British literary works of various genres are studied in relationship to the historical and cultural forces that influenced them and led to various literary movements. Students further develop and refine language skills in preparation for college, including grammar, vocabulary, reading, and comprehension. Using representative examples from each period, students analyze, interpret and reflect upon changes in language and the development of literary traditions. Opportunities are provided for writing, speaking, and listening, including the research and writing of a literary analysis and research paper with proper bibliographic and parenthetical citations.
