Response Form for Wonder

Note: I prefer that your answers be typed on the computer, as most of your work this year will be typed; however, you may use your best handwriting to complete this form. In the end, what you turn into me should be neat and well written, with all answers being done in complete sentences.

Title: Wonder

Author: _____

Setting-When: _____

Setting-Where: _____

Conflict(Main problem in the book): _____

Climax: _____

Characterizations: On the next page, write a characterization of each of these characters. A characterization tells what the character is like and what makes them that way. What kind of person are they?

Example: Johnny is a very responsible and caring boy. I feel this way because he always seems to make the right decision, whether anyone is watching or not. In addition, he is always doing something for others, like when he raked his elderly neighbor's leaves for no reason.(You can write more if you like or need to to make your point.)

Wonder Thought Questions

Some questions have multiple parts. Be sure to answer each part thoroughly.

- 1. The book, Wonder, is written from many points of view. What is an advantage for you, the reader, when a book is written this way? What was your favorite point of view and why?
- 2. After being friendly to Auggie for the first two months of school, why do you think Jack stood in the classroom on Halloween and bad mouthed Auggie?
- 3. Except for one time, there are no capitals in Justin's point of view. Why do you think that is so?
- 4. Which one of Mr. Brown's precepts is your favorite? What does that precept mean and why is it your favorite?
