Meet Liz Ross: Karsh Center’s New Director

Liz Ross first heard about Wilshire Boulevard Temple’s Karsh Family Social Service Center at a brunch hosted by her friends, Temple members Joan Harrison and Michael Janofsky. A licensed clinical social worker, Liz listened with interest to a discussion about how the center would be a multi-service destination for health care, legal aid, and other resources. At the time, she was, in her words, “heavily pregnant” with her now four-month-old son Ezra. “So when Rabbi Leder semi-jokingly asked me, ‘Do you want to lead the Center?’ she remembers, “I pointed to my belly and laughed.”

However, when Liz took a tour of the Karsh Center, she says she just “couldn’t get it out of my mind.” Today, she’s the center’s new director and thrilled with the new opportunity to apply her years of expertise serving families and communities. “Tikkun olam has been a guiding principle of my life,” she explains, “and I’m honored to be part of this innovative program that will offer services and fill gaps that are not being filled by the government or the county.”

Raised in New York, Liz earned undergraduate and graduate degrees in social work from NYU, and her career experience includes six years as a member of a child-advocacy team at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York as well as creating a groundbreaking post-partum support group at UCLA Medical Center, Santa Monica. Most recently, Liz served as Associate Director for the Magnolia Community Initiative, an organization serving some 35,000 children in low-income neighborhoods near the Temple’s Glazer Campus.

“I’m a creative thinker and a really good listener,” she says of her leadership skills. “It’s so important to make sure you listen to the people you are trying to serve.”

In her first year on the job at the Karsh Center, Liz will focus on strategic planning and relationship building, including with Temple members interested in volunteer opportunities. “My greatest hope,” she says, “is that the center becomes a trusted community resource for both our clients and the congregation.”

his month we meet one of my favorite, and least celebrated, Torah characters: Essau, the twin brother of Jacob (one of Judaism’s patriarchs), whose journey is one of healing and hope—and forgiveness.

In Vayishlach, Jacob and Essau reunite after many years. Their separation had come about when Jacob and his mother, Rebecca, stole the birthright blessing intended for Essau. In a heartbreaking moment, Essau had cried out to his father to give him a blessing, but Isaac said it was too late—Jacob had taken it and then fled to avoid his brother’s wrath. Living with his uncle Laban, Jacob encounters what it felt like to be tricked as Laban deceives him in marriage making him work for many years to marry the person he loves. Jacob then leaves his uncle and journeys on, crossing through Essau’s land for the first time in many years. He is filled with fear at the prospect of meeting his brother again, but Essau embraces Jacob and kisses him upon their reunion. Jacob tries to offer him placating gifts but Essau says, “No, Jacob, it is ok. Yesh li rav—I have in abundance.” I am not in need of anything from you, my brother.

What a profound moment this must have been for Essau, who had stayed with his mother following his brother’s deception, knowing that she favored Jacob. The text does not tell us what Essau did during the years that Jacob lived with Laban’s family, yet it is clear that, to be able to have such a tender reconciliation, Essau had been able to heal his deep hurt. He is a grand example of the soul work that our tradition asks us to do. Essau forgives his brother. He opens his heart and decides to not feed the flames of resentment. He frees his brother from a spiritual prison. In doing so he frees himself too because he no longer has to spend the energy guarding the door of that prison with resentment, hurt, and anger. They are both free to meet each other again anew. He is the ancestor whose journey I call upon when I struggle with the complexities of forgiveness.

Big Give: Save a Life with a Pint

I had never thought about donating blood until my father-in-law had heart surgery and my wife, Ashley, and I were asked to go to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center to donate. I was not aware that there was a blood shortage. I had no idea what a difference a pint of blood could make.

Consider the following facts:
- More than 4.5 million patients need blood transfusions each year in the United States
- 43,000 pints of donated blood are used in the United States every day
- Someone needs blood every 2 seconds
- One pint of blood can save up to 3 lives
- Much of today’s medical care depends on a steady supply of blood from healthy donors
- A patient could be forced to pass up a lifesaving organ if compatible blood is not available to support the transplant

- 17% of non-donors cite “never thought about it” as the main reason for not giving; 15% say they’re too busy
- The rarest blood type is the one not on the shelf when it’s needed by a patient

This year, as we come together on November 22 for the Big Give to distribute one thousand Thanksgiving meals to those in need, we are going to be giving in a new way—we are going to give blood. In partnership with Cedars-Sinai, we are creating an opportunity for all of us who are able to save a life with a pint of blood.

Honoring our Veterans

As Jews, we have a long history of displaying courage in defense of our way of life, whether fighting from the top of Masada, in the ghettos of Europe, or in the heart of Israel. Throughout our history, our people have joined the armed forces of every nation that allowed us freedom and equality, and fought with courage and resolve to protect our families and fellow citizens. In Hebrew the idea of courage is tied to the heart. The term ḥamets le’le’l (courage of the heart) comes from the root חַמֵּט, meaning to be stout, strong, bold, and alert. We honor all those from our congregation for their courage of the heart and thank them for their military service to our nation and the nation of Israel. These men and women have helped safeguard our lives and the lives of countless others around the world. They are our מָאָרִים, our guardians.

Ali Sagadencky, Rabbinic Intern

You are invited to a special Veteran’s Shabbat service to honor the Temple’s own veterans of the armed forces. Join us on Friday, November 13, at 6:00 p.m. at the Irmas Campus as an Armed Forces Color Guard salutes our veterans, we hear their stories, and we give them a special blessing.
What a fall it is for the Brawerman Elementary School Blaze! This sports season there are more students than ever involved in the after-school athletics program on our two campuses—girl's basketball and coed flag football at Brawerman West and the Grade 4 coed soccer team at Brawerman East.

Brawerman West has been part of the Coastal Canyon League for the past decade, with Grades 4, 5, and 6 boys and girls teams in basketball, volleyball, soccer, and flag football. Currently at West, the flag football team practices out on the field, while the girl's basketball team is working out on a shiny new gym floor.

Through the dedicated efforts of Coach Chris Donohoe, Brawerman East is now a founding member of the Hollywood-Wilshire League. And with our first Grade 4 coed soccer team at East practicing and playing most of its games on the new rooftop athletic complex, we now have a great place to play with a backdrop of incredible views (see below for some fabulous photos).

Participating in team sports is said to encourage children to take risks, build resilience, learn to play by rules, set goals, and win or lose with grace. Our Brawerman coaches remind students that the name on the front of their jerseys—“Brawerman”—and the values it represents are more important than any individual player. Winning is nice, but being a mensch comes first.

Coming Attraction: Winter Camp!

Wilshire Boulevard Temple Camps is excited to announce its first-ever Winter Camp. The five-day session, Wednesday, December 23, to Sunday, the 27, will bring together campers and counselors from both of our camp communities at our beautiful Gindling Hilltop Camp overlooking the Pacific Ocean. All children currently in Grades 2–7, newcomers and old-timers, are eligible to be winter campers.

In fact, this session, which is designed to harmoniously blend novice and returning campers, is the perfect opportunity for kids to try sleep-away camp for the first time. And for these kids as well as our “seasoned” campers who just can’t wait until summer, Winter Camp is a great opportunity to try most of the activities we offer during the summer, including:

- Archery
- Arts and Crafts
- Basketball
- Campfire activities
- Dancing (Israeli)
- Drama
- Ga-Ga
- Limud (Jewish education)
- Ropes courses
- Singing
- Soccer
- Softball
- Swimming (depending on weather)
- Volleyball
- Zip-lining
- And so much more!

And, as always, campers will make new friends, spend time in nature, and explore and experience Jewish values.

The all-inclusive cost for our first-ever Winter Camp, scheduled for December 23-27, is $500 (includes all meals and snacks). Space is limited, so don’t wait! Visit us online to register at wbtcamps.org. And don’t forget to spread the word and invite your friends to join us!

Religious School

Youth Programs for Teens

Wilshire Boulevard Temple Religious School is pleased to offer diverse, exciting programs for students in Grades 8 through 12. Whether teens are looking to hang out and make friends, earn community service credit, learn from the Rabbis, or travel the world, there is something for everyone!

Want to hang with friends? Check out these:
- Wednesday Night program at Irmas and our Beit Midrash program at Glazer on Sundays are all about community!
- Rosh Hodesh: It’s a Girl Thing!, specifically for teenage girls, presents Jewish teachings and practices and provides a safe place for girls to talk about life, being Jewish, and living in L.A.

Interested in learning with the Rabbis and/or earning community service credits?
- The Philanthropy program gives teens the opportunity to learn about tzedakah and effective fundraising; they can choose issues they want to address, fundraise for those causes, and pick charities they’d like to impact directly.

- At Lunch ‘n’ Learn, led by Temple clergy and Religious School youth-programs educators, teens earn community service and discuss relevant topics.
- Feel like getting away? Come with us!
- It’s not too late to sign up for the amazing Camp Hess Kramer retreat on November 6-8, during which students make new friends and reconnect with old ones.
- On the Southeast Civil Rights Journey (February 12–15, 2016), students learn about the African-Americans’ struggles for equality in the 1950s and ’60s and how Jews were involved in the Civil Rights movement.
- Camp Hess Kramer plays host to the Retreat on Love and Relationships from a Jewish Perspective (back by popular demand!), where teens (joined by others from L.A.-area synagogues) discuss those topics that make us all a little uncomfortable (March 11–13, 2016).

Most Religious School programs are open to students in Grades 8–12. For details, please contact Cameron Vaughter, Director of Teen Programs, at cvaughter@wbtla.org
Picnicking Sukkah-Style

The Temple’s Early Childhood Centers celebrated the holiday of Sukkot with fun family picnics inside student-decorated sukkahs. The Mann Family ECC enjoyed its picnic on Thursday, October 1, while at Glazer, families gathered on Friday, October 2. At both, a special picnic box dinner was available by pre-order through Temple caterer John Bard. Music—always a big part of Early Childhood Centers celebrations—was provided by Jason Mesches, who joined us in the sukkah for holiday songs.

Children created decorations for the sukkah, painted and sketched still-life fruit scenes, and wrote down their hopes and wishes for the world in the New Year. At Glazer, the picnic was followed by an inspiring Shabba Dabba service, which was an evening for the senses: we shook the lulav, smelled the etrog, sang, and ate from a fruit cart.

Some families enjoy their Sukkot evening at the Early Childhood Centers so much that it inspires them to start their own tradition of building a sukkah at home, whether buying a do-it-yourself sukkah (sold through various online sources) or building one from scratch. After all, what’s more fun than building a tent or fort with the whole family?

Clockwise: Children crafting decorations for the sukkah; Waiting in line at the fresh fruit cart; Eating a picnic dinner by Temple caterer, John Bard; Dancing and singing songs in the sukkah with Jason Mesches.
