enhance training, research and programming that support a positive and inclusive campus climate, faculty efficacy and student learning.
- Devote additional resources to support school-wide committees and programs that further foster a dynamic and diverse environment and train our students to become smart global citizens.

College counseling

We are committed to providing a holistic and highly personalized college counseling experience to meet the ever-shifting demands of an increasingly complex and hypercompetitive undergraduate admission process. As we prepare our graduates for excellent college outcomes, we help them discover the schools that fit them best and at which they will thrive.

We will provide comprehensive guidance and advocacy based on best practices to meet the evolving realities of the college admission process.

INITIATIVES:

- Develop and implement a comprehensive college counseling strategic plan and a flexible annual plan of programs, resources and travel.
- Enhance communication with students and parents, including by providing a regularly updated guidebook that details our college counseling approach. (first edition completed in 2018)

- Increase support for Blair counselors to attend professional conferences and travel to colleges to forge relationships with higher education professionals at a broad range of institutions.

External partnerships

By establishing partnerships with alumni and professionals from higher education and various industries, we will create more opportunities for experts and mentors to become meaningfully involved in and inspire our students' learning and amplify the real-world impact of our project work.

We will establish partnerships with experts and organizations beyond Blair that enhance learning by connecting classroom work to real-world issues.

INITIATIVES:

- Hire faculty who will continue to build and manage close partnerships with higher education institutions and professionals across industries to enhance learning.
- Devote additional programmatic resources to support a rich slate of speakers, scholars- and artists-in-residence, travel, research, internships, fellowships and service-learning opportunities.

OUR CAMPUS

GOAL:

Create facilities that amplify Blair's educational mission and enhance the academic, artistic, athletic and residential experience of students and faculty.

With relationship-based learning and superior academic preparation ever at the heart of the Blair experience, Armstrong-Hipkins Center for the Arts (1997), Annie Hall (1999), Hardwick Hall (2008), Blair Commons (2008), and Kathryn and Lakeside halls (2015) have provided spaces where faculty members know, teach, train and support students across all dimensions of the Blair experience.

In 2017, we celebrated the opening of the Chiang Center for Innovation and Collaboration, an open-architecture, technology-rich learning hub and home to Blair's fine arts and technology departments, and Weber Hall, repurposed to optimize the teaching of mathematics. These outstanding academic facilities have already begun to bring the campus aspect of this strategic plan to vibrant life. As we look to the next decade, we will continue this important work through projects that address current and future needs.

The Chiang Center for Innovation and Collaboration

INITIATIVES:

- Renovate and enlarge Bogle Hall to enhance and expand the teaching of laboratory science and independent research. (completed 2019)
- Renovate the J. Brooks Hoffman '36 Health Center to create a comprehensive, modern health-and-wellness facility designed to best care for our community.
- Increase and diversify quality housing for Blair teachers, commensurate with their age and family needs, in order to attract superior teaching candidates and retain the best “triple-threat” teachers who also coach, lead activities and work in Blair’s dormitories.
- Construct a seasonal winter sports complex, available during the coldest months of the year, to enhance students’ athletic experience and bring the entire community together for activities and events. (completed 2018)
- Create an indoor golf training center where team members can practice year-round. (completed 2018)
- Further enhance the athletic experience through projects, including the construction of a second turf field, construction of a crew boathouse, and improvements to our golf course and Wallace Pool.
- Foster a safe and welcoming local community beyond our campus by supporting improvements to Blairstown.

BLAIR'S FINANCIAL STRENGTH

GOAL:

Secure Blair's financial foundation to provide the resources that will sustain our School now and in the future.

A strong endowment provides security for the future, a buffer against periodic economic downturns, and the flexibility to create and to respond to opportunities as they arise. We must continue to grow endowed funds so that we may more fully invest in our students, teachers, innovative programs and historic campus.

As we build our endowment for generations to come, we must also strengthen annual giving to the Blair Fund. Blair Fund gifts are critical to the School's operation and enhance the Blair experience for today's students and teachers by supporting financial aid, extracurricular activities, service and leadership opportunities, and many more everyday needs.

INITIATIVES:

- Grow endowed scholarship support so that we can continue to bring a diverse, talented student body to Blair by offering generous and necessary financial aid.
- Expand endowed support for programs and activities across the entire spectrum of Blair's curricular and extracurricular program to ensure that both new and long-standing meaningful experiences are fully supported and available to every student.
- Grow endowed support for facilities to provide for maintenance, technological upgrades, and preservation of our campus and its new and historic buildings.
- Increase support of the Blair Fund to $3 million annually to fund critical needs.
- Embark upon a comprehensive five- to seven-year fundraising campaign to support the four priorities of the strategic plan and lead to even greater long-term strength and sustainability for Blair, which will celebrate its 175th anniversary in 2023.

To achieve the vital objectives of our 2018-2025 Strategic Plan, Blair will embark upon a comprehensive fundraising campaign. Together, as alumni, parents and friends of the School, we can ensure that the Blair experience is even more enriching and impactful for generations of students and that our School is stronger than ever as we approach our 175th anniversary.

ALEXANDER J. SLOANE '70

INVESTMENT INDUSTRY SUCCESS LEADS TO HISTORIC INVESTMENT IN BLAIR STUDENTS

Alex Sloane has given back to Blair Academy enthusiastically and generously over the years. A Trustee for more than a decade and class representative since 2007, he counts the School among his top philanthropic priorities. His many gifts to Blair include the Sloane Tennis House and three named tennis courts; the Hardwick Hall clock tower named for beloved history teacher Paul White; and, perhaps the most meaningful of all, three endowed scholarships that provide the opportunity of a Blair education to deserving students each year.

In addition, Alex made a provision in his will for Blair Academy to continue its educational mission for future generations by including a significant bequest to the School. This and all of his giving to Blair have been inspired by his desire to share his success with the institutions that believed in him during his own student days and to ensure that the opportunity of a boarding-school education is readily available to boys and girls from all backgrounds who will truly benefit from the experience.

Alex's own Blair experience took place in the late 1960s, a time characterized by a campus-wide formality that he says is hard to imagine today. His grandfather, Ward Chamberlin, class of 1899 and a World War I recipient of the Distinguished Service Cross, had thrived at the School, and this had influenced his mother's choice of Blair for Alex's high school years.

"I arrived as a freshman, not yet 12," he reminisced. "Coat and tie were mandatory at meals and classes, and we were required to attend School assembly and Chapel every morning." His first two years proved challenging, but "Blair was patient," and he became a serious student as a junior and senior. Among the kind and engaged teachers he encountered at Blair, history teacher Paul White was especially impactful. "He noticed that I had turned things around and took me under his wing," Alex said. "I loved history and was eager to learn in his classes."

From Blair, Alex earned a bachelor's degree in history at the University of Virginia and, in 1980, an MBA at New York University. A successful career in the investment industry enabled him to give back to each of his alma maters, especially by providing funds for scholarships. "It's a pretty

A Transformative Planned Gift for Blair Academy

Alex Sloane has generously pledged a third of his estate (a planned gift valued at approximately $10 million) to Blair, representing the single-largest donation in the School's history. Its impact will resonate across generations of Blair students. Intended solely for the support of scholarship aid, this extraordinary generosity will fully fund the Blair experience for hundreds of students who would not otherwise have the opportunity to attend Blair. Alex's support is not only transformative for Blair Academy—it opens the door to a transformative education and a lifetime of learning and achievement for deserving young people.

"We are deeply grateful for Alex's dedicated service as a Trustee and his exceptional philanthropy over many years," said Head of School Chris Fortunato. "As a benefactor of scholarship aid, he is leading the way to a bright future for Blair's diverse and inclusive community and a life of unlimited possibility for the students who benefit from his generous support." ■ simple concept,” he explained. “I wanted to give those who may not be able to afford it the same opportunity I had been given.”

Fast forward to today, and Alex is delighted to return to Blair each fall for the annual Scholarship Dessert Social, where he speaks to many of the School’s named scholarship recipients and spends time with the “bright, eager and enthusiastic” students he sponsors. “The Blair experience can be just the ticket that allows kids to make the most of themselves,” he said. “I want to make sure that experience is open and available to students who will benefit most from it.”

As his 50th reunion approaches in 2020 and the School embarks on its ambitious All In Strategic Plan, which will guide its course and direction for the next five to seven years, Alex shared some final thoughts about giving to Blair. “The greatest misconception out there is that Blair is an elite school only for the privileged,” he said. “I see Blair as a serious institution that benefits society as a whole. By its very existence, the School gives many deserving young men and women a chance to succeed that would be otherwise denied to them.” As for planned gifts, he concluded, “There is no better—or more painless—way to give back than to allocate a part of your estate to the institutions that helped you along the way.” ■

SERVE AN ACE FOR BLAIR BY JOINING THE JOHN C. SHARPE SOCIETY

Careful planning and commitment by generations of Blair community members have consistently helped the School to compete at the highest level. Help keep the ball in play by considering making a gift that costs nothing during your lifetime, but that gives an advantage to the next generations of Bucs. Adding a few words to your will, or designating Blair as a beneficiary of your IRA or life insurance policy are simple ways to, like Mr. Sloane, help guarantee Blair’s advantages of a commitment to offering financial aid for students in need to pursue educational excellence in our close-knit community, state-of-the-art facilities and one-of-a-kind, beautiful campus.

Three Academic Building Projects Completed in Three Years

With the dedication of the newly enlarged and renovated Bogle Science Center on October 19, the Blair community celebrated the completion of the School's third academics-focused building project in the past three years. The Bogle Science Center's state-of-the-art labs and classrooms are the home of Blair's science department, while the newly co-named Chiang-Elghanayan Center for Innovation and Collaboration (see sidebar) houses technology and fine arts programs in its soaring, technology-rich spaces and Weber Hall is optimally equipped for the teaching of mathematics.

Since opening in fall 2017, the Chiang-Elghanayan Center and Weber Hall have been fully utilized by the Blair community, and the excitement over the Bogle Science Center's new labs and classrooms was evident as students and teachers began classes this fall (see story on page 78). "We are deeply grateful to the many generous donors who supported these academic projects," said Chief Advancement Officer Craig Hall, who noted that contributions for the three buildings topped $19 million. "Their completion dovetails with the objectives of the School's 2018-2025 Strategic Plan, All In, and we are looking forward to further amplifying the Blair experience with future campus projects and support for faculty and students." ■

As the Bulletin went to press, Head of School Chris Fortunato announced a generous gift from brothers K. Thomas Elghanayan '62 and Frederick Elghanayan '66 to co-name the Chiang-Elghanayan Center for Innovation and Collaboration. The Elghanayans' contribution celebrates their pioneering vision as builders and innovators and honors their family's Blair legacy, which includes a total of seven Blair graduates. Read more about this significant and deeply appreciated gift on Blair's website and in the winter/spring 2020 Blair Bulletin.

If you would like to support campus building projects, including the Bogle Science Center, Weber Hall and the Chiang-Elghanayan Center for Innovation and Collaboration, please contact Chief Advancement Officer Craig Hall at (908) 362-2032, or hallc@blair.edu.

Favorite Places on CAMPUS

by
Suzy Logan '99

Generations of Bucs remember the very first time they drove up the front hill of campus and took in the beauty of Blair Academy, as if it were straight out of a Hollywood movie: impeccably manicured grounds, blooming flowers, and sunlight filtering through the shade of the venerable trees across the School's 463 acres. Smiling students and teachers warmly welcoming you to campus and answering questions about life on campus and the unparalleled opportunities for learning that Blair offers as it broadens horizons and introduces new perspectives.

No matter what year we graduated, each of us has a favorite place on campus, whether it be an iconic and historic building or one of Blair's newer, state-of-the-art facilities. I asked current students, fellow alumni/ae, parents, faculty and staff members, and faculty children to share their favorite places with me, and their answers run the gamut from buildings that have been renovated and rebuilt to secret gardens to the "Bowl" where so many have played and watched games over the years. I hope you enjoy this tour-of-campus trip down memory lane as much as I did!

And, for the record, my favorite place on campus is Locke Hall, the place where I met my lifelong Blair friends—with whom I still keep in touch regularly all these years later!

THE OLD CONCRETE BLEACHER SUPPORTS ACROSS THE ROAD FROM HAMPSHIRE FIELD

They are old and historic, and I wonder, what did the area look like when the bleachers were in use? What did the playing fields look like back then? What sport was watched from the bleachers? For the same reason, I once climbed the hill above the eighth hole of Blair's golf course to find the original tee.

INSLEY PORCH

My friends and I spend a lot of time here, and it has become a home base for everything we do—tackling homework, playing spike ball, eating ice cream and catching up with classmates—so many of my favorite Blair moments have happened on the Porch. It faces the front hill and looks out on to Blairstown, and is next to one of the pathways, so the people who pass by often join in your fun. The memories I've made in this special place are ones I truly cherish. The Insley Porch may seem ordinary, but it is incredibly special. If you haven't already, go spend an afternoon on Insley Porch. Play games, do work or get to know somebody new. I promise you won't regret it.

THE ROBERT J. EVANS OPEN AIR THEATRE

I love it here, not just because my father's name is on it, but because it is beautiful, surrounded on three sides by the stream that feeds Blair Lake, as well as Blair Lake. Students should check it out—or, better yet, come to see the spring shows produced out there—because any time spent by the Lake on our campus is time well spent. I also like that we do shows outside the way the Greeks, Romans and Shakespeare's company did.

THE READING ROOM IN TIMKEN LIBRARY

Standing here on the library's second floor, one senses great serenity while taking in an awesome view of the entire building. As an old Blair graduate, I know that Timken Library was once known as Memorial Hall—and that the interior looked remarkably different. In the former building's second-floor auditorium, we attended Chapel Monday through Friday and enjoyed student plays performed on the stage that is now the Reading Room. The space the Reading Room now occupies was also where I received my Blair diploma at graduation. That's why it is a quiet place to study and meditate, but also a place that reminds me of warm memories.

BLAIR LAKE

Having grown up as a son of a Blair teacher, there are many places on campus that bring back wonderful memories. Certainly, one of them is Blair Lake. In the spring and summer, it was a favorite spot to get away from everything and to fish and look for frogs and turtles. In the winter when it was frozen solid, we had fun putting on ice skates or doing some ice fishing.

CLINTON HALL

To me, it has always been the “heartbeat” of campus, a place with a special feeling to it. From the first floor, where you hear different languages being spoken and, recently, the faculty workroom where the mail comes daily, to the second-floor history classrooms and “main” offices, to the upstairs Chesnut Chapel and English and religion and philosophy courses taking place there. Students spend many hours learning in Clinton Hall... they’ll appreciate walking the halls again when they come back for visits, Alumni Weekend, or, who knows, to teach here in the future!

THE THIRD-FLOOR ART STUDIO IN THE CHIANG CENTER FOR INNOVATION AND COLLABORATION

Even though I don’t take art and am honestly not a very good artist, this is just a fun place to hang out. I think a lot of non-art students overlook this hidden gem, but it is a really a fun place to hang out and just chill with some of your closest friends. During the fall and winter, we would go up, connect our speaker to music and just draw random doodles. It’s a great place to paint together or listen to music or do homework on Sundays. It is not really about how your artwork turns out but how you feel after, whether that feeling is relaxed, accomplished or connected.

INSLEY LAWN

I love being able to eat ice cream after dinner on Insley lawn with family and friends when it's nice out. The lawn is where we play tree-to-tree or make little fairy gardens under the big oak tree. I find that when I have a stressful or long day, playing outside here allows me to forget and just have fun. It is a great place to play Frisbee and spike ball, and we never mind if students join our game. School might not always be fun, but little moments like these are what make our home at Blair special.

THE BASEMENT OF DAVIES HALL

It is hard to choose just one: The places that stand out to me are Blair Falls and the poetry garden/reading space between the front hill and Clinton Hall. But I have the fondest memories from the basement of Davies Hall. At that time, it was impossible for Black/Latino students to get a haircut while at Blair, so I quickly learned how to cut hair and spent three-and-a-half years providing haircuts to just about every student at Blair who didn't want to brave the local barber in town. We had a great thing going, and the basement of Davies Hall served as an awesome barber shop—it was our agora and safe space. We would head down on a Sunday mid-morning after brunch with a sound system; everyone had their Case Logic CD book, and we'd line up albums, talking about our lives at and away from Blair. Even students who were not getting haircuts would come to simply hang out, listen to music and enjoy each other...and the food my mom had dropped off for us, usually mac 'n cheese. Sadly, Davies is now gone. But I am thankful and blessed to have three bricks from that building now adorning my young son's bedroom wall. Thank you, Blair!

I hope today's students find and create spaces for fellowship, reflection and pontification. The world has many needs, questions to answer and problems to solve. As Blair graduates, we are undoubtedly prepared and seasoned to take on the most pressing and ambitious of them. How we do this is not always found in the academic curriculum at Blair, but in our synthesis of the entirety of our Blair experience in relation to the world around us.

Blair Celebrates
171st
Commencement

Pomp, circumstance, happy graduates and proud parents were the order of the day at Blair's 171st commencement on May 23. The tradition-filled ceremony was held on Sharpe House lawn, where families and friends celebrated bright futures ahead for Blair's 131 graduates.

Following the traditional opening procession by faculty, Trustees and the class of 2019, Head of School Chris Fortunato and Senior Class Council members Justin Leung '19 and Jillian Rogers '19 welcomed guests, thanked all those who made students' Blair experience possible and reflected briefly on the momentous occasion.

Presentation of faculty awards followed, after which three top student prizes were accorded (please see list of awardees on page 30).

Anthony Moore '19 and Linda Tong '19 then shared the honors as this year's recipients of the George P. Jenkins '32 Prize and the 2019 class speakers. Anthony spoke gratefully about the warmth and kindness of the Blair community.

"Our time at Blair has been a privilege for many, many reasons, but the 131 brilliant, talented and unbelievably kind people I am lucky to call my classmates are what have made this place truly special," he said. "We have all been truly lucky to be part of this wonderful, amazing class."

In her remarks, Linda shared a "love letter" to Blair Academy. "As much as I love this place now," she said, "that wasn't always true." She described how she was terrified in her early days at Blair, but that the wise words of an upperclassman convinced her that she should make the most of her time on campus. The more she became involved, said "yes" to every opportunity and allowed herself to be vulnerable, the more she fell in love with Blair.

Finally, the moment the class of 2019 was eagerly anticipating arrived: the awarding of diplomas. Each senior crossed the stage as his or her name was read, and they exchanged hugs and handshakes with Mr. Fortunato, who addressed the graduates one final time before they headed out into world. He advised the class to remain optimistic, to be builders of society, and to extend the kindness and love they have known at Blair to all they encounter.

The traditional pennant presentation brought the ceremony to a close when Robert Jenkins '69, a member of this year's 50th-reunion class, handed the class of 2019 flag to Faith Marie Sanchez '19. The class of 2019 walked through the Arch one last time into the waiting arms of their cheering families and friends.

Congratulations, class of 2019!

2018-2019 Skeptics Culminates with John C. Bogle '47's Legacy in the World of Investing

As inventor of the index mutual fund and founder of The Vanguard Group, the late Chairman Emeritus of the Blair Board of Trustees John C. Bogle '47 was a financial industry titan and an unrelenting champion of individual investors. The Society of Skeptics celebrated Mr. Bogle's legendary accomplishments at its final meeting of the 2018-2019 academic year, when a panel of financial industry experts examined his towering legacy in the world of investing. The presentation was the annual Herman Hollerith Lecture on Innovation and Entrepreneurship, and more than 150 members of the Blair community packed the Chiang Center for Innovation and Collaboration for the April 30 event.

Gina Moore P'19, a licensed CPA and CFA charterholder and principal at investment advisor AJO, served as the evening's moderator, facilitating conversation with two panelists, both of whom knew Mr. Bogle. Joining Mrs. Moore on the dais were Joanne M. Hill, PhD, P'10, a 25-year Wall Street veteran who currently serves on the CFA Institute Research Foundation Board & Cboe Vest LLC; and F. William McNabb III, former chairman and CEO of The Vanguard Group.

Insight & Admiration

Mr. McNabb and Dr. Hill took turns at the podium, sharing insights about Mr. Bogle's much-admired personal characteristics and his pioneering career. As someone who worked closely with Mr. Bogle at Vanguard, Mr. McNabb described his former boss as "the great communicator" and a man who was constantly learning and teaching. He enumerated Mr. Bogle's "big ideas" that led to Vanguard's phenomenal success and shared two additional points that he described as "Jack's even greater gifts:" his sense of "creative destruction" that allowed Vanguard to evolve and adapt over the years, and his innate belief that "even one person can make a difference," a belief that is a pillar of Vanguard's corporate culture.

"Blair produced one of the most iconic, innovative and entrepreneurial individuals of the 20th and 21st centuries, and I know I feel very grateful for it," Mr. McNabb concluded.

Dr. Hill traced her connection to Mr. Bogle as a fellow member of the finance and investment industry; as a co-speaker on a Blair Alumni Weekend finance panel in 2009; and as a Blair parent whose daughter, Madeline Liro '10, was a classmate of Mr. Bogle's grandson, Christopher St. John '10.

Gina Moore P'19 served as moderator for the Bogle legacy Skeptics.

Her remarks centered on “St. Jack’s” reputation in the financial industry as a man who led a revolution in investing yet lived a personal and professional life of humility and integrity, and she shared the basics of mutual fund investing as well.

“It’s great to have such a role model here, to think about his legacy and think about what he meant for the School and for the industry,” Dr. Hill said, noting that she looked up to Mr. Bogle and that he made her proud to be part of the financial industry. “Jack’s legacy lives in all of you.”

The annual Herman Hollerith Lecture on Innovation and Entrepreneurship was established at Blair in 2001 by Richard Hollerith Jr., father of Susan S. (Hollerith) Cashin '85. The series is named in memory of Mr. Hollerith’s grandfather, Herman Hollerith, the son of German immigrants and an 1879 graduate of the Columbia College School of Mines. In 1890, Herman Hollerith developed an electrically driven census system that reads punch cards, and, 21 years later, his office machine business merged with Computing-Tabulating-Recording Co., which changed its name to IBM in 1924. The Economist magazine has named the punch card/data tabulation revolution one of the most significant innovations in the last 500 years.

Skeptics attendees warmly welcomed William Y. “Bud” Bogle ’45, brother of the late Chairman Emeritus John C. Bogle ’47.

A Fitting Conclusion to Skeptics

Mr. Bogle’s brother, William Y. “Bud” Bogle ’45, was a special guest at Skeptics, and he enjoyed dinner with the 2018-2019 Bogle Brothers Scholars earlier in the evening. History teacher and longtime Skeptics coordinator Martin Miller, PhD, introduced Mr. Bogle as the presentation concluded, and the audience stood to welcome him with enthusiastic applause.

Dr. Miller expressed gratitude to Dr. Hill, who was instrumental in engaging the speakers for the evening. He noted that, in 2002, John C. Bogle was the first speaker in Blair’s Herman Hollerith Lecture series. “Jack Bogle was the ultimate innovator with his invention of the index mutual fund,” Dr. Miller said. “With his passing in January at the age of 89, it is absolutely fitting that we focused on his legacy at our final Skeptics of the year.” ■

Student Researchers Consider Impact of E-Cigarettes & Vaporizers on Health & Well-Being

A group of 10 sophomores, juniors and seniors spent the 2018-2019 school year learning about health and policy issues associated with the use of e-cigarettes and vaporizers as part of Blair's first-ever research fellows program. In partnership with a renowned public health expert from Boston University School of Medicine (BUSM), the student researchers examined the influence and impact of such devices on the health and well-being of high school students and young adults.

Over the course of the year, the group worked to better understand the science behind vaping and the challenges and opportunities associated with addressing the problem, tackling a wide range of projects ranging from producing podcasts and reviewing scientific data to conducting individual research and sharing their findings with their peers and teachers.

"The Food and Drug Administration has made it clear that the use of such devices among adolescents has grown to epidemic proportions, and recent statistics showed an 80-percent rise in teenage vaporizer use, making it a public health problem that affects every high school in America," said Head of School Chris Fortunato. "I am incredibly proud of this action-oriented group for bringing this complex issue further into the light and considering it from many different angles. In the process, they no doubt created something with a lasting legacy at Blair."

With support and guidance from Mr. Fortunato, English teacher John Redos '09 and Timken Library director

Ann Williams—as well as video conferences and phone calls with Michael Siegel, MD, MPH, a professor in BUSM’s Department of Community Health Services—the group considered ways to change adolescent behavior and educate their peers about the dangers of vaporizer use and abuse.

A Competitive & Influence-Oriented Program

Given the timeliness of the issue, it is not surprising that a large number of Blair students applied to be part of the pilot program when it was announced in spring 2018. Accepting only 10 students during the program’s inaugural year, Mr. Fortunato charged students with discovering compelling information on the topic and sharing it with the Blair community in a way that would have an impact.

That was one of the major reasons Ryan Green ’19 wanted to become involved. “I enjoy helping to create positive change and thought this could be a way to make a big difference in our community,” explained Ryan, whose individual project work led him to present to the Six Mid-Atlantic Boarding Schools (SMABS) deans of students about school policies related to vaping and to continue this work during an internship at the Department of Health and Human Services in Marin County, California, over the summer. “I learned how hard it is to actually write and enact formal policy and, despite working on this all year, feel like I have barely scratched the surface. The hardest part is the lack of physical research on what works because vaping has only become a major issue in the last couple of years.”

Enter Dr. Siegel, who worked with Blair’s coordinator of health education Erin Fortunato in Boston before she and her family came to Blair in 2013. Well regarded as one of the premier authorities on issues associated with tobacco, alcohol and firearms use, Dr. Siegel helped students understand the complex science and policy issues associated with this controversial public health topic.

Considering the Issue from Many Angles

The fact that Dr. Siegel is a vocal proponent of using e-cigarettes as a treatment for smoking cessation—while at the same time warning of dangers such as popcorn lung, cancers and nicotine overdose when used recreationally—illustrates the issue’s deep complexity. “Public health is a balancing act that requires weighing the benefits and costs of various approaches to dealing with a problem,” Dr. Siegel said. “We often have to make decisions in the absence of definitive scientific data, and how one uses the data that are available is critical.”

Many of the research fellows hadn’t previously considered the complex science behind vaping, and found Dr. Siegel to be an excellent resource as they built a strong knowledge base at the outset of the program. He also offered valuable insights about the importance of motivation and persuasion in public health campaigns. “Students were surprised to find that underscoring the health effects of such devices didn't convince users to stop, but they were more responsive when made aware of e-cigarettes' high nicotine levels and the idea that nicotine addiction takes away a degree of their freedom," said Mr. Fortunato.

Not surprisingly, Dr. Siegel's nuanced take on the issues deeply impacted students as they explored the emotional and mental components that drive teens' decision to vape.

"Hands down, my favorite part of this process was interacting with Dr. Siegel," said Katherine Holding '20, who spent the spring putting the finishing touches on a podcast she submitted to the National Public Radio podcast challenge that features Dr. Siegel and Mr. Fortunato discussing the benefits of vaping as a smoking cessation tool and its dangers when habitually used otherwise. "Interviewing him was one of the most interesting discussions of my life because we were able to transcend society's normal black-and-white understanding of vaping's place in society. Going into it, I had a demonized concept of Juul as a company, and, while that's still pretty much intact, Dr. Siegel exposed me to some of the more complicated considerations when it comes to regulation." Project-wise, Katherine added, Dr. Siegel helped her to explore and develop ideas, while on a personal note, he validated and encouraged her curiosity, giving her the confidence to step outside her "intellectual niche."

The fellows have enjoyed sharing their new perspectives and deepening understanding of the issues with their classmates at Blair and others at peer schools. At February's TEDx conference at Gill St. Bernard's School in Gladstone, New Jersey, for example, Tanner Humphrey '19 touched on what he has learned as part of the research fellowship in "From Tragedy to Triumph," a talk about his personal journey of coping with grief following his mother's death from lung cancer. Abby Morris '20 and Madina Shabazz '20, on the other hand, teamed up to provide insight on the use of vaping products among teenagers in "Vaping: A Teen Epidemic," a TEDx presentation that addressed health risks, government policies and product marketing strategies of vape companies.

Two months later, five students (Ryan, Abby, Tanner, Madina and Lucy Clayton '21) spent a day teaching health-and-wellness classes at The Hun School of Princeton, where they led candid student-only discussions about vaping and Juuls. Preparing for that visit—which some fellows hope becomes an annual event that ultimately spreads to all Mid-Atlantic Prep League (MAPL) schools—required a great deal of research on health effects, marketing campaigns and school policies. While there, the research fellows also had the opportunity to gather their own data about students' personal experiences with vaping, impressions of school policies and feedback about what could influence behavior change. "Hun students remarked that they felt comfortable participating in a conversation about vaping led by students their own age to whom they could relate," Abby said.

Coming away from those experiences with a new respect for how difficult public speaking and teaching can be, the students also got a firsthand look at effective communication techniques and classroom-management strategies. "The TEDx talks impressed me most," said Mrs. Williams. At Hun, she added, the research fellows "hit on just the right tone" to engage their peers and share scientific information with them.

Individual Project Work

As the spring semester came to a close, students presented the findings and outcomes of their individual project work in various venues.

The students who presented at Gill or taught at Hun summarized for their classmates what they took away from those experiences, while Chloe Park '20 presented a poster on the biochemistry and cellular processes involved in nicotine use and addiction at the Blair Science Expo at the end of the school year. Kathleen Devlin '20 took a broader view of addiction in general in a short film she produced and screened at Blair's annual Student Film Festival in

"We often have to make decisions in the absence of definitive scientific data, and how one uses the data that are available is critical."

—Dr. Michael Siegel, Boston University School of Medicine

early May, whereas Clearly Waldo '19 conducted general research to inform an op-ed she submitted to at least one local northwestern New Jersey newspaper, a piece she wrote with input from Cornell University Associate Professor of Communications Jeff Niederdeppe (a mentor at Mr. Redos' alma mater to whom he connected her at the start of the spring semester).

As for potentially lasting impacts, the outcomes of the research fellows' work could be far-reaching. Ryan and Tanner advocated for the creation of an annual cross-MAPL peer health education program in which each school would send student-teachers to the others to educate peers about vaping and other public health issues, and SMABS deans of students are considering Ryan's proposal that they create a uniform policy for discipline as it relates to vaping. Liam Junkermann '19 advocated for schools to institute health-center-sponsored vaping paraphernalia "buy-back" programs. And, armed with information gleaned from a review of recent literature and a field interview, John Hadden '21 developed a website for adolescents looking for help in understanding and fighting addiction to nicotine products.

At the Frontier

Mr. Fortunato and his colleagues look forward to building the research fellows program over time, likely with a continued focus on public health and controversial issues affecting the Blair community and the world beyond. Key elements will continue to be collaborating with experts outside of Blair, learning to communicate ideas to different audiences in ways that get their attention, practicing curating information, mastering research techniques and considering different perspectives—and, of course, encouraging students to integrate these lessons into future learning.

"The most valuable part of this experience is developing an intrinsic motivation to learn," said Mr. Redos. "When students get to college, their professors are not necessarily going to be experts in the fields or areas in which they are interested. They need to know how to get answers, gather information themselves and connect with people in positions of authority. Our research fellows had the opportunity to practice this, with guidance from Blair faculty, and will therefore be much more prepared to navigate life as undergraduates more successfully." ■

"Our inaugural research fellows made a positive impact, and I have no doubt that a few of their projects will be carried forward in the years to come."

—English teacher John Redos '09

Hospital Experience Gave Students a Close-Up View of Surgery

Six Blair students experienced an eye-opening day in the life of a surgeon in mid-April when they traveled to Northwell Health's Southside Hospital in Bay Shore, New York, to shadow gynecologic oncologist Dr. Benjamin Schwartz P'21. For a full day beginning at 7 a.m., the surgical scrubs-clad students and their chaperone, technology teacher Michael Garrant, rotated into the operating room and stood side by side with Dr. Schwartz and his medical colleagues as they performed robotic and conventional surgeries.

"I found the entire experience fascinating beyond all expectations, definitely an opportunity of a lifetime," said Kendrick Ng-Yow '19. "I shadowed a total of five different surgeries, the second one being the highlight of the day as I was able to observe a C-section birth. I was not at all expecting to hear the first cries of a child coming into this world, so that alone made the trip magical."

It All Started at Skeptics

The chairman of Southside's Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, Dr. Schwartz is a specialist in minimally invasive surgery. He spoke about his experience with robotic surgery at the Society of Skeptics in October 2018 and, as part of his visit, gave students the opportunity to test the daVinci® Surgical System, a leading-edge robotic platform designed to expand the surgeon's capabilities and offer different options for patients.

Students flocked to the Chiang Center for Innovation and Collaboration that autumn afternoon to try their hand at operating the daVinci® Surgical System. "There was so much interest and excitement among students that Dr. Schwartz generously offered to host a shadowing opportunity at Southside Hospital," Mr. Garrant explained. Students eagerly applied for the available spaces, and those who were chosen experienced an up-close view of the daVinci® system in the hospital's operating suite and much more.

An Incredible, Surreal, Amazing Day

“When we arrived at the hospital, we got our visitor badges and were escorted to Dr. Schwartz’s office,” recounted Essie Pasternak '19, whose interest in a possible medical career led her to apply for the trip. “After introductions, we were given scrubs to wear—and this is where it started to get interesting. Once we were gowned in sanitary jackets, hair caps, masks and booties, we proceeded upstairs to the operating room. Next thing I know, I’m in an OR and I’ve just witnessed the birth of a baby boy, the miracle of life...and it was absolutely beautiful.”

Throughout the day, Essie was captivated by the way the nurses and surgeons tirelessly handled their tasks and cared for their patients with smiles on their faces. “The extra time they spent with patients—going out of their way—has really stuck with me,” she continued. “At this point in my life, I am preparing for college and deciding what I would like to do with my future. After this day, I know I can change the world by becoming a surgeon, specifically in pediatrics. I now hope to change lives through medicine.”

Christina Enodien '20 especially appreciated the opportunity to stand alongside Dr. Schwartz as he performed robotic surgeries, while Emia Musabegovic '20 described the whole experience as one of the most incredible things she has ever done. “I observed six surgeries, three of which were done with the daVinci® Surgical System,” she said. “Having never had surgery myself, this was a new experience that I knew I couldn’t get anywhere else. Dr. Schwartz and his colleagues were excellent in answering all of our questions and explaining the processes while making sure we were comfortable. The atmosphere during the surgeries was incredible, especially for those of us with no previous medical exposure.”

Seeing how medical professionals work together as a team was a big takeaway for Madina Shabazz '20, who is also considering a future in healthcare. “We watched surgeries from just a few feet away, but there were large screens displaying what was taking place via cameras, so we could see everything—even if our view was obstructed—as the doctors all worked together,” she said. “This was truly an insightful look into the life of a surgeon, and it had to be one of the most surreal and eye-opening experiences I’ve ever had.”

Mr. Garrant noted that students learned about human anatomy and physiology as they stood alongside Dr. Schwartz and the nurses, physician assistants and anesthesiologists on the surgical teams. “They also had a chance to see how technology, particularly the daVinci® robot, operates in a surgical suite. There were many highlights throughout the day, and each student returned to Blair with amazing stories to tell.” ■

Celebrated a Lifetime of Memories

lair graduates representing eight decades traveled to Blirstown for Alumni Weekend 2019, held June 7 to 9. The campus sparked under sunny skies throughout the three-day event, as hundreds of alumni connected with classmates, friends and faculty to relive favorite memories and create some new ones, too.

“THERE WERE SMILING FACES EVERYWHERE THROUGHOUT THE WEEKEND, said Director of Alumni Relations Shaunna Murphy, who coordinated the event. “Alumni Weekend is such a special time for the entire Blair community. It was wonderful to see everyone enjoying themselves back on campus, whether they graduated 70-plus years ago or just a month ago.”

Weekend highlights included several athletic events, such as the Blair Cup Golf Scramble, 5K run, guided hike through the Siegel Property, rail trail bike tour, and alumni softball and lacrosse games. The Athletic Hall of Fame induction ceremony, honoring Gerald Knapp '54, Anne Cramer '75, Melissa (Paul) Erne '96, Royal Ivey '00 and Dion Lewis '09, brought a crowd to Hardwick Hall's performance gym on Saturday morning (see story on page 83). Later in the day, alumni also enjoyed the dedication of the plaque honoring Blair's world record marathon swim of 1971 and record-holders David Borow '72, John Greer '74, Andrew “Scott” MacLean '74 and Todd Ruppert '74.

Meanwhile, art aficionados delighted in the special Society of Skeptics featuring Charlie Ahearn '69 and John Ahearn '69. The twin artists presented a 50th-reunion talk on their New York City street sculptures and movies, and the event marked the first time in their successful 40-year careers that they appeared onstage together.

Alumni Weekend would not be complete without parties, and Blair grads especially enjoyed Friday night's All-Alumni Welcome Back Party, an under-the-tent event on Hardwick Lawn. Six alumni provided beverages and catering: Marianne Lieberman '79 (Maple Springs Vineyard), Tom Kehoe '83 (Yards Brewing Company), Mark McLean '98 (Remarkable Cuisine, LLC), Emily Downs '02 (Emily's Hearth), Shaun Mehtani '02 (Mehndi) and Matt Gallira '08 (Big Mozz, Inc.).

Throughout the weekend, the School also took the opportunity to honor the life and legacy of Board of Trustees Chairman Emeritus John C. Bogle '47, who died in January at the age of 89. His great love of Blair Academy and his illustrious career as founder of The Vanguard Group were showcased in a special exhibit in Timken Library, and Mr. Bogle was among the many alumni remembered at the annual memorial service on Friday evening.

With something for everyone, Blair's 2019 Alumni Weekend was certainly one of the best yet. Mark your calendar for Alumni Weekend 2020, which will be held June 5 to 7. It's never too soon to start planning a Blair reunion! ■

ALUMNUS OF THE YEAR

ROBERT VAN STONE '69

Bob Van Stone's love for Blair Academy stretches back to his childhood. His mother, Virginia, was the School's longtime registrar, and, as he grew up on campus, he appreciated Blair's warm and welcoming community. When he joined the class of 1969 as a freshman "day boy," his regard for the educational opportunity the School provided only grew. "Blair made me who I am," Bob has proudly claimed, and, fortunately for the entire Blair family, he has expressed his gratitude and love for the School that gave him his start in years of dedicated service.

Bob's engagement with Blair as an alumnus is multifaceted, and he approaches every activity or event with heartfelt enthusiasm and Buccaneer pride. As a member of 1969's 45th and 50th reunion committees, he devoted hours to class outreach and built excitement for the reunions through calls and meetings with old friends. He was instrumental in fundraising and organizing the "day boys" around the 2010 naming of Underwood Field in honor of beloved former faculty member Charlie Underwood. And Bob is a mainstay at Alumni Weekend every year, where he delights in engaging with alums from each class and runs the ever-popular Blair Cup Golf Scramble with a deft hand.

Never hesitating to say "yes" when asked to help move the School forward, Bob is a longtime member of the 1848 Society Committee and has served on the Alumni Board of Governors (BOG) since 2010. As BOG president for the past two years, he has been a patient, quiet, inclusive and open-minded leader who has successfully engaged alumni from every decade on the BOG and in alumni events across the country. That he has accomplished all of this—and more—while building a successful career in the financial industry speaks volumes about Bob's commitment to Blair Academy and to the value he places on his own Blair experience.

Happily for the School, Bob's wife, Marian Darlington, shares his love for all things Blair. Together, they cheer on Buccaneer athletic teams during meets, matches and games at home and away, and they are core members of the newly formed Greater Philadelphia Regional Chapter. They generously share their philanthropy with Blair as well, and have become members of the John C. Sharpe Society of planned givers. Through their estate and lifetime gifts, Bob and Marian will establish the Virginia Van Stone Memorial Scholarship in honor of Bob's mother and her 40 years of service to Blair.

This nod to Bob's past is a gift that will benefit students of the future, and it helps ensure that the place Bob considers "home" will always be the welcoming School he found it to be. As he celebrates his 50th reunion, surrounded by his Blair family, we are proud to recognize Bob Van Stone as the 2019 Alumnus of the Year. ■

To commemorate its 50th reunion, the class of 1969 created a unique and lasting legacy at Blair by establishing The Class of 1969 Faculty Wings Endowment Fund. The gift honors Blair's dedicated teachers by providing funds for rejuvenating travel and enrichment during school breaks. With more than $225,000 in gifts, pledges and planned gifts contributed by members of the class, the 33 classmates and their spouses who gathered on campus during Alumni Weekend joyfully celebrated their success.

Friday evening's 50th Reunion Dinner provided the perfect opportunity for '69ers to share stories about the faculty members who had inspired them, including history teacher Elliott Trommald, PhD, Hon. '65, English teacher Charlie Underwood, science teacher Laurence Joline and language teacher Ferd Marcial. The classmates were delighted to welcome several current faculty members to their celebration, each of whom thanked the class of 1969 for its generous gift and spoke about travel and educational opportunities that had enriched their teaching practices.

Throughout Alumni Weekend, the class of 1969 enjoyed special moments together. Several classmates played in the Blair Cup Golf Scramble, which was run by Alumni Board of Governors President Bob Van Stone '69, and a large contingent enjoyed the Society of Skeptics presentation by artists Charlie Ahearn '69 and John Ahearn '69. They also gathered on Saturday evening to watch the Belmont Stakes with classmate Dennis Drazin '69, advisor to the New Jersey Thoroughbred Horsemen's Association and Chairman and CEO of Darby Development, the operator of New Jersey's Monmouth Park racetrack.

"The class of 1969 will long be remembered for its commitment to Blair's faculty, thanks to The Class of 1969 Faculty Wings Fund," said Assistant Director of Advancement for Capital Giving Velma Lubliner, who worked with the reunion committee in the lead-up to Alumni Weekend. "Each year, when funds are awarded to an inspirational teacher for travel, educational opportunity, or just the chance to rest and relax away from campus, the classmates' Blair legacy will live on." ■

MARKETING MAVENS

JIMI LETCHFORD '99 & ALEXA GILMARTIN '08

AS CONSUMERS, WE ARE CONSTANTLY MAKING DECISIONS ABOUT PRODUCTS AND SERVICES ON WHICH TO SPEND OUR HARD-EARNED DOLLARS. BUSINESSES, OF COURSE, WANT TO INFLUENCE CONSUMERS' CHOICES, AND ONE OF THE WAYS THEY DO THAT IS BY TEACHING US ABOUT THEIR PRODUCTS THROUGH MARKETING.

Here, we profile Jimi Letchford '99 and Alexa Gilmartin '08, who share their experiences in marketing gleaned during careers with athletic-training phenomenon CrossFit and global beauty icon L'Oréal, respectively. Their paths since graduating from Blair are certainly different, but Alexa and Jimi have both landed in roles where their personal passions align with the brands they represent—and both value their Blair experiences that started them on the road to success.

WARRIOR WORKOUT

Jimi Letchford discovered CrossFit in 2004, when he was a Marine Corps infantry officer. About to serve two intense tours of duty in Iraq “hunting bad guys” in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom, he was then stationed at the Camp Pendleton, California, Infantry Training Battalion. And he was looking to regain his competitive, athletic edge.

Jimi had been an athlete all his life and a varsity wrestler at Cherokee High School in Marlton, New Jersey, at Blair during his postgraduate year and at the U.S. Naval Academy. Rigorous workouts and focused athletic training were part of his daily routine—until he graduated from the Naval Academy in 2003 and immediately began training to go to war. “When I arrived at my unit, I was responsible for 50 Marines, more responsible for them than I was for myself,” he said. “It was all too easy to shift away from the athletic lifestyle.”

At Camp Pendleton, one of his Marines recommended CrossFit. “I tried my first workout, and I loved it,” Jimi recalled. “CrossFit put me back in the competitive mentality.”

As he continued to “WOD” at his local “box”—i.e., complete the challenging Workout of the Day at the nearby CrossFit gym—Jimi realized the potential CrossFit held as a training tool for Marines. He designed a CrossFit regimen for every Marine in his unit, and their performance improved across the board. They exceeded physical fitness test standards, while experiencing fewer injuries; academic scores jumped 30 percent; and unit camaraderie improved remarkably, as the Marines bonded over the shared hardship of a tough CrossFit workout regimen.

His unit's stepped-up performance attracted the attention of U.S. Marine Corps Headquarters, and Jimi eventually found himself on a Marine Corps-funded fact-finding trip to a CrossFit seminar, charged with learning more about the training program and providing detailed feedback. Already familiar with the WODs, Jimi discovered the science behind them, and, as he put it, “really fell in love with CrossFit” that weekend.

Over the next several years, Jimi continued to implement more and more elements of CrossFit into Marine Corps infantry training, but when his military commitment was up in 2008, he decided that because he had a young family it was time to find something new. That something turned out to be CrossFit.

UNIQUE MARKETING STRATEGY

Jimi's first job in the company was running weekend CrossFit training seminars; he was one of only 10 people at the time who traveled the globe in that role. Since then, he has advanced steadily by taking on any project that has come his way—including starting up CrossFit's 501(c)3 nonprofit, establishing strategic alliances with marquee brands like Reebok and FAST FACT: The hardest CrossFit workout of the day (WOD) Jimi ever completed is the Manion, comprising seven rounds of 400-meter runs and 29 reps of 135-lb. back squats. ESPN, and securing sponsorship for the über-popular CrossFit Games—and working each project, with Marine-like integrity and resolve, to completion.

Chief marketing officer is among the titles Jimi has held at CrossFit, but he pointed out that the company takes a markedly nontraditional approach to marketing: It does not run TV commercials or newspaper ads. It does not pay for media. And it does not actually use the word “marketing.” Instead, it brands.

“CrossFit is a brand; we are a training program, and in a CrossFit gym, you’ll get the best athletic training, bar none. The training and the environment that our boxes uphold are what has made our brand successful,” he said. “We make sure our brand is in the right places—that’s been part of my role over the years. It’s a very different approach, and it took time to gain momentum, but now CrossFit is a household name.”

Jimi credits the company’s reputation for straight talk about matters of nutrition, exercise and fitness as a prime reason for its loyal following. “As a brand, we tell the truth. Our Founder and Chairman Greg Glassman has been steadfast on exposing the truth about nutrition and exercise from day one. This puts our brand as the leader in cutting through the noise and static of modern industry. Because of that, we’re like a lighthouse to people; they love and trust us,” he said. “We do the right things, for the right people, for the right reasons. When you do that, your brand will grow.”

“I TRIED MY FIRST WORKOUT, AND I LOVED IT...CROSSFIT PUT ME BACK IN THE COMPETITIVE MENTALITY.”

He also noted the importance of telling a brand’s story—sharing what it does and how it makes people feel—in order to see it grow. And, never underestimate the importance of word-of-mouth advertising. “Ninety-nine percent of people in CrossFit gyms are everyday moms and dads,” he said. “They want to be vibrant, enjoy their lives and families. They’re the ones saying to their friends, ‘Come to CrossFit, get healthy and feel good.’ They do the marketing for us.”

WALKING THE WALK

CrossFit is not only Jimi’s professional life; it’s something he has fully integrated into his life outside of work, too. He and his wife, Madeline, also an avid CrossFitter, have a two-car garage at their California home that has never seen a car—it’s their CrossFit box. Their three oldest children, ages 15, 13 and 10, WOD there, too. “CrossFit has put us all in a mindset of taking care of ourselves, how we eat, sleep and train,” Jimi said. “It’s had an impact on how Madeline and I have raised our kids. They know it’s important to stay fit and healthy and not to believe all the mess out there."

In his current role as director of CrossFit International HQ, he logged more than 250,000 airline miles last year and fields calls from around the world 24/7, but the demands of the job have not quashed Jimi's enthusiasm for CrossFit in the least. He loves that he works for a company that is making "serious change," whether by putting the spotlight on corruption in the food industry or by helping one person get off his blood pressure medication through diet and proper training protocol.

"At this point, the product sells itself, and I get to be around 15,000 box owners who are passionate about what they are doing, who want to be part of the solution and not part of the problem," he reflected.

He also deeply values the CrossFit community ethos, which CrossFitters demonstrate by encouraging one another in the gym and beyond, often banding together to raise money for local and national causes, for example. "CrossFitters care about themselves, and they care about others even more," he said.

So where does Blair figure into all of this? Jimi gratefully acknowledges that his postgraduate year absolutely impacts his life today. "The relationships and friendships I made at Blair, especially among my football and wrestling teammates, are still strong—I've kept in touch with so many people," he said. "And Blair was my lily pad to the Naval Academy. Without Blair, I don't know where I'd be." M

PASSIONS ALIGN

"Blair never really leaves you!" Alexa Gilmartin said enthusiastically. More than a decade after her graduation, the active class representative cherishes her Blair friends and many memories of her four years at the School. The experiences that especially stand out include traveling to France with former language teacher Maria Bowditch; serving as a prefect in West Hall; building the Peddie Day Eve bonfire as the only girl on the crew; and rowing in the first-ever Blair crew boat to medal at the Stotesbury Cup Regatta.

As a young professional, Alexa also realizes the value of some of the smaller moments she experienced at Blair. "Formal dinners, Skeptics lectures and Chapel are not unlike many networking events I've attended in the course of my work," she said. In addition, she readily shared her love of beauty and fashion—as well as her nail polish, clothes and makeup skills—with her roommate, Laura Esposito '08, and friends. And all of this has been of value as she has pursued a career in the beauty industry, where she now works for L'Oréal, the largest beauty company in the world.

Alexa's path to her current role in L'Oréal's Professional Products Division began with her choice of majors at New Jersey's Montclair State University: She coupled a double concentration in international business and marketing with a minor in French. Her goal of working for a global company played into that choice, as did her desire to work on the more creative side of business, where, she said, "I would have the power to make people as passionate about something as I was!"

An internship at a fashion business and a marketing job at an accounting firm showed Alexa where she did not want to work, but when she landed a position in customer relationship management (CRM) at beauty company L'Occitane en Provence in 2014, her strengths in marketing, international business and French really blossomed.

Three years later, L'Oréal contacted Alexa through LinkedIn about a potential position. She responded with an emphatic

Her favorites include: Redken Triple Dry 15 Finishing Spray - "gives hair that lived-in feel" | SkinCeuticals C E Ferulic Serum - "lightens discoloration and softens fine lines" | Maybelline Lash Sensational Mascara - "provides intense volume and length" | Essie Gel Couture Nail Polish in Model Citizen - "is the perfect year-round pink with no chips"

"yes" and hasn't looked back. "L'Oréal is tremendously innovative within the beauty space," Alexa said. "I've enjoyed unparalleled opportunities and worked on projects that I never would have been able to work on anywhere else."

THOROUGHLY MODERN MARKETING

As CRM & Loyalty Manager, Alexa is part of the Integrated Marketing Communications team for Redken, the largest brand in the Professional Products Division and L'Oréal USA's fourth-largest brand overall. Her team manages all things digital for both consumer- and professional-facing haircare, hair color and styling products, and she manages email and direct mail channels and promotions, the brand's loyalty program and its customer data. "Data-driven marketing is the main focus of my job," she explained. "It is all about how we can best serve our customer with a targeted communication to help drive education and sales."

The fact that L'Oréal owns more than 30 brands and maintains data across brands presents an exciting marketing opportunity for Alexa and her team. "Using the data housed in the L'Oréal sphere, we can create a robust profile of our customers," she said. "With a better understanding of who is buying our products, we can really speak to them."

One of the reasons Alexa enjoys working in the digital marketing realm is the fact that she can quickly see the results of her efforts. Within a few days, she knows whether an email has driven incremental sales. If it hasn't, she and her team can work to make the necessary changes for the next communication to ensure they are meeting their goals.

Alexa works with many different teams across L'Oréal's global organization, and she has learned that open lines of communication are key to resolving issues. She also advised, "Be flexible and don't fall in love with your work," describing how, more than once, she has had an advertising campaign ready to launch, only to have someone in another part of the company nix

Alexa has a great office in the newly developed Hudson Yards on the west side of New York City—she can see the Statue of Liberty and the Vessel from her desk—and she enjoys traveling once or twice a month to professional hair and makeup trade shows or meetings in the U.S. and Europe. Of all the perks of her job, though, she especially appreciates opportunities to be "hands on" with the products she markets to haircare professionals worldwide.

"L'Oréal has a testing center where I've learned about our new launches before they come out," Alexa said. "Hair color is a science,

"FORMAL DINNERS, SKEPTICS LECTURES AND CHAPEL ARE NOT UNLIKE MANY NETWORKING EVENTS I'VE ATTENDED IN THE COURSE OF MY WORK."

the entire thing. "With only hours to reshoot, I've had to keep an open mind and not focus on the past. And having a great team to help move past obstacles makes a world of difference when you feel you're navigating a minefield!" she added.

A BEAUTIFUL CAREER

Despite the challenges that inevitably arise, Alexa is confident that the beauty industry is where she wants to be, and she embraces L'Oréal's internal motto, Sharing Beauty with All. "Beauty empowers you to be your best self," she said. "People of every shape, size, color, creed, gender or religion can use beauty products to feel confident and express themselves. That's the aspect of my work that I enjoy the most."

Alexa's passion for her marketing role at L'Oréal is evident in her enthusiasm for all things Redken. She takes to heart her responsibility to build strong customer relationships and maintain loyalty as she interfaces with salon owners and consumers, knowing that her actions affect hairdressers' livelihoods even as she sells products directly to consumers. "It's vital to maintain close relationships with both groups by sending the right messaging at the right times," she observed. "In marketing, you always have to keep your audience in mind for any communication you send."

which is why professionals have to be licensed to do it, but I've had the opportunity to color and lighten models' hair. I love being able to get a real feel for the products I'm speaking to and an understanding of how and why they work. That way, I can accurately and knowledgeably infuse my experiences into whatever marketing materials I develop."

Even though seeing quick, positive results brings her day-to-day satisfaction in her job, she takes a longer view when asked how she defines career success. According to Alexa, you know you're well on your way "when people start to come to you for answers to the tough questions." Six years into her career in the exciting world of beauty, she has already garnered the experience to answer many of those tough questions about the ins and outs of marketing—and she knows how to do it beautifully. M

Rob & Rhonda Anthony

Rob and Rhonda Anthony taught in Hawaii, North Carolina and Venezuela before they ever heard of Blair Academy. But when they pulled up on campus for Rob's interview in spring 2002—with their infant son (Elijah '20) in tow—Rhonda says with a smile, "That was the end of the story."

Actually, it was only the beginning of the story of Rob and Rhonda's impact on the lives of Blair students, and a new chapter has been added every year since. Between them, they have been involved in nearly every aspect of life on campus. Rob has taught math—algebra 1, algebra 2 honors, pre-calculus, pre-calculus honors and college calculus—since day one and coached "pretty much everything," including ice hockey for 10 years and skiing since 2012. Over the years, Rhonda taught CHAT, tutored extensively and currently coordinates The Blair Leadership Stories Project. And, together, they served as housemasters of West Hall and South Hall and assistant housemasters of Insley Hall, all while raising their three active sons, including twins Ethan '23 and Joshua '23.

Rob and Rhonda met while attending community college in western New York, he having grown up in nearby Lockport and she having moved to the area after living in several other states due to her father's career. They were both working to put themselves through college and focusing on teaching careers, Rob in mathematics and Rhonda in history/social studies and elementary education. Their relationship deepened as they completed their undergraduate degrees and earned teaching certifications at the University at Buffalo, The State University of New York. Rob and Rhonda tied the knot in 1994 and dove into their teaching careers.

Their first jobs took them to Hawaii, where they quickly realized that their combined salaries as rookie public school teachers would in no way allow them to purchase an island home and settle down. Undaunted, they made the most of the experience professionally and enjoyed touring the islands in their free time before moving back to the mainland U.S. in 1995.

For the next two years, Rob and Rhonda navigated the myriad challenges of teaching middle school students at an inner-city school near Charlotte, North Carolina. Just as they were ready for something new, a friend suggested they look into international schools. One thing led to another, and, in 1997, the couple began a rewarding five-year tenure at Escuela Campo Alegre, a private international school in Caracas, Venezuela (read more about that in what follows).

Elijah's birth in 2001 and the desire to be closer to their families were the catalysts for Rob and Rhonda's move back to the States. As they considered their options, a colleague shared his experience at boarding schools, and they decided to take a closer look. Rob ended up interviewing at independent schools in Connecticut, Massachusetts and New York, but a fortuitous tip from former Blair math teacher Tyler Lewis made the Anthonys add Blair to their list of potential schools.

Rob and Rhonda agree that Blair “just felt right” from their first visit to campus. Seventeen years later, that feeling remains. “I always tell people that I know I like what I’m doing because I never need an alarm clock,” Rob said. “I wake up at the same time every day, ready to go.”

Get to know Rob and Rhonda Anthony “outside the classroom.”

Questions for Rob:

Q. As a veteran math teacher—yet someone to whom math didn’t come easily as a youngster—what strategies do you employ to help students who struggle with the subject?

A. I try to understand the difficulties I experienced when I was a student.

Using many different methods and strategies helps most students understand the concepts I am teaching. I also do my best to instill in students that learning a new or complex topic may not come quickly, so patience is often required.

Q. What are some memorable experiences from your decade as coach of Blair’s ice hockey team?

A. I have many great memories of coaching the Blair hockey team. Once, the entire team was invited to attend a New Jersey Devils hockey game, courtesy of Hayden Gill ’13’s father. That was a great time, and I remember the game and experience well. Another of my fondest memories was when we took the entire hockey team to see the movie Miracle at the theater. [Then-Blair classics teacher and hockey coach] Eric Lunger and I wanted to surprise the boys, so we had them pack up all their gear and headed off as if we were going to practice. When we pulled up to the theater, the boys were clueless and began to unload their hockey equipment. We needed to tell them that we were not at a rink and that practice was seeing the movie. We had a lot of laughs the rest of that year. However, I get the most enjoyment on Alumni Weekend, when I see many of those players all grown up, and we can chat for hours about the fun times as members of the Blair hockey team.

Q. What Blair community activities do you look forward to every year?

A. My favorite community events in a school year are Peddie Day and graduation. In the fall, I always look forward to the Peddie Day competitions. The pep rally with the skits is always fun, and we have gone to each of these rallies since our first year at Blair. Then, the bonfire is simply spectacular in my mind. Seeing the seniors in the parade carrying the torches to light the bonfire is an awesome sight, and the gathering of the entire student body around the fire is wonderful. This, followed by a full day of competitions where all the students are engaged and everyone contributes to the victory or defeat of the day, makes it an outstanding community event. Graduation is also a very special day. I have known many of the young men and ladies for up to four years, and many have been in my class as seniors. I know that they have worked very hard throughout their time here and have been looking forward to the day for a long time. It also marks a big transition period in their lives, and they are ready to spread their wings. The day is rather surreal with everyone in his or her formal attire and the faculty showing their college colors. However, the day seems to pass in a blink of an eye, then the seniors are gone, and we all feel a bit empty, like something is missing. Then the cycle begins again.

Q. You and Rhonda own a cottage in the Finger Lakes region of New York, and you've become adept at household DIY projects. What is the most ambitious one you've undertaken? How did it turn out?

A. The only limiting factor in deciding what type of project I will take on is time. I have learned why hiring a contractor costs as much as it does and how much work actually goes into making the final project look good. One of the most ambitious projects we tackled was building a 32-foot by 12-foot deck that is 10 feet off the ground overlooking the lake. That was the most valuable and technical project we have undertaken. We also built a driveway that is about 200 feet long and drops 25 feet around a curve. This required a 15-foot upper retaining wall made out of concrete blocks and a lower retaining wall made out of railroad ties, all of which we installed by hand.

Questions for Rhonda:

Q. As a lover of reading, what are some of your favorite books and why?

A. I would struggle to choose a favorite, or even several. I enjoy reading all genres, but my two favorite authors are Jean Auel and Diana Gabaldon, and they both write historical fiction. Auel wrote the series entitled Earth's Children. The most well-known book of that series was Clan of the Cave Bears, which was published in 1980, with consecutive books being published periodically for the next 30 years. Gabaldon is the author of the Outlander series, which is currently a show on Starz. Outlander was first published in the U.S. in 1990, but the author continues to write novels in this series, and I am eagerly awaiting the publication of book number nine.

Q. Having filmed hundreds of freshmen and seniors for The Blair Leadership Stories Project, what has impressed you most about students as they deliver their stories?

A. The sheer determination of some students to get their story told. Sometimes, it requires multiple takes, or even retakes on a new day, but they've done it. Not all stories have happy endings, and I commend those students who have allowed themselves to be vulnerable and speak about difficult topics.

Q. What was it like being a housemaster to teenagers while your boys were young?

A. Well, Insley Hall was my proving ground to parenting boys. If you can think of something that a 15-year-old boy may need help with, Rob and I have dealt with it. It makes parenting teenagers now a bit less challenging, because our boys know that we've "been there and done that"...many times. I wouldn't change a thing about those years. It was difficult, especially with young twins, but it was very gratifying.

Q. Your teaching certifications include K-12 history/social studies, K-8 math and K-6 all subjects. What has been your most rewarding experience working with students during your career?

A. In Venezuela, there was a core population of students that came from the local community, but a good percentage of students were somewhat transient. Their parents were working for multinational companies or foreign governments, so they moved quite a bit. I could relate, having moved quite a bit myself as a child, so I made a special point of helping them adjust to their new school and be comfortable in their new environment. I remember hosting lunches in my classroom where a new student could invite one local student to join him or her. It was a great way to get kids of different backgrounds engaged with each other. Education at school is so much more than what goes on in the classroom, and seeing these students find their place in their new school was very rewarding.

Questions for Rob & Rhonda:

Q. Tell us about your teaching experience at Escuela Campo Alegre in Caracas, Venezuela.

A. Escuela Campo Alegre was a K-12 school that served the expatriate community in Caracas, Venezuela. During the five years we lived in Caracas, we both taught middle school math and a learning community class, which was similar to a combination of a health-and-wellness class, LEADS and the advisor-advisee relationship here at Blair.

Q. What do you and the boys enjoy about spending time at your Finger Lakes cottage?

A. Our family enjoys being able to spend so much time outdoors. The boys have their own sailboats, and they enjoy waterskiing, wakeboarding and tubing. We can fish or swim whenever we want. On a typical day, we spend the mornings doing remodeling projects, and then spend the afternoon enjoying the lake.

Q. What is the best family vacation you've ever taken?

A. Several summers ago, we spent a few weeks out West. First, we visited Disneyland, and then we rented an RV and drove from Phoenix to Salt Lake City. We spent several days enjoying the Grand Canyon. Then we moved on to Zion National Park. From there, we went to Bryce Canyon and then on to a few days in Salt Lake City. The vacation was the perfect combination of spending time at Disney, which we love, and family outdoor adventure.

Q. What is your favorite place on campus and why?

A. Rob: My favorite place is looking through the Arch at the magnolia tree in bloom. I have been here for 17 years, and I am still in awe when I stand in Meerwarth Courtyard and witness this sight.

A. Rhonda: Anywhere there is a sports team competing or a performance going on. We have so many talented students here at Blair, and I enjoy watching them put so much of themselves into things they are passionate about.

Q. If you could instantly become an expert at something, what would it be?

A. Rob: I am not sure that I would like to be an expert at any one thing. I feel that this would cause me to miss out on trying to be good at everything I encounter. As it is now, I am always learning new things and trying to be good at them all.

A. Rhonda: I would like to be able to play a musical instrument.

Q. What makes you laugh the most?

A. Rob: My children and my students. Rarely does a day go by when either or both don't make me laugh or at least put a smile on my face.

A. Rhonda: Without a doubt, my children. ■

Peter and the Starcatcher
October 17, 18 & 19; 7:30 p.m.
Wean Theatre

A play by Rick Elice based on the novel by Dave Barry & Ridley Pearson, music by Wayne Barker. The Tony Award-winning play tells the backstory of an unhappy orphan boy who becomes the legendary Peter Pan. All the favorite things from the old story are here: pirates, mermaids, a fearsome crocodile, plus a few more that helped make this play immensely popular. The young orphan and his mates are shipped off from England for a distant island ruled by evil King Zarboff. A precocious young girl, Molly, a starcatcher in training, realizes that a mysterious trunk on the ship contains starstuff, a celestial substance whose power could be used for good or evil. Pirates, led by the fearsome Black Stache, take over the ship and hope to claim the trunk and its treasures, and the thrilling adventure takes off.

Chicago (high school version)
February 13, 14 & 15; 7:30 p.m.
DuBois Theatre

A musical by Fred Ebb, Bob Fosse, John Kander & Maurine Dallas Watkins. Set in Roaring '20s Chicago, chorine Roxie Hart murders a faithless lover and convinces her hapless husband, Amos, to take the rap...until he finds out he's been duped and turns on Roxie. Convicted and sent to death row, Roxie meets another "Merry Murderess," Velma Kelly, who competes with her for the spotlight and the headlines, ultimately learning that American notoriety has a short shelf life. This cutting satire has a fantastic score that was brought to the stage by Bob Fosse.

Men on Boats
May 7, 8 & 9; 7:30 p.m.
Wean Theatre

Men on Boats takes audience members on a whitewater rapids adventure through the Grand Canyon in Blair's black box theatre. This true(ish) history of an 1869 expedition follows a one-armed captain and a crew of insane yet loyal volunteers who set out to chart the course of the Colorado River. Playwright Jaclyn Backhaus explores the boundaries of how we tell mainstream American history by calling for gender-fluid casting. The river exploration comes alive by removing the spotlight from gender and focusing it on the nuances of the characters' incredible stories.

Twelfth Night
May 14, 15 & 16, 7:30 p.m.
Robert J. Evans Open Air Theatre

One of Shakespeare's most-performed comedies will be performed in the perfect setting by Blair Lake. Duke Orsino of Illyria is in love with Olivia, but she rejects his advances. A shipwrecked Viola arrives on his shores and, with the help of a captain, disguises herself as a boy, calling herself

Cesario, and enters Orsino's service. Orsino likes Cesario and sends "him" to woo Olivia for him. Viola realizes to her dismay that Olivia has fallen for her Cesario rather than Duke Orsino—further complicated by the fact that Viola is falling herself for Orsino. More subplots, confusion and disguises ensue, leading, of course, to several happy romances.

In mid-May, the Blair Academy Players performed Go Back for Murder, one of Agatha Christie's most beloved stories. Directed by former Assistant Dean of College Counseling Britt Freitag, the play examined the danger of relying on personal testimony warped by time, prejudice and perception.

To close out the 2018-2019 theatre season, the Players presented an original play by Matthew Bottone '19. The Crusaders told the story of a priest and a number of unlucky souls who decide to take on the mob.

Blair's vocal ensembles performed a wide repertoire at the Spring Concert. Musical numbers ranged from Eric Whitacre's "I Carry Your Heart" to "I'll Be Seeing You" from the Great American Songbook.

Blair's Symphony Orchestra, String Orchestra, Chamber Ensemble and Jazz Ensemble also performed at the Spring Concert. Selections included "Opus," an orchestral work composed by Wils Acker '19, "Blue Bossa" by Kenny Dorham and Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 5.

The Blair community gathered to celebrate the work of Blair's fine artists at the spring Student Art Exhibition. Photographs, pottery, drawings, paintings and more were on display in The Romano Gallery.

BY LORRY PERRY

THE FRAMEWORK

DEFINING EFFECTIVE
STUDENT-CENTERED
TEACHING & LEARNING
AT BLAIR

IN THIS ESSAY, ASSISTANT HEAD OF SCHOOL AND DEAN OF FACULTY LORRY PERRY TALKS ABOUT THIS YEAR'S EFFORT TO ASSESS HOW STUDENTS LEARN BEST AND TO CAPTURE WHAT CONSTITUTES EXCELLENT TEACHING AT BLAIR. NOT ONLY HAS THIS INNOVATIVE AND COLLABORATIVE WORK HELPED BLAIR TEACHERS BUILD A COMMUNITY AROUND PROFESSIONAL LEARNING, IT HAS ALSO LED FACULTY MEMBERS TO TACKLE TANGIBLE PROJECTS THAT PROMOTE BEST TEACHING PRACTICES—AND HAS RESULTED IN COLLABORATIVE DEVELOPMENT OF A RUBRIC BY WHICH TO EVALUATE THOSE PRACTICES AND FURTHER DEVELOP A CULTURE OF TEACHING EXCELLENCE.

In recent years, Blair Academy has made a number of important investments in our faculty's professional development, including creating the Dean of Teaching and Learning position; organizing two faculty institutes during the summer months, at which teachers work together to make curricular and pedagogical decisions for the upcoming school year; and continuing to support faculty members' participation in workshops and conferences of their choosing. This year, we set aside dedicated time in our weekly schedule for faculty to spend together, be it as a full faculty, in departments or in cohort-based professional development groups, getting together to study topics of interest. For instance, the Young Bucs (a group of teachers early in their careers) met regularly as they developed a reflective practice they can build on in the coming years. Another group focused on building more cultural competency in the Spanish grammar classroom and used that time to launch a multi-section project that records oral histories for our Spanish-speaking staff. All of this innovative work has helped us to build community around professional learning, and much good work has already come out of these collaborations.

Working with adolescents and guiding them through the learning process are quite an involved

"THE FRAMEWORK EXPRESSES THE BEST OF WHAT WE ATTEMPT AND REGULARLY ACCOMPLISH WITH OUR STUDENTS, AND NAMING THE HALLMARKS OF OUR PRACTICE WILL HELP US SUSTAIN AND CONTINUE TO DEVELOP A CULTURE OF EXCELLENCE IN OUR FACULTY."

undertaking, filled with choices to be made about teaching strategies and curricular design that get more and more challenging; every year, neuroscience has more to teach us about how students learn best. Over the last year, we talked as a faculty about ways to create and protect identity-safe classrooms that are conducive for learning, and we also worked on how to give difficult feedback to students so they can accept and use it. Our disciplines seem always to expand, and our sense of what students should be mastering in high school continually grows.

Given the myriad choices individual teachers need to make about how and what to teach, we decided it was imperative to bring more clarity of purpose to our efforts going forward. That's why we spent four months this year developing the Blair Academy Framework for Effective Teaching. Teaching is such a multifaceted endeavor that we knew we needed to parse it as accurately and completely as is possible in a rubric. We wanted to commit to paper what we value as student-centered educators. The framework we created expresses the best of what we attempt and regularly accomplish with our students, and we hope that naming the hallmarks of our practice will help us sustain and continue to develop a culture of excellence in our faculty.

The process of moving toward organizational clarity when it came to defining what makes teaching effective at Blair has been complex and energizing work. Our first step in creating our rubric was to take inspiration from others engaged in similar work, including Charlotte Danielson, an acclaimed educator who came up with a Framework for Teaching that aims to articulate the conditions necessary for students' intellectual engagement and successful learning. We identified the elements of her work that resonated with teachers at Blair and then put her framework aside to craft our own document.

Next, our nine department heads and administrators wrote drafts that a committee of faculty members reviewed and critiqued; ultimately, nearly half of Blair's 100-plus faculty members were involved in the process in one way or another. We built this framework with our mission statement and foundational documents always in mind, and, as such, we feel confident that we will be serving our mission well as we focus on the teaching skills defined in our Framework.

It has helped us to celebrate the good work that our faculty do and to help them feel confident about their work. In the first meeting where we presented the completed Framework to the faculty, we asked people to identify where they see their own strengths as teachers represented; we also asked them to name exemplars of certain traits within the faculty. The Framework is meant to validate the skills our teachers have developed and to guide them toward future growth, professional development opportunities and collaborations with other teachers.

Completing the Framework also helped us to be more intentional in the interview questions we ask of prospective faculty candidates, rather than evaluating them based on an abstract notion of “fit.” Similarly, it will help us redesign the surveys our students fill out about the courses they take at Blair, to make sure the feedback students provide helps us to better meet our aims.

What strikes me as especially important about this Framework project is that we have designed a living document—not only in the sense that we will regularly use it to guide and inspire individual faculty members’ growth, but also in the sense that it will change over time and that we will use it to steer and to assess our progress as a School. In three to five years, we will revisit our work to see in what ways we have moved the needle and are ready to set new institutional goals.

By developing this Framework, we have taken an important step toward creating a formal system for reflection and evaluation of Blair teachers. We are following a very similar design process as we develop this evaluation system in a committee of faculty members. While other schools have also created tools to help evaluate teachers, what strikes everyone to whom we have presented our work is the inclusive approach that we took in its creation and the ambitious deadlines that we set and met at various stages of our drafting process. I attribute much of our success to our engaged faculty comprising excellent teachers who are ardent about their own development and also about growing together and supporting one another. ■

ADMISSION

BY PETER G. CURRAN, ASSOCIATE HEAD OF SCHOOL & DEAN OF ADMISSION

I AM ONCE AGAIN happy to report that admission to Blair Academy for the 2019-2020 academic year was our most competitive yet: We once again broke School records in terms of the number of applications received and selectivity. School opened in September with a midsize student body of 468 (144 of whom are newly enrolled students), and our admission officers are already building on this success as they begin to plan for the upcoming admission season.

In our 171-year history, our application numbers have never been so high, nor our acceptance rate so low. Our work to engage families at secondary-school placement fairs and receptions across the United States and abroad is certainly paying off. Our travels this past year brought us to 16 states and 11 countries, and we are excited for our upcoming adventures. The Blair name remains strong in many domestic markets, as well as overseas, and we look forward to continuing to build upon this momentum as we look toward the fall travel season.

We owe a great deal of our success to you, the Blair community, as we continue to advance Blair's reputation across the globe. No matter how far we travel from our hilltop campus, the warmth of our community—and enthusiastic Buccaneers—are always nearby. You are our best School ambassadors, and we deeply appreciate your efforts to share the value of a Blair education with friends, family and acquaintances in every corner of the globe.

This year, we continue to focus our efforts on the Mid-Atlantic Boarding School Group (MABS), a travel consortium comprising Blair Academy, Episcopal High School, Mercersburg Academy, Peddie School and St. Andrew's School. We are in our fifth year of collaborating to introduce families to the advantages of a boarding school education, as well as provide prospective students with access to important information about the application process and the distinguishing values, mission and programs of each of our institutions.

Although many faces in our community change each year as students graduate and new Bucs begin their Blair careers, our faculty always maintains a steadfast commitment to the relationship-based learning and superior academic preparation that serve as the foundation of a Blair education. Their enthusiasm for their craft and devotion to the student experience make Blair a learning community like no other. And, as we enter another busy admission season, we remain devoted to attracting the strongest candidates who will thrive in our close-knit community. We are excited and energized to begin another season and look forward to sharing our success with you. ■

WHEN ASKED TO DESCRIBE BLAIR IN ONE WORD, EACH HEAD TOUR GUIDE HAD THE SAME ANSWER: HOME.

KATE GERDSEN '20

"Blair is home, and I've met my family along the way. I love to tell prospective families the story of my freshman year Peddie Day, when both schools were lined up on opposite sides of the football field cheering on their team as loudly as possible. This community encourages me to strive to be the best version of myself and is incredibly supportive of my growth in class and beyond."

JAI BAKSHI '20

"Simply put, Blair has become home. From the challenging yet supportive academic environment, to the competitive athletics, Blair has become the place where I feel most comfortable. Over the years, I have grown as a person in all facets of my life as a result of the friends and faculty around me. At Blair, I've met so many amazing teachers with such unique backgrounds and experiences, who are all equally eager to help me inside and outside of the classroom."

ALEX KIRBY '20

"When I was still a prospective student, I was considering a few different schools. I was confident I was going to attend another school, but that changed on Blair's Revisit Day. Blair felt like my home, the place where I could excel and become my best self. The hardest question I'm always asked on a tour is 'do you get homesick?' I always say I was somewhat homesick in my first month, but my prefects, friends, teachers and advisor helped tremendously. Blair has a phenomenal support system that is always accessible and everyone here wants you to succeed."

COMMUNITY JOINS TOGETHER FOR 6TH-ANNUAL DAY OF SERVICE

Nearly 500 Blair students, teachers and staff members assembled throughout the area on the morning of May 17 to serve local nonprofits on the School's sixth-annual Day of Service. Working in teams, Blair community members took on 24 individual projects that addressed needs including document translation, animal welfare, environmental conservation and much more, all in an effort to make a difference.

This year's activities involved a new service project, which brought individuals with developmental disabilities to campus for a day of activities. Led by Associate Dean of Students Andee Ryerson and Director of Academic Support Allison Leddy, students welcomed the guests to Hardwick Hall, and everyone played games on the turf field, swam in the pool and hiked around Blair's campus. The day concluded with a dance party, led by Director of Vocal Music Ryan Manni.

"This new project was an unbelievable success, and I am so proud of everyone who was a part of building it," remarked history teacher Joanne Brandwood, who once again organized the Day of Service. "After six years, the Day of Service has become one of the best Blair traditions our students can experience, one that demonstrates the greatest of what it means to be a part of this amazing community." ■

ACTA YEARBOOK DEDICATED TO DANYELLE DOLDOORIAN

At School Meeting on May 20, yearbook editors Olivia Altman '19, Fiona Gu '19 and Samantha Tsang '19 were excited to give the first 2019 yearbook to math teacher Danyelle Doldoorian, to whom the 2019 ACTA was dedicated.

"Your constant positivity is a motivation to everyone you meet on this campus, and we are so lucky to have you here at Blair," said Fiona, adding that "Ms. D" is "so deserving" of this honor.

Ms. Doldoorian is an alumna of Trinity College and holds a bachelor's degree in mathematics and educational studies. A Blair faculty member since 2014, she teaches AP calculus AB, pre-calculus and number theory courses, coaches girls' basketball and field hockey, and helps run Blair's Healthy Relationships Committee (HRC). She resides and serves dorm duty in Annie Hall. ■

VETERAN FACULTY & STAFF RECOGNIZED

Head of School Chris Fortunato honored four faculty members for their many years of service to Blair and its students at the Opening of School Dinner in late August. English and theatre teachers Craig and Kaye Evans were recognized for their shared 25-year milestone as dedicated members of the School's faculty. Science department chair Kelly Hadden and science teacher Mike Ryerson were recognized for reaching their 10-year anniversaries. ■

PARK STREET PARKING LOT TO BENEFIT VISITORS & SHOPS

As summer 2019 came to a close, Blair Academy worked with Blairstown officials on plans to install a parking lot between Main Street and Park Street. The private road will no longer connect Main Street to Route 94, which will substantially decrease traffic on the residential street that runs in front of the School's front and back gates.

In addition to adding defined parking spaces for Main Street visitors and shops, the School will add landscaping as a final step toward enhancing the appearance of the Main Street and Academy Street approaches to campus, having already renovated the Park Street maintenance facilities and Maker Space building in 2015. ■

DEBRA GORDON RETIRES AFTER 36 YEARS AT BLAIR

Debra Gordon retired as Blair's controller in fall 2019 after 36 years in the business office. She began her long tenure at Blair in 1983 as bookkeeper, performing her accounting calculations on paper until Blair staff members switched to computers in the 1990s. Technology aside, Ms. Gordon saw incredible changes over the course of her nearly four decades at Blair: The School's endowment grew from $20 million to more than $100 million; the functions of the business office multiplied and became much more complex; and the size of campus, the faculty and student body increased significantly.

Having come to Blair from upstate New York with a background in banking, Ms. Gordon managed all of the accounting functions related to the School's $36-million annual operating budget, including journal entries and account reconciliations. Over the years, she also nurtured Blair's banking relationships, worked with auditors, coordinated payroll and offered human resources support before the School hired a full-time HR director in 2014.

"Deb is hardworking and dedicated to doing things right, and she always made sure that our financials were accurate," said Blair's Chief Operating Officer Jim Frick, who worked with her in the business office since 1993. "In her understated and behind-the-scenes way, she managed a lot of different aspects of the School and, in the process, taught me and all of our colleagues an extraordinary amount."

Staff members across departments will remember Deb as a steady force who was an excellent sounding board and whose institutional knowledge was incredibly valuable and deep. "Over the years, she also acted as a mentor and friend to many, and will be greatly missed," said Mr. Frick.

Ms. Gordon decided to retire in spring 2019 but stayed on for the first few weeks of the 2019-2020 school year to help train her replacement, Cassia DeFrank (see "Welcome New Faculty & Staff" on page 70). In October, she left Blairstown for her native New York, where she looked forward to spending time with family and friends. ■

ESSAYISTS PORTRAY TRANSITION FROM HIGH SCHOOL TO COLLEGE IN 2019 BLAIR REVIEW

History teacher Martin Miller, PhD, and Director of Timken Library Ann Williams once again collaborated on the publication of the Blair Review, a compilation of personal essays penned by members of the School community. The 2019 edition embraces a topic to which nearly all members of the Blair family can relate: the time-honored transition from high school to college.

The alumni and faculty essayists included in this volume are men and women from different generations, geographical regions and socioeconomic backgrounds, but as Dr. Miller points out in his introduction, some common themes emerge in their stories. Most notable is the contrast between the essayists' college process and the college process of today's students. "The distance from the current Blair experience is simply stunning in terms of the intensity of counseling and the expectations of prospective collegians," he writes. Yet, despite the fact that "our authors' decision-making was often a hodge-podge of guesswork, the tossing of darts at the map of higher education," it usually worked out well in the end.

"As we put the Review together, Dr. Miller worked his usual magic to allow writers to bloom—he even had me write an essay for this issue," Mrs. Williams said. "In the end, I was entertained and moved by the stories people shared, and I hope our readers enjoy this edition." ■ four-year member of the men's varsity squash team. At Williams, he served as a chemistry and economics tutor, as well as a teacher assistant for various chemistry lab sections. Mr. Merino teaches Spanish and coaches boys' squash and oversees weightlifting at Blair.

Latin teacher Mitchell Towne spent the past three years in Rome, where he worked for the Paideia Institute for Humanistic Study, a nonprofit organization dedicated to spreading access to the study of Latin and ancient Greek. His role with Paideia included leading classical tours around Italy, Greece and Sicily and teaching in language programs. After studying at Southern Methodist University for two years, Mr. Towne transferred to Williams College, graduating in 2016 with a bachelor's degree in classics. He was a varsity swimmer at Williams, and he coaches swimming and track at Blair.

MATHEMATICS

TWO FORMER BUCS PARTNER TO GROW GIRLS' ROWING PROGRAM & BUILD TEAM DEPTH

FROM FORMER TEAMMATES & LONGTIME FRIENDS TO COLLEAGUES & CO-COACHES

NOT long into a conversation with Director of Blair Rowing Operations and head girls' rowing coach John Redos '09 and girls' assistant rowing coach Becca Litvin '10, you realize just how much work and logistical maneuvering go into setting the team up for success each season: countless hours of planning races and practices, organizing training trips, canceling and rescheduling races due to weather, communicating with students and parents, mapping out conditioning workouts, supporting athletes being recruited by colleges, counseling stressed-out athletes...and that is all before anyone even steps in a boat.

This spring, the coaching duo—who have been friends and rowing enthusiasts since their Blair days and are the only alumnus/alumna who co-coach a Blair varsity sport—were thrilled that their efforts (along with those of the team's other assistant coaches, history teachers Tessa McEvoy and Marianna Paone) paid off with a historic Blair first: Two girls' boats competed in the Scholastic Rowing Association of America (SRAA) National Championship Regatta on Dillon Lake in Ohio and finished in the top 10. The girls' team also placed second in the Mid-Atlantic Prep League (MAPL) championship; the varsity first boat won the overall MAPL competition; and two female Blair rowers were invited to compete in the December 2019 USRowing Youth Regional Challenge. Two other rowers were selected to participate in a summer regional Olympic development program (see sidebar).

A SEASON OF GROWTH & CULTURE BUILDING

Although the season got off to an excellent start in April when the Bucs swept their first home race against The Hill School on Paulinskill Lake in front of a crowd of cheering Blair fans, the weather made racing difficult and the season saw many canceled races and “close-but-no-cigar” competitions.

But, even more important than wins and losses, John and Becca were gratified that the girls’ team took great strides toward growing the program for future rowers and building a culture of grit and commitment to hard work this season. At the same time, the girls achieved an unprecedented level of fitness and built depth that has next year looking very promising.

DIFFERENT COACHING STYLES & PERSPECTIVES

John and Becca’s close connection as high school friends, former Blair rowers, teaching colleagues and now co-coaches has certainly contributed to that bright future. “We complement each other as longtime friends, as well as coaches, in terms of the energy we bring to the girls,” said John. “My coaching is purposeful; I am all about training and laying down hard-and-fast rules, whereas Becca is more connected to the girls emotionally, which is an aspect of coaching that is new for me. I’ve definitely learned a lot in this realm from Becca and hope to continue to do so in the coming year.”

“There is no partnership quite like the one you build when you are working out the logistics of a rowing program,” Becca said with a laugh. “But our styles mesh nicely. My approach is one of structured forgiveness. I expect a lot from the girls, but I tell them, ‘You cannot guarantee success—only hard work. Forgive yourself if things don’t go according to plan and don’t let one bad race become two.’”

John and Becca’s decade-long relationship and similar attitude have helped to foster an atmosphere of collaboration and cooperation that they felt permeated every team interaction and positively impacted athletes. They also found that they are learning from each other’s different perspectives. Becca, who has coached crew at Blair since 2016, admits she has helped John understand “what Blair rowing is today,” while John pushed her to “see what Blair rowing could be” during his first year at the helm of the program.

That openness to learning from each other also suits their different coaching styles perfectly. John, who spent much of his career coaching adult men at the University of Oxford, is adjusting to understanding the challenges and stresses faced by adolescent girls, while Becca, who previously coached at St. Paul’s School, is incorporating new technical knowledge and training fundamentals into her work and came away from their first season together with a better understanding of the “business” side of the sport.

A BRIGHT FUTURE

Admitting that their coaching philosophy closely aligns with that of former Blair faculty member Bowen Posner, who coached Blair crew during their tenure as rowers in the 2000s, John and Becca attribute the team’s success last spring to a very focused senior class and ramped-up training over the winter months. All four coaches, who rowers have good-naturedly nicknamed “The Core Four,” are excited to see results in terms of team depth and athletes’ mental toughness and confidence. Indeed, the coaches agree, the future of Blair girls’ crew is not just bright—it is blinding.

“We have all of the elements to make this a nationally competitive team, not the least of which is incredible support from Blair parents and the School’s administration,” said John, who also noted that their work would not be possible without the assistance of Blair’s facilities department, led by Dave Schmitt, who has helped the team with everything from travel and lake logistics to providing gas tanks for the coaches’ boats and stacking sandbags at the dock. “More Blair rowers than ever before spent the summer on the water, which means many athletes will have trained for three seasons, and we are excited to see the results."

A CULTURE OF WINNING

As the new school year began in September, John and Becca looked forward to continuing their special friendship and coaching partnership with an eye on creating a culture of winning—having already succeeded in creating a culture of support last year. As for markers of the program's depth, they hope to win the 2020 MAPL championship, see every one of the three boats they bring to the 2020 Stotesbury Cup Regatta make the finals, send three boats to the 2020 SRAA National Championship Regatta and send one boat to the USRowing 2020 Youth National Championship in Florida.

The Blair graduates and co-coaches summed up their relationship on and off the water when asked what they most enjoy about working together. "I am very lucky that I left one of the best possible co-coaches in England, only to find someone who could equally match, if not trump, my enthusiasm and motivation and inspire me, every day," concluded John.

Hugging and then fist-bumping John after he shared that sentiment, Becca returned the compliment. "I love that we are so close and I have someone I've known so long to run ideas by, but the best part is that we have very much the same approach and sense of humor," she said. "We get each other and decompress in a similar way, and that is very welcome." ■

GIRLS' ROWING STANDOUTS IN 2019 & 2020

In May, the varsity and JV girls' boats finished fourth and ninth, respectively, at the SRAA National Championship Regatta. The varsity four included Emily Maniscalco '19, Cam Bentley '20, Caeley Tierney '19, Genevieve Koffman '19 and Alexa Setteducate '19; JV four comprised Elizabeth Montfort '20, Ava Gamble '21, Dylan Bentley '22 and Camille Williams '20. The team will work to secure an invitation to the 2020 race, which will take place in Camden, New Jersey.

Earlier in the month, the team also performed well at the MAPL championship, finishing in second place. The first varsity boat (which included Emily Maniscalco '19, Cam Bentley '20, Caeley Tierney '19, Genevieve Koffman '19 and Alexa Setteducate '19) also won the overall MAPL championship race.

Caeley Tierney '19 and Cam Bentley '20 rowed at the 2018 USRowing Youth Regional Challenge, an annual winter event in Sarasota-Bradenton, Florida, that includes more than 400 of the top rowers from across the U.S. under age 18. Caeley and Cam also traveled to Connecticut in June to try out for the Junior National team (although they fell short of qualifying). Caeley now attends Duke University, where she started this fall as a freshman member of the crew team. Later in the summer, Elizabeth and Ava were invited to the U17 Olympic development camp in Philadelphia and then traveled to Florida to race against rowers from five other regions of the United States.

TRUSTEE SPOTLIGHT

THIS SPRING, the Blair Board of Trustees welcomed three new members who will bring invaluable experience and expertise to School governance. Read on to learn about their backgrounds and careers, as well as their past support of Blair as volunteers, panelists and event hosts.

She joined Goldman Sachs in 1990 in the Financial Institutions Group in the Investment Banking Division after graduating from Williams College.

Ms. Robinson currently serves as a director of a number of corporate boards, including The Bank of New York Mellon Corporation and Russell Reynolds Associates. She is a trustee and chairman of the board of Williams College, and recently served as a member of the school's presidential search committee. Ms. Robinson is also chairman of the board of Every Mother Counts, an organization dedicated to reducing maternal mortality. Earlier this year, she participated as a panelist at the 2019 Blair Finance Summit in New York City.

He and his wife, Chasity, are the proud parents of Brandon, 27, Tucker, 22, Aiden '22 and Gavin, 14. Mr. Santoro also shared with Blair students and alumni lessons learned over the course of his career at the 2019 Blair Finance Summit.

Seniors & Parents Establish Class of 2019 Scholarship

In a shared fundraising endeavor, the 2019 graduating class and their parents contributed a total of $273,733 in gifts and pledges to establish the Class of 2019 Scholarship, the first-ever Blair scholarship instituted by a current graduating class. The endowed scholarship will not only provide the gift of a Blair education to deserving students for years to come, it will also help the School's newest alumni remain connected to their alma mater, as they will receive annual updates from Class of 2019 Scholarship recipients.

"Seniors and their parents were excited at the prospect of creating the Class of 2019 Scholarship as soon as the idea was introduced last fall," said Susan Long, assistant director of advancement for parent relations. "They believed it was a good idea for the School and for its future students, and their enthusiasm played a big part in their fundraising success."

Every member of the class of 2019 contributed to the senior gift by February, making it the earliest class to achieve 100-percent participation and the first to do so in six years. Parents were generous in their support of the Class of 2019 Scholarship as well, with two parents providing challenge gifts to spur fundraising. One parent gave $50,000 because more than $100,000 was raised by June 30, and another parent contributed $100,000 in recognition of every member of the senior class having participated in the senior gift.

Trustee Emeritus Jim Krugman '65 and his wife, Connie, also supported the class of 2019's fundraising effort by matching student giving 3:1. This marks the 18th-consecutive year that the Krugmans have made this generous match of the senior class gift, which underlined the importance of giving back to Blair for students who will soon be alumni. Thanks to the Krugmans' generosity, this year's senior class gift totaled $4,561.

"The Class of 2019 Scholarship provides a unique legacy that classmates will no doubt cherish forever," Mrs. Long said. "We are all looking forward to awarding the scholarship for the first time this fall, as it will help provide a deserving student with the same impactful Blair experience the class of 2019 enjoyed." ■

Loyal & Generous Benefactors Honored at 2019 Leadership Dinner

The School celebrated and thanked its most loyal and generous donors on April 26 at the annual Leadership Dinner. This year's event, held in the Chiang Center for Innovation and Collaboration and the Romano Dining Hall, featured a special tribute to the late John C. Bogle '47, Chairman Emeritus of the Blair Board of Trustees, who passed away in January at the age of 89. Trustees, faculty members and more than 100 invited guests honored Mr. Bogle's unparalleled legacy of leadership and service to his alma mater, while also applauding numerous honorees who have supported Blair through their generous philanthropy.

The evening began with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres in the Chang Center's Collaboration Forum, where guests enjoyed a video retrospective of Mr. Bogle's singular, transformative impact on Blair Academy. The Blair Academy Singers performed the Blair "Alma Mater," one of Mr. Bogle's favorite songs, and Head of School Chris Fortunato spoke about Mr. Bogle's deep care for his beloved School on the hill.

Attendees then proceeded to the Romano Dining Hall, where scholarship recipients Faith Sanchez '19 and Summer Will '19 shared their Blair experiences and thanked the donors whose generous gifts made it possible for them to attend. Later in the evening, Mr. Fortunato and Chairman of the Blair Board of Trustees Doug Kimmelman P'12 '13 '15 '22 expressed gratitude to this year's Leadership Dinner honorees and presented those in attendance with framed prints of the Blair Arch.

The 2019 Leadership Dinner honorees include Mr. Emmanuel Bello '04, Dr. Jixin Dai and Dr. Yi Liu P'21, Mr. Jianqiang Cui and Mrs. Xiaodan Zhang P'22, Mr. and Mrs. Peter S. Humphrey '62, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jacobs '63, Mr. Hong Jun Li and Ms. Fan Yang P'19, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Mooney Jr. P'19, Mr. and Mrs. Peter T. Reardon P'19, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Santoro P'22, Mr. David P. Quinlivan and Ms. Van N. Ton-Quinlivan, and Mr. Zhihui Tan and Ms. Liling Ke P'21.

"I am delighted to recognize these benefactors for the deep care they have shown for our School and the Blair community," Mr. Fortunato said. "Their generous philanthropy supports our dedicated faculty, scholarship aid, campus projects and a host of programs that amplify the Blair experience for each of our students. Throughout his 47 years of service to Blair, Jack Bogle encouraged every member of the Blair family to care for the School he held so dear. These honorees are leading the way for the future of Blair Academy." ■

Bogle Hall Renovation Creates State-of-the-Art Science Center

With the completion of a yearlong project to enlarge and renovate Bogle Hall, Blair now boasts a spacious, state-of-the-art science center that fully supports analytical and inquiry-based learning in the laboratory sciences. The $9-million undertaking represents the third academic building project completed at Blair in the past three years (see story on page 16), and the expanded Bogle Science Center has been designed and equipped from the ground up for optimal scientific studies.

'These Rooms Are Amazing'

Each of the Bogle Science Center's three floors is dedicated to a specific scientific discipline, with physics, biology and chemistry occupying the first, second and third floors, respectively. Glass-walled classrooms and labs throughout create an open aesthetic and allow passersby to observe in-progress research and experimentation. Meanwhile, large exterior windows allow for plenty of natural light and sweeping views of the campus landscape.

"These rooms are amazing," is how science department chair Kelly Hadden described the six combination classroom/labs (CLABs) outfitted for biology and physics. Among their many features, the spaces include moveable and height-adjustable lab benches and desks, out-of-the-way utility hookups in the ceilings and, for biology, large sinks for cleaning glassware.

On the third floor, glass walls separate three chemistry classrooms from adjacent labs, where "elephant trunk" exhaust hoods provide ventilation over each lab bench. The AP chemistry classroom and analytical chemistry lab, where new lab-based electives will be held, occupy prime real estate overlooking the golf course. Two psychology classrooms, a chemistry lab prep/storage area, and a conference-style classroom round out the building's top level.

Blair's Integrated Science Research (ISR) program is permanently housed in an expansive lab adjacent to the second-floor AP biology CLAB. Since ISR students may pursue research projects in any discipline from engineering to cell biology, the ISR lab is designed for maximum flexibility with large, moveable lab benches, and plenty of room for storage and new equipment, as needed.

Other unique elements of the Bogle Science Center include a first-floor astronomy classroom with full darkening capability and a nine-screen video wall in the building's entry atrium. In addition, Cowan Auditorium features upgraded flooring, furniture and mechanical systems, and leading-edge technology is installed throughout the building.

Designed for Collaboration

Students and faculty began making the most of the Bogle Science Center's expanded capabilities as classes got underway in September, and Mrs. Hadden is looking forward to even greater opportunities for hands-on, collaborative work that will immerse students in the science behind the theory they learn in class.

"The entire building was designed for collaboration and movement," she said. "No one teacher has a classroom that is exclusively his or hers. Multiple faculty members teach the same subject, and they move throughout the Bogle Science Center each day. We're sharing ideas, knowledge and expertise, all of which benefits our students in their study of science." ■

The Bogle Science Center was dedicated on October 19, 2019. Read more about the dedication and view photos at www.blair.edu/bogle-dedication.

Blair's 2019 girls' and boys' golf team members and their coaches, Athletic Director Paul Clavel '88 (standing, left) and history teacher Andrew Sykes (standing, right), were grateful for the opportunity to practice throughout the winter and spring in the J. Li Golf Training Center.

J. Li Golf Training Center Dedicated

On March 30, the Blair community dedicated the J. Li Golf Training Center, a state-of-the-art facility used by the boys' and girls' golf teams to hone their skills year-round. Both teams have earned numerous Mid-Atlantic Prep League (MAPL) and New Jersey prep "A" championships in recent years, including the boys' MAPL title for the past four years and state title in 2016, and the girls' MAPL title from 2015 to 2018 and state title in seven of the past nine years.

Parents, alumni, Trustees and friends of the School contributed more than $400,000 to fund construction of the J. Li Golf Training Center. Mr. Jingzhe Li and Ms. Kaiyan Chen, parents of Tianzhou (Brian) Li '19, named the center. ■

Blair Celebrated a Record-Setting Day of Giving!

The Blair community celebrated its fourth-annual Day of Giving on April 4 in fine style, with School spirit on display campus-wide and a record-setting 814 donors demonstrating their belief in Blair by making gifts to the Blair Fund. In total, the School received $211,812, with gifts coming from students, faculty, staff members, alumni, parents, grandparents and friends. The number of gifts well exceeded the advancement office's goal of 698 gifts, one for each member of the campus community.

"The Day of Giving really brought our community together as we remembered and celebrated the connections and relationships that make the Blair experience so meaningful," said Director of Annual Giving Colleen Smarth P'18 '20. "It was wonderful to see so many people honor special teachers and other members of the community with their gifts, and to know that parents and grandparents continue to appreciate Blair long after their children and grandchildren graduate."

Mrs. Smarth and Assistant Director of Annual Giving Anna Matthews oversaw on-campus Day of Giving events, including a "Blair Wear" day, donuts served by the magnolia tree throughout the morning, a special Chapel featuring Samantha Tilney '08 and student advancement ambassadors, and a picnic dinner in the Romano Dining Hall.

"We are so grateful to everyone who helped make the Day of Giving a success," Ms. Matthews said, giving special credit to the student advancement ambassadors, whose enthusiasm ignited participation throughout the day. "The community's strong belief in Blair was evident, and every Blair Fund gift supports today's students and teachers." ■

Softball Finishes Season as MAPL & State Champions!

The varsity softball team capped another successful season in May, winning its second-straight Mid-Atlantic Prep League (MAPL) and New Jersey Independent Schools Athletic Association (NJISAA) prep “A” state championship titles. The Lady Bucs ended the season with a MAPL record of 9-1 and claimed the state championship on May 16 by defeating Lawrenceville 3-2 in a tense battle before a home crowd.

For varsity softball head coach Carolyn Conforti-Browse '79, the season was marked by dedicated team members whose selfless attitudes made their collective accomplishments possible.

“Winning back-to-back MAPL titles is a huge accomplishment and a testament to the tenacity and drive of this team,” she said. “In the state championship game, Jesse Schable '19 struck out 13, while Gwen Safin '20, Gretchen Mayer '19 and Rachel Ninomiya '19 had the three crucial RBIs. Sydney Wolfe '20 scored the winning run. Middle infielders Katie Miller '21 and Jenna Van Valkenburg '21 locked down our defense, playing flawlessly. Jesse finished her career breaking the record for strikeouts and with more than 100 hits.”

In addition to clinching six state championships, Blair softball has earned seven MAPL championships since 2004. ■

Blair Celebrates Athletic Hall of Fame Class of 2019

Alumni of all ages filled the bleachers in Hardwick Hall's performance gym for the Alumni Weekend Athletic Hall of Fame induction ceremony on June 8. Five outstanding Blair athletes, each of whom represents the School's tradition of sportsmanship and athletic excellence, were honored at the event: Gerald T. Knapp '54, Anne E. Cramer '75, Melissa (Paul) Erne '96, Royal Ivey '00 and Dion Lewis '09.

Head of School Chris Fortunato noted that the inductees were being celebrated not only for the records or titles they had achieved but also for their grit, tenacity, integrity, spirit, and their love of sport and their teammates. "One of the things I continue to love about Blair athletics is our belief and commitment that every student, whether a national champion or one who has never kicked a soccer ball before, can get better, grow and contribute to the brotherhood and sisterhood of their teams," he said. "Our inductees are models of that spirit and people we are proud to call Blair Buccaneers for life."

Director of Athletics Paul Clavel '88 was grateful for the work of the Athletic Hall of Fame selection committee in choosing another extraordinary group of Blair alumni for induction. "The Athletic Hall of Fame ceremony continues to be a wonderful part of Alumni Weekend," he reflected. "It is especially moving to hear the inductees share their individual memories of their time at Blair and their gratitude toward the School, their coaches and teammates."

A highlight of the event came at the ceremony's conclusion, when Mr. Clavel announced the retirement of Mr. Lewis' Blair football jersey. Mr. Lewis is considered the most accomplished Blair football player, and a framed replica of his jersey, emblazoned with his name and number (33), now has a permanent home in Hardwick Hall.

Here, we introduce the members of Blair's Athletic Hall of Fame class of 2019.

Ken Knapp, son of the late Gerald T. Knapp '54, spoke of his father while holding the 1954 ACTA.

Gerald T. Knapp '54

Mr. Knapp came to Blair for his senior year, during which he captained the Buccaneer football and track teams and was named to the 1953 all-New Jersey football team. As a track athlete, he won titles in shot put and broad jump and earned second place in high jump at the national AAU prep division indoor meet at Madison Square Garden. He also broke high jump and shot put records and tied a record in high hurdles in a national indoor meet in Philadelphia. Mr. Knapp matriculated at Cornell University, where he played football and participated in track and field. He earned varsity letters in football in 1955, 1956 and 1957, and served as team captain his senior year. He was being scouted by the Cleveland Browns when he suffered a football-career-ending injury. In July 1957, Mr. Knapp placed first in broad jump, second in javelin throw and third in discus throw in a Philadelphia track meet that pitted a combined Cornell/University of Pennsylvania team against a British team from Oxford and Cambridge universities. The following June, the rival university teams competed in London, and Mr. Knapp placed second in discus throw and third in high jump. He was also the victor in high jump at a Dublin invitational meet in June 1958. Mr. Knapp died in 1996 at the age of 61.

Anne E. Cramer '75

An outstanding three-season athlete at a time when only approximately 270,000 girls nationwide participated in high school sports, Ms. Cramer earned varsity letters in field hockey, skiing and softball. She served as a senior tri-captain of the field hockey team, along with teammates Laura (Cochran) Morris '75 and Linda (Dobozynski) Pettie '75, and was a campus leader as a prefect and member of the Blue and White Key Society. Ms. Cramer was awarded the Phillips James Rosen Trophy as the top student in all respects as a junior and the Headmaster's Prize, given annually to the senior who displays conspicuous loyalty, outstanding leadership and a fine spirit in Blair life. She was the valedictorian at her Blair graduation and continued to ski as a member of the Dartmouth College ski team. Ms. Cramer was Blair's first alumna Trustee when she was elected to the Board in 1992, and she has served for 26 years, 13 of which as Board Secretary. In recognition of her dedication to her alma mater, Ms. Cramer was named Alumnus of the Year in 1998. She received Blair's highest honor, the Citation of Merit, in 2015.

Melissa (Paul) Erne '96

Winner of 11 varsity letters as a Buccaneer, Mrs. Erne won the Blair field hockey, ski and lacrosse prizes as a senior, as well as the William Zester Prize, given to the female athlete who best represents Blair in competition. She twice earned all prep "A" first-team recognition in field hockey and lacrosse, was the top scorer for both Buccaneer teams as a junior and senior, and captained the varsity field hockey and lacrosse teams during her senior year. A field hockey standout, she was named to the North Jersey Coaches' Association All-Star team for two consecutive years and represented team North in the New Jersey Coaches' Association state senior showcase. As a skier, Mrs. Erne was named to the first team all-state three times, and she was the state runner-up in giant slalom and third-place finisher in the combined. She represented New Jersey at the Eastern Regional skiing championship in New Hampshire. Mrs. Erne played lacrosse at Cornell University. She returned to Blair in 2000 as a member of the School's fine arts faculty and mentored the next generation of Buccaneer athletes as coach of the field hockey and girls' lacrosse teams for 15 years. She received recognition for her many contributions as a Blair faculty member with the Apgar Award for Teaching Excellence (2005) and Riether Dorm Master Prize (2010).

Royal Ivey '00

An NBA basketball player for a decade, Mr. Ivey was a member of the basketball and track teams during his postgraduate year at Blair. He played college basketball from 2000 to 2004 at the University of Texas at Austin, where he was twice named to the Big 12 all-defensive team (2003 and 2004) and finished as the all-time career leader in games started (126). Mr. Ivey began his professional basketball career with the Atlanta Hawks as the 37th overall pick in the 2004 NBA draft. He subsequently played for the Milwaukee Bucks, Philadelphia 76ers, Oklahoma City Thunder and the Guangdong Southern Tigers before retiring as a player in 2014. Mr.

For more about the Athletic Hall of Fame selection process and the selection committee, visit www.blair.edu/hall-of-fame.

Ivey then commenced his NBA coaching career, and he has served as an assistant coach for the Oklahoma City Blue, the Oklahoma City Thunder and, currently, the New York Knicks. Mr. Ivey's Blair jersey (number 12) was retired in 2009, along with the jerseys of his fellow NBA players, Luol Deng '03 and Charlie Villanueva '03.

Dion Lewis '09

A football standout, Mr. Lewis helped lead the Bucs to a 17-1 overall record during his two years at Blair (2007-2008 and 2008-2009). He captained the team and was named Mid-Atlantic Prep League (MAPL) offensive player of the year in 2008, during an undefeated season in which the Bucs won the MAPL championship and the New Jersey prep state championship. He also won the Brooks Football Prize (2008 and 2009) and earned varsity letters in track. Mr. Lewis played football at the University of Pittsburgh for two seasons. In 2009, he set the Big East freshman rushing record previously held by Tony Dorsett and was ranked third nationally in rushing. He set new records for most points by a Pitt freshman in the Big East championship game and most rushing yards by a Pitt freshman during the Meineke Car Care Bowl, for which he was named the game's MVP. Mr. Lewis was named national freshman of the year by the Sporting News and CBSSports.com and offensive freshman of the year by College Football News. In addition, he was named to the second team All-American, the only freshman to be named to the first or second team All-American that year. Mr. Lewis was the Big East Conference rookie of the year and offensive player of the year, the first player to earn both awards since Michael Vick, and he was the Eastern College Athletic Conference rookie of the year. Selected by the Philadelphia Eagles in the 2011 NFL draft, Mr. Lewis has since played for the Cleveland Browns, Indianapolis Colts, New England Patriots and, currently, the Tennessee Titans. He made two trips to the Super Bowl with the Patriots in 2017 and 2018, earning a Super Bowl ring in the Patriots' come-from-behind victory in 2017. Mr. Lewis's Blair jersey (number 33) was retired following his induction into the Athletic Hall of Fame. ■

"He found a campus of 11 acres; he leaves a campus of over 300 acres. He found buildings few in number, poorly equipped; he leaves a large group of buildings finely equipped for every school purpose. He found a school provincial in type of 100 pupils; he leaves a cosmopolitan school of 300 boys. He found a school of only local repute; he leaves a school famous throughout the country."

—Albert Myrick Freeman, on the legacy of Dr. John C. Sharpe, Headmaster 1898-1927

The John C. Sharpe Society Advisory Council is an important volunteer effort for the gift planning program that aims to grow Blair's endowment, ensuring the future financial stability of the School. Blair is grateful for the service of the members of this committee, who advise, advocate and advance planned giving at Blair Academy.

Mr. Roger D. Gershman '82

Thank You From the Board Chair

When my family first toured Blair more than a decade ago as my eldest daughter, Annie '12, was considering her high school options, we knew immediately that the School's people, programs and place offered something exceptionally different than anywhere else we had been. We saw faculty members' deep care for students as they guided them through every aspect of the Blair experience. As we walked across campus, everyone we passed smiled, made eye contact and welcomed us. And we agreed that Blair's robust and growing academic, athletic, arts and residential offerings would open up especially unique curricular and co-curricular learning opportunities that our kids would not have found at another institution.

Over the years, thanks to the hard work, generosity and support of our Trustees, parents, alumni, faculty, staff and friends, the School has only enhanced and built upon all of the things we love most about Blair: its emphasis on relationship-based learning and superior academic preparation, diverse and inclusive community, and forward-thinking programs and facilities. As Board Chair and proud dad to all four of my children who attended Blair, including my youngest, Scottie '22, who is now a sophomore, I can confidently say that Blair has never been stronger. And, given the dynamic focus of the pillars and initiatives of our bold new Strategic Plan, we are poised for even greater success as we move the School further forward to offer students from all backgrounds an exceptional, life-changing educational experience.

It is no coincidence that the goals of our Strategic Plan include many of the things that have always been best about Blair, while also ambitiously incorporating into our work courageous, forward-thinking approaches and programs. But, the heart of the plan is, of course, people, who have always been and will continue to be Blair's greatest asset.

With that in mind, I wanted to thank each member of this community who has contributed time, energy and treasure to supporting Blair's mission during 2018-2019. Because of your generosity, we supported academic departments, our fine and performing arts programs, our athletic teams and longtime campus traditions, such as Peddie Day and International Weekend festivities. We also secured scholarship support for 184 students and established a 2019 endowed class scholarship made possible by seniors and their parents, the 10th such scholarship created to date. The fact that donors honored 160 faculty and staff members with their gifts speaks to how highly they regard the dedication and hard work that make Blair an exceptional educational institution.

The Blair Fund, our most important philanthropic priority, surpassed the $3-million annual mark for the first time in School history. Capital and endowment donations totaled $5.47 million, and funds were allocated to maintaining the Chiang Center for Innovation and Collaboration, creating our winter sports complex, opening the J. Li Golf Training Center, renovating the Bogle Science Center, and developing initial plans for a crew center and dock for our rowing teams. We couldn't have achieved such success without our Advancement Committee, which helped lead our fundraising efforts totaling $8.49 million and engaging supporters around the globe.

Parent giving rose to 86 percent and alumni support remained steady at 27 percent, while our endowment has reached a record $105 million, $4.09 million of which we drew in 2018-2019 to offset operating expenses and support the $7.1 million we offered in financial aid. Our endowment also supported student travel opportunities, the Society of Skeptics, faculty professional development, and experiences and equipment for a number of Blair athletic teams. Our Investment Committee continues to do an outstanding job of securing Blair's financial future by employing a steady, long-range strategy, and I thank them for their expertise and time.

Of course, tuition is an essential component of our firm financial footing, and I am pleased to report that our admission office had another banner year: Blair received over 2,000 inquiries and more than 1,225 applications, enrolling 144 new students. Our admission counselors are doing more than ever before to advance the School's name and reputation around the globe, traveling 45,000 miles last year to 11 countries and 16 U.S. states and visiting more than 50 feeder schools to secure the best possible candidates to join Blair's student body.

Indeed, Blair's future has never looked brighter, and I look forward to another successful year ahead, something that would not be possible without your unmatched commitment, support and generosity.

With much gratitude,

Doug Kimmelman P'12 '13 '15 '22

Thomas J. Matthews. Mr. Matthews earned a bachelor's degree in economics from Utica College in 1993. He enjoyed investing in the stock market and became a self-taught day trader. Mr. Matthews loved traveling and scuba diving, and he took part in an archeological dig in Egypt. He is survived by his parents and sister.

1994

Joseph P. Cunningham. A football player at Blair, Mr. Cunningham earned a degree in history at Denison University in 1998. He later graduated from the French Culinary Institute in New York City and worked in several Knoxville, Tennessee, restaurants before becoming the executive chef at Northshore Brasserie. His talent, generosity and kindness to others were well known among those in the Knoxville restaurant community. Mr. Cunningham's survivors include his wife, Laura Petit, and their two children.

Former Faculty

Peter K. Hahn. A beloved member of Blair's faculty from 1970 to 1994, Mr. Hahn served as director of admission, director of college counseling, senior academic counselor, advisor to international students, and a history and English teacher during his 24-year tenure. His kindness and gentleness endeared him to a generation of Buccaneers, and his impact is evident on campus to this day, as plaques given in his honor hang on Timken Library's main entry doors and in Hardwick Hall's college counseling office. In addition, Mr. Hahn is an honorary member of the class of 1994, and the 1978 ACTA was gratefully dedicated to him "for his active concern for Blair." A 1961 graduate of Hobart College, Mr. Hahn received his master's degree in medieval history from the University of St Andrews in 1991. He served in the U.S. Navy Reserve, achieving the rank of lieutenant. Mr. Hahn taught at Taipei American School for six years after leaving Blair. He then settled in Austin, Texas, where he worked as an administrative assistant for St. David's Episcopal Church and Habitat for Humanity, organizations of which he was proud to be a part. Mr. Hahn returned to Blair in 2004 to speak about "Building Houses for the Needy" at the Society of Skeptics. He loved Blair, and his survivors include his brother, three sisters, numerous nieces, nephews and cousins, and many friends throughout the extended Blair family.

Patane '13, Mr. Patane was a devoted Blair parent and supporter of Buccaneer crew, field hockey, swimming and skiing. He and his wife, Ana, were like a second family for Blair rowers during the years their children were students at the School.
