Matt Murray

Actor

CURRENT Position/Role: Actor

Matt Murray is currently playing the supporting role of Julianne Nicholson's deputy "Tony" in USA's acclaimed series Eyewitness and can also be seen guest starring on NBC's hit series Blindspot.

Fans also know him as the hilarious "Brian" in the ABC Freeform comedy series Kevin from Work from Barbie Adler and McG now airing on Netflix. Previously he shot the series regular role of "Doyle" opposite Jason Lee and Alyssa Milano in the CBS comedy pilot What Goes Around Comes Around and starred for 2 seasons as 15 Division's brand-new new rookie, "Duncan Moore", on Global/ABC's popular dramatic series Rookie Blue.

A Detroit native, Murray moved to Toronto after graduating high school to pursue acting. He received a degree in Theatre Performance from the esteemed Humber School of Creative Arts and was subsequently accepted to the prestigious Canadian Film Centre Actors Conservatory, a program that selects only 8 actors from across Canada per year.

After school, Murray landed a recurring role on the CW/Much Music series LA Complex as "Manny", and as "Daniel" on Bite TV's comedic series Guidance. Additionally, Murray has guest starred on Global/NBC's The Firm as well as USA's series Suits.
