A Note from Mrs. Schuhmacher

We hope you have December 18 marked on your calendar for our annual Christmas programs. Younger students will perform in the morning at 10am and then the older students will perform the same program at two different times, 2pm and 6:30pm. I have included more information below about each Christmas program.

Please take a minute to look through the materials posted by our counselor, Mrs. Abbott in the Counseling News section. She hosted parents for an informational session with Katie Bushmiaer on organization this past week. I think these resources are something we could all use.

Finally, I hope you all have a wonderful weekend and are able to cheer on some of our PSL basketball teams as they have their first games this weekend. Go, Wildcats!

Sincerely,

Catherine Schuhmacher
Head of Lower School

Lower School Christmas Program - Wednesday, December 18

The entire Episcopal Collegiate School community is warmly invited to attend the Lower School Christmas Programs on Wednesday, December 18 in the Erwin Performance Hall.

PreK - 1st Program at 10:00 a.m.

Silent Mice, Holy Mice tells the charming story of how the carol Silent Night was written. It's winter and the church mice need a new home. They find the church organ at St. Nicholas in Oberndorf, Austria and nestle in. Unfortunately those nibbly mice cause the organ to break just before Christmas Eve! What will they do? Can Pastor Mohr and his friend Franz Gruber come up with something in time?

2nd-5th Grade Program at 2:00 p.m. and 6:30 p.m.

Miracle at Bethlehem tells the story of Jesus' birth with humor and love. There are old and new stars, a swaggering Mayor of Bethlehem with his two sniveling assistants and a town full of citizens, shepherds from the countryside, an array of interesting angels, and even some overthinking wise men with a cantankerous camel! We hope to make your heart smile with this funny and touching rendition of the Christmas story!

Christmas Program Concert Etiquette

We are teaching our young Wildcats about performance etiquette and manners. Please help us set the example by staying for the whole performance, and waiting until the entire show is done to congratulate your student on their performance. It shows respect for all the students who have worked hard to make a wonderful show. Thank you and enjoy!

Christmas Program DVD Orders

Christmas Program DVDs are available for purchase for $20 each. Fill out this form or see Tonya Thomas in the Lower School Office to order. Orders are due by 6:30 pm Wed. Dec. 18.

Co-Curricular News - P.E.

This week in our pre-k classes, the students have worked on developing their coordination in regards to hitting and passing to each other using “pillow polo” sticks and balls. They then moved on to taking shots on our pop up goals, all the while focusing on lining up the shot before swinging, and ensuring the safety of their classmates by being sure to swing the stick below the waist at all times.

Our kindergarten and first graders are currently in a Sending and Receiving unit. In this unit we are learning how to toss and catch a ball alone and with a partner, kick a moving ball, and demonstrate the characteristics of a proper throw. The students work hard at practicing these skills for the first half of the class period and then use them in competitive games of swamp ball and three ball soccer for the second half. Next week, we will begin a fitness unit where we will introduce different fitness concepts and how we can apply them to our activities.

Second and third grades recently completed a unit on volleyball. We learned three basic skills: bump, set, and spike. We practiced these skills using beach balls and light weight volleyballs. We then learned game rules and participated in competitive volleyball games with a tournament to conclude the unit. As most of our third graders will be starting PSL basketball this week, we will begin our unit on basketball with our focus being the fundamentals of dribbling, passing, shooting, and defense.

Fourth and fifth graders have been working on teamwork, spatial awareness, agility, throwing accuracy, and catching ability this week through various dodgeball based games. The favorite of them all has been what we call "swampball", in which the two teams must work together in order to capture the other team's players, while simultaneously working to free their own teammates. We have used different types of balls for the various games to change up the level of difficulty, and keep the competitions interesting.

Study Skills for the Week in 4th & 5th Grades - Reading Strategies

This week, students will review all of the reading strategies we have been learning about this quarter in Study Skills. Our focus will be on figuring out when each strategy is most helpful. You can brainstorm these opportunities at home as well. When might skimming be a helpful tool? (when gathering research sources; when deciding if a novel is a good choice at the library). When might scanning be a helpful tool? (when looking for a specific product in an ad; when looking for articles about a specific product). All of the strategies won't be appropriate all of the time. It's important to know how to use all of these strategies so that you can use the best one on the most appropriate task to make your work easier!

Chapel News

This week in Godly Play, we will hear about all the different characters traveling to Bethlehem such as the wise men, shepherds, and Mary and Joseph. We will also journey into the nativity story and consider the mystery and love found at the heart of the Christmas. Please note that our Jesse Tree Ornaments will stay on our tree in the school atrium until Epiphany on January 6. Please do not take the ornaments from the tree. In January they will be carefully taken down, packaged and sent home with your child.

In our community chapel, we have a special performance from our very own Wildcat Chorale as they share Christmas songs with us.

A Note from Dr. McCormick

Dear Parents,

This past Monday, Mrs. Radtke joined us at Morning Meeting to talk about resources that she and Ms. Melissa offer to prepare for exams. She also met with our newest students - the sixth grade - to review study strategies in greater detail. Please note that your child may reach out to Mrs. Radtke via email for some one-on-one assistance with exam studying and organization, and Mrs. Radtke or Ms. Melissa will meet with them for this. Noted in the section below are some tips (provided by Mrs. Radtke) for parents, along with a timeline that may help you in supporting your child.

Best,

Chuck McCormick
Head of Middle School

Exam Resources from Mrs. Radtke

Important Exam Preparation Information from the Academic Achievement Center:

I have been meeting with different student groups this week, and will continue next week, to review important information about studying for exams. Below are some strategies that you can reinforce with your child in the weeks ahead.

- Students tend to think that their learning is more complete than it really is. Beware of the “feeling-of-knowing”. Often, students may think they have an understanding of material when in reality is it just familiarity from having seen it several times. Rereading notes can have this effect. Students recognize material and, therefore, mistake that for recollection. The best way to make certain that the information is learned is for students to self-test before the exam!
- Students tend to underestimate the amount of time needed to reach mastery. In fact, most students allocate on average only about 68% of the study time needed. Help your child to budget for that extra 30% of time needed. “Overlearning” material will help to counter the forgetting that can sometimes happen on exam day due to anxiety or fatigue.

- Material is better encoded into long term memory when it is studied over distributed study sessions that are shorter in length. This is known as the spacing effect. Students who study in small chunks over several study sessions remember better than 67% of students who cram.
- Know the facts, but focus on connections and deeper meaning. Students should attempt to group information by theme or concepts and make personal connections to the information. Learning accompanied by meaning rather than rote memorization is better encoded and more easily recalled.
- Memory and recall are dramatically affected by fatigue and anxiety. Make sure students are getting the 9-9.5 hours of sleep recommended for this age group. Limit screen time in the evenings to give brains a rest. Explore using relaxation and mindfulness techniques to create a sense of calm and focus on exam days.

Week of December 2-6: GET ORGANIZED

- Clean out all of your notebooks and folders
- Put notes, quizzes, tests, etc. together by chapters or units and label them

Weekend of December 6-8: GET FAMILIAR WITH THE MATERIAL AGAIN

- Prime your brain by looking over the material you will need to study.
- Look over novel quizzes and reading questions.
- Print off history powerpoints to review.
- Look over quizzes, past study guides for Science

Week of December 9-13: STUDY IN SECTIONS

- Look at how many units you have for each subject to decide how to chunk your studying. Plan to cover a unit of material for a couple of subjects each night.
- Look at the content to decide the best study strategy
  - 1. Vocabulary lends itself to quizlet or notecards
  - 2. Dates can be learned by making a timeline
  - 3. Novels can be studied using chapter summaries, graphic organizers, character maps, reviewing themes, etc.
- Complete any study guides provided to you. Have your teacher check your study guide to make sure you are studying the correct material. Attend extra help sessions.
- Follow your study schedule each night.

- Distributed practice is more effective than cramming!
- Beware of “REREADING”. Just because something looks familiar doesn’t mean you really know the material. Can you “recall” the information for a test or can you merely “recognize” the information?

Weekend of December 13-16: TEST YOURSELF

- Don’t let the exam be the first time you realize you didn’t know the material as well as you thought you did. TEST YOURSELF.
- This is the perfect time to take quizlets, make a practice test out of the study guide, etc. Now that you know what you don’t know, you know where to focus your remaining study time during exam week.
- We remember things most effectively when we attach meaning to them and make connections. Don’t just memorize facts- understand the connections between the facts! This is how information gets stored into long term memory more effectively.

December 17-20: EXAMS

Exam week! Review in the afternoon, take a nice break to relax and recharge, and get to bed early so you are well rested!

Happy Studying and Happy Holidays,
Mrs. Radtke

Attention MS Girls!

Due to PSL Basketball games being played in all three gyms, there will be no volleyball practice on Saturday, December 7.

Middle School Destination Imagination (DI) Club Fundraiser

Destination Imagination is a club that focuses on innovation, leadership skills, and creative problem solving. Each team focuses on a challenge and presents at the state competition in March. The Wild Spacecats selected a service-learning project. They are focusing on students in middle school that are currently receiving treatment at Arkansas Children's Hospital. Through collaboration with Ronald McDonald House, the Destination Imagination Club is holding a drive for games and toys suitable for middle school students. These games will be delivered to the Ronald McDonald House in Little Rock, which will benefit middle school aged children staying at the facilities. Items might include legos, puzzles, board games, card games, or other items suitable for middle school students. Please bring your items to your advisor or the Middle School library by Friday, December 13.

Thank you,

Jennifer Agee
Faculty Sponsor

Community Service Opportunity

Middle School Athlete of the Week

This week's Middle School Athlete of the Week is eighth grade boys' basketball player, Christian Wells. Christian Wells has gone above and beyond in leading and displaying those qualities, and I am proud to give him this Athlete of the Week award. Way to go, Christian!

Semester Exam Schedule

For your planning purposes, we have included the semester exam schedule here. Monday, December 16, is our last, regular class day for the first semester. For those of you new to Episcopal or the Middle School, during exam days students are only present at school for their exam and possibly a review session for the next exam, if a given teacher schedules this. We do not hold classes, serve lunch, or provide after care during these days. Consequently, carpool pickup time is typically 10:00 a.m. most exam days.

A Note from Mr. Urquhart

I hope that the Thanksgiving holiday offered you a chance to spend time with friends and family and to reflect on the many things we have to be grateful for. I spent part of the holiday with a friend from high school who was recovering from surgery, and the time I was able to spend with him reminded me of the important relationships that often form during our high school years--in this case, a friendship formed in my tenth-grade English class has lasted decades. It's these types of relationships that are at the core of our school community, that form the foundation for all of the great things our students are able to accomplish, and I'm thankful to be part of a school community where personal relationships are so highly valued.

Parents of students in grades 10, 11, and 12 should be on the lookout for information coming soon about the Highlands Ability Battery, which we'll be offering to students this spring. The Highlands Ability Battery is an objective, strengths-based assessment that can help students better understand their natural abilities, and results can be used to help identify coursework, colleges, and career fields that align well with those abilities. You can read more about the Highlands Ability Battery on their website or contact Ms. Anna TerAvest for more information about HAB offerings at our school.

I know that our students are hard at work with final assignments and that they're beginning to prepare for semester exams. With this in mind, it's important that we're mindful of the stresses that students sometimes feel during the final days of a semester. Our advisors are a good resource for students as they prepare for exams and manage their commitments during a busy time of the academic year. Students who feel that they would benefit from additional help organizing study materials, tips on study strategies, or an individualized plan to prepare for exams should make an appointment with Ms. Melissa Wilson-Baker in the AAC.

Our Reading Days this semester in the Upper School will begin after lunch on Thursday, December 12, and will continue through Monday, December 16. Our teachers do not cover new material or give assessments on Reading Days--these days create some space for reflection between the daily work of the semester and the beginning of exams, and they offer opportunities for students to actively review for their examinations with their teachers.

Semester exams will begin on Tuesday, December 17, and conclude on Friday, December 20, with the Christmas holiday beginning that afternoon. As a reminder, if you're making travel plans for the holiday, please make sure that your travel plans don't conflict with the semester exam schedule, as we expect that students will take their exams at the scheduled times.

Troy Urquhart
Head of Upper School

Here is an example of an email US parents could receive if your child has taken ibuprofen or Tylenol while at school. We have trained unlicensed assistive personnel who assist in medication administration, and before ibuprofen or acetaminophen can be given we check Veracross to see if the parent has given permission for the student to take the medication. If you are unsure if you have given permission for medication administration look in the parent portal.
