This is a commitment to a better and brighter
350 Masonic Avenue

> Educate, nurture, and inspire...the spaces that are being added and renovated deal with enhancing our students' creativity and innovation. We are creating spaces for this generation and the generations to come.
> — KAREN RICHARDS, ART TEACHER

This is our day!
The Campaign for San Francisco Day School
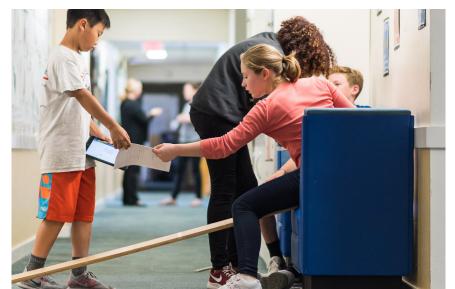

Room to Learn, Grow & Breathe

In adding 16,500 square feet to our campus, we not only deepen and expand our academic program, we also create significant opportunities to spread out in our current facility and generate space for collaboration, much needed quiet, and small group work that reflects how our students and teachers learn and teach.

We also envision a larger faculty work space named in honor of veteran history teacher Joel Young. "The Joel Young Faculty Commons" will nearly double the size of the current faculty lounge, providing room to connect, plan, and work.

> I'm excited about the additional spaces for specials: performing arts, innovation, and P.E. These areas often feel the greatest impact due to scheduling changes, and I look forward to protecting a space for their work.
> — SYLVIA RODRIGUEZ DOUGLASS
>   UNIVERSAL DESIGN FOR LEARNING COACH

Renovations to 350 Masonic: At a Glance

- Our campus expansion will enable even more cross-curricular and cross-grade collaboration among our teachers.
- The Joel Young Faculty Commons will serve over 100 dedicated faculty and staff members each day.
- Our new entrance on Golden Gate will include a welcoming lobby for our community, connecting the new spaces with our existing facility.
- Valuable green spaces will become available in our courtyards for classes, small group work, and quiet areas to gather, learn, and share.
- New academic adjacencies will open up the possibilities for collaboration and sharing of resources. Music rooms, administrative departments, world language classrooms, science, arts, and innovation are all top of mind as we plan for our future.