They have all volunteered their time to create free-to-access inspiring TED-style talks, insightful careers-focused presentations, interactive sessions, Q&As, active sessions and much more too.

Next steps

We will send you further information about the event before the day, to give you time to find out more about the speakers and the sessions they will be delivering. We will also send over information about social media channels and other ways you can get involved with the day too.

We would also recommend that you have a notebook and pen to hand, for taking down notes during your day. We will share online and printable resources to support you in doing this.

Start thinking about how you can make positive change right now, as I know many of you have been doing at this time— and how you would like to become a change maker in the future.

We hope you are excited about this unique day and look forward to sharing more information with you very soon.

With very best wishes,
