

Press Release

Monday 3rd February 2020

Globeducate and WWF Announce Global Collaboration

- Globeducate and WWF to collaborate in nine countries on the international schools' group's Global Agenda for change across 50+ schools.
- Programme launched in January 2020 in schools in Canada, Europe and Asia.

An exciting partnership between Globeducate and WWF will impact on the education of more than 25,000 young people and their wider communities. Globeducate is one of the leading K-12 international schools' groups in the world, with more than 50 schools in 10 countries and has launched a global agenda for change which prepares its students to become global citizens who can shape the world.

The partnership will see all schools host screenings of the Netflix Our Planet series and educational activities associated with this for the whole school community. Students will also take part in the charity's Wear it Wild event in June, raising money to protect endangered species. Other activities will include students attending a summit at the WWF-UK Living Planet Centre, guest speaker events at individual schools, and attendance for students in the UK at the David Attenborough Premiere screening at the Royal Albert Hall.

"The challenges that lie ahead for society as a result of climate change and biodiversity loss are global ones. Connecting students, teachers and educational programmes across borders is therefore a powerful tool in preparing the next generations to tackle these challenges and play a key role in defining a sustainable future. WWF's partnership with Globeducate schools across nine countries is crucial, allowing us to inspire and engage a global educational community at this pivotal time for our planet." Matt Larsen-Daw, Our Planet Education Manager at WWF-UK.

"We are delighted to be the first international schools' group to work this closely with WWF. Globeducate schools prepare each student to be a global citizen who can shape the world and we launched our global agenda at the start of this year. With the WWF having played a key role in identifying the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals for 2030, it was a natural partnership for us. WWF will support our schools in sourcing inspirational speakers and our teachers will have access to online training ." Daniel Jones, Chief Education Officer of Globeducate

• • • About Globeducate

Globeducate is one of the world's leading premium K12 education organisations, with 55 schools located in France, Spain, United Kingdom, Italy, Portugal, Canada, Andorra, Qatar and India.

A fundamental aim of Globeducate is that we prepare each student to shape the world and to understand their place in it as a global citizen. Our bespoke gold standard school quality programme ensures that our 25,000 students from age two to 18 have the best start in life.

Globeducate schools evolved from NACE Schools, founded nearly 50 years ago in Spain. The last ten years have seen significant growth in the group's network and vision. Our global reach enables us to recruit and develop world-class inspiring and committed teachers and to offer unforgettable experiences for pupils and staff through international and regional events.

For more information, please visit www.globeducate.com

For media enquiries, please contact:

Amy Grace

Globeducate Communications Manager

amy.grace@globeducate.com

Mobile/Whatsapp:

+4478 1723 2184

About WWF

WWF (Worldwide Fund for Nature) is one of the world's largest independent conservation organisations, active in nearly 100 countries.

Our supporters – more than five million of them – are helping us to restore nature and to tackle the main causes of nature's decline, particularly the food system and climate change. We're fighting to ensure a world with thriving habitats and species, and to change hearts and minds so it becomes unacceptable to overuse our planet's resources.

WWF. For your world.

For wildlife, for people, for nature.

Find out more about our work, past and present at wwf.org.uk