

MARY ANNING

PALAEONTOLOGIST

(DOB: May 21, 1799)
(DOD: March 9, 1847)

Mary Anning was a famous fossil hunter and collector. She found many prehistoric fossils and sold them to make money for her family.

Mary Anning lived in the small town near the seaside of Lyme Regis named Dorset on south coast of England. When Mary was 15 months old three women were holding her when struck by lightning and died, but luckily Mary Anning survived.

Mary Anning was the first person to uncover Ichthyosaurus skull. This was an important discovery of a huge fossil. The world had never seen before. Mary found fossils in the Jurassic marine fossil beds on the English Channel at Lyme Regis. People would always come to see her fossils there.

Men of science came to see the fossil and take it to London to display in the British Museum.

FUN Facts

Mary Anning like to sell the small fossils for a 1p each.

By: Aarav Ahuja. Year 3

THE FLYING SAUCER!

It was late evening, almost dark.

"I think I left my ball in the playground. Let's just go and get it before we go home," said Tom to Sukaj.

They squeezed through the gap in the fence into the playground. It was a great safe place to kick a football round without people complaining about it hitting their cars.

"What on Earth is that?" exclaimed Sukaj.

A bright green light filled the sky just above the playground and it seemed to be dropping down in front of them.

"Flying Saucer! It's a flying Saucer!"

cried Tom.

It landed in the middle of the playground with blinking lights all around it.

"Wow! What a huge beautiful Saucer," said Tom.

The Saucer opened from the side and an alien came out and offered the boys an adventure to the outer space.

"What do you say?" said Tom to Sukaj, he said yes quickly and they both agreed to the alien.

Now the journey begins!

They landed on Jupiter, one of the giant planets - they learned something about Jupiter, and how our Earth looks from the outer space.

"It looks so different and beautiful," said Tom.

After a few days of living in space and an adventure they landed back in the playground then the alien gifted them the Philosopher Stone.

"Now it's time to go back home," said Sukaj.

They both went home and off to sleep -
When Jan woke up the next day all of that was a dream.