

University of South Carolina - Application opens August 1st.

The University of South Carolina Early Action deadline is October 15th. Students applying EA will receive a decision by mid-December. December 1st is the Regular application deadline.

We would recommend that you use the USC institutional application.

USC has gone test-optional for this fall, so students may choose not to send scores. If you are testing later this fall, you can update your application to USC after it has been submitted.

Your will need to upload an unofficial copy of your transcript into the USC application.

USC does not admit to major, but they will ask you what major you are considering on the application. Although they don't take major into consideration as they are making admissions decisions, be careful about indicating Business as a possible major. This major is particularly competitive and can be difficult to gain entrance as a freshman.

The Naviance scattergram for USC is attached. This chart indicates admissions decisions for the Class of 2020.
