

Completion of McArthur Hall a Cause for Celebration

You cannot help but be excited when you visit the refurbished and reconfigured McArthur Hall. The transformation is breath-taking and shows just what we can achieve with the support of the College community. Funding from the Department of Education and substantial gifts from generous donors, means we have been able to realise our dream of turning this magnificent Victorian building into an exciting learning resource that will benefit every pupil in the College.

The new McGrath Library, housed in the former dining hall, provides our pupils with enhanced reading and research facilities; blending traditional architectural features with next generation IT infrastructure.

In this stimulating environment they will have myriad opportunities to develop the range of skills needed to succeed in the changing educational and employment landscape

Former dormitories have been converted to classrooms that will ultimately house business studies, moving image arts, IT and careers. These subjects and services will give Methody pupils the opportunity to be prepared to play a leading role in their community, helping to develop the expanding areas of the local economy.

Respecting the history and integrity of the buildings been a key consideration throughout the development of McArthur. As a consequence, the end product is truly magnificent.

We've only just begun...

With your support we can deliver the rest of our educational vision, building a legacy for the next 150 years.
