On-line Supplemental Resource:

Visual Musical Minds You-Tube Channel <https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCjUxQg9cHiOYqaRdtZ6pfoQ>

Scroll down past the Ukulele lessons and you will see lessons on the Recorder & Rhythm Reading.

Information for parents about Visual Musical Minds:

Rhythm- The rhythm lessons found above we used this year in class. They get progressively more difficult. Some students really enjoy them! If your child would like to clap a few of these (1-2 per day) (they are not too long). This could count as a "Bingo Square". Please initial and date on the Bingo Sheet in the margin that your child did this activity.

Recorder- Scroll down past the Ukulele lessons and open the Recorder tutorials. These progress and become more challenging. Fourth and Fifth Grade students who own a recorder and who are planning on playing an instrument in Middle School may prefer this. Please just log down the dates/time they worked on Recorder in lieu of a "Bingo" square. We were not able to begin recorders before the school closures but if a fourth grade student owns a recorder and wants to try they may. Sometimes older siblings may be able to help as well.

I would recommend that they study the picture/diagrams to the left of the screen on the Visual Musical Mind Recorder tutorial. For all students who try the recorder- remind your child not to put too much air into the instrument. Gentle air is best. Have students hold out their palm of the hand and ask them to pretend they are gently blowing a feather and barely making it move. If students place too much air into the instrument this is called over-blowing. Fourth Grade students may need more guidance with this.

I hope that these activities will be fun and not too stressful. Please reach out if you have any questions during the next few weeks. My Office Hours are Monday thru Friday 9:00-11:00 am. Email: lcordova@tusd.net .

Sincerely,

Loraly Cordova
