Job Summary:

The Department of English and Modern Languages of Wingate University invites applications for a security-track Assistant or Associate Professor of English with a specialty in Rhetoric and Composition. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Rhetoric and Composition with a record of undergraduate teaching excellence and evidence of scholarly potential. Preference may be given to applicants with sub-specialties in digital humanities, digital rhetoric, ESL, or developmental writing.

The successful candidate will demonstrate the ability to balance excellence in teaching 4 courses (12 credit hours) per semester with other responsibilities. Courses will include first-year writing and advanced composition; other courses will be determined by the appointee's specialties. Service responsibilities will include student advising and mentoring, departmental service, and committee service under Wingate University's governance structure.

Primary Duties and Responsibilities:

- Primarily teaching first-year writing
- Teaching advanced composition and other advanced writing courses
- Developing courses in the appointee's specialty, such as digital humanities and/or digital rhetoric, to complement and expand upon current departmental offerings
- Advising and mentoring undergraduate students

Minimum Requirements:

- Earned Ph.D. in Rhetoric and Composition by August 2020.
- Evidence of undergraduate teaching excellence
- Evidence of scholarly promise

Salaries and benefits at Wingate are competitive and commensurate with experience.
