

Priority Standards: Psychology

1. Define, explain, and apply concepts, behavior, theories, and perspectives.

- Define and/or apply concepts.
- Explain behavior in authentic context.
- Apply theories and perspectives in authentic contexts.

2. Analyze and interpret qualitative and quantitative information and data.

- Analyze the results of research studies.
- Connect results of a research study to a psychological principle, process, concept, theory, or perspective.
- Use statistics to analyze information and data.

3. Conduct, analyze, and evaluate scientific investigations.

- Identify the research method or design used.
- Describe ethical and/or research design flaws.
- Describe the appropriate use of a research method or design.
- Explain how ethical and/or research design flaws can be corrected.
- Explain why a research method or design is appropriate.
- Describe implications or limitations of the research.
- Explain why conclusions are or are not appropriate based on the method and/or design.