I often tell people that working with b’nei mitzvah students is one of my favorite things about being a rabbi, because without fail I learn something from every student I work with, and working with Rachel was no exception.

“Why did God create the world in six days?” she asked me a few weeks ago.

“Do you mean, how did God create the world in only six days?” I tried to clarify.

“No. I mean why did it take God six days? I mean, if God is powerful enough to create the whole world, couldn’t God just do it all in one day?”

It was a remarkably thoughtful question that had never occurred to me. In reading the opening chapters of Bereshit, we’re often troubled by the notion that God created the entire world in just six days—after all, it doesn’t make sense. But in getting stuck on that point, we lose sight of a simple truth the Torah is communicating: The world wasn’t built in a day. Like any large and daunting task, it had to be done one step at a time. Even God needs time to get things right.

We’re all busy and have endless responsibilities. We face large and daunting tasks, some so overwhelming that we wonder how we’ll ever conquer them. There simply aren’t enough hours in the day. That’s why it helps to remember, as the famous saying goes, “Rome wasn’t built in a day.” And as Torah reminds us, neither was the world.

Daily Reflections for Elul

It's never too late to change. Our spiritual tradition brings that concept to life each New Year. As we approach the year 5774, we look inward to see our mistakes, our confusions, our unintentional errors. We sit with the pain of those experiences, consider them and ask for help to make changes. We call this transition process T’shuvah, a turning, a turning both inward and onward.

This takes time! The Jewish calendar devotes 40 days to spiritual transition, beginning in Elul, the month prior to the High Holy Days. The four letters of the name Elul are an acronym for the initial letters of the phrase found in the Song of Songs (6:3): I am to my beloved and my beloved is mine. The loving relationship between God and the Jewish people means that although we have gotten off the right track this past year, we are always able to approach God in love, asking, “May I come back to You, O God?” And God’s response is always a merciful and compassionate yes.

During Elul, notice that we are mere human beings distracted by business and money, power and politics, love and lust, but we can make small changes each day. Let each day become an opportunity for growth and change. On each day of Elul, you can choose to read an Elul message from Wilshire Boulevard Temple; these reflections can prompt our daily “soul-work” as the messages encourage us to come closer to our best selves and to God, the Source of All. Read the reflections, talk about them, journal them, blog about them. Work with a friend and expand the spiritual and psychological interpretations. (And you can also email them to me at rklf@wbtla.org.)

Try this reflection on for size: “Don’t regret what you said; rather, regret what you didn’t say when you had the chance.” How can this reflection lead you to become your best self in 5774? How can you live it? How can you share it?

*L’shana Tova Tikayeynu—May the daily Elul preparations open you to Tshuvah /Spiritual Transformation and lead you and yours to a year of goodness and peace.

Rabbi Karen Fox

The Religious School is proud to introduce a new element to our program, an annual school theme to be part of each student’s course of study. This year’s theme, Mitzvah Magic, will reveal the power of mitzvot (commandments) and help students better understand tikkun olam (repairing the world). Because Judaism values each individual as an ongoing partner with God in creating the world, each of us must live as if we are personally responsible for making the world a better place.

We want what our students learn in Religious School to be relevant to their lives, and we want them to see the lessons of Judaism as valuable tools in living a better life. We are committed to character education, and to that end our school mission includes teaching, inspiring and modeling Jewish values, as well as the sense that each of us has the opportunity to improve the world through our words and actions.

We will use tikkun olam to teach values appropriate to our students’ age and grade levels. Students will not only learn the importance of the principle but also experience Mitzvah Magic through active participation in their mitzvah theme.

A magic year in Religious School

Tikkun Olam to Teach Values Appropriate to Our Students’ Age and Grade Levels

We will explore the following mitzvot by grade:

- Kindergarten – Welcoming Guests
- Grade 1 – Caring for Animals
- Grade 2 – Caring for the Environment
- Grade 3 – Respect for Differences
- Grade 4 – Feeding the Hungry
- Grade 5 – Respect for the Elderly
- Grade 6 – Love of Israel
- Grade 7 – Caring for the Stranger and b’nei mitzvah projects
- HS Grades – Teen philanthropy and social-action activities

The mitzvot relate to all areas of life: our relationship to God; the practice of rituals; and our responsibility to family, neighbors, the environment, animals, and the world. We hope you will share the Mitzvah Magic with your children.

Meet Our Team!

As we greet the New Year, we welcome some new and old friends to our administrative team. Gillian Feldman, former Brawerman teacher and admissions director, has become the principal of a growing population of students at Brawerman East. Founding kindergarten teacher Amy Carson is working closely with Gillian as assistant principal.

Nadine Zysman, fondly remembered as Miss Taran by her former Grade 2 students, now serves as admissions director of Brawerman West. She is joined by Brandon Cohen, the administrator guiding teaching and learning for grades K through 6 at Brawerman West. He brings a wealth of experience and administrative expertise from his tenure as principal of an LAUSD campus.

We are fortunate to have them both join our team and support our mission to foster excellence and menschlichkeit for every Brawerman student.

Our Director Carol Bovill Featured on New Website

Our very own Carol Bovill, M.A.Ed, is now featured on a new website that is fast becoming the go-to online resource for parenting. Kids in the House (kidsinthehouse.com), the “ultimate parenting resource,” features a panel of 450 experts from across the country appearing on more than 8,000 videos to guide mothers and fathers on their parenting journey. Subjects include pregnancy, college and everything in between. Carol joins a panel of esteemed professionals from every parenting field—pediatricians, clinical psychologists, directors of programs at children’s hospitals, magazine editors and safety experts, to name just a few.

Our congregation can also take advantage of Carol’s expertise live and in-person through our Coffee with Carol program. Twice each month—once on each campus—Carol conducts a free parenting workshop open to all Temple members to guide and empower them to be the best parents possible. She focuses on an essential topic at each session and always invites parents to participate in the conversation to address their concerns.

50 Years of Friendship

The annual Leadership Reunion Dinner, held on Leadership Night, brings together camp alumni from the 5- and 10-year Leadership anniversaries. This year, 125 alumni from Leadership ’63, ’68, ’73, ’78, ’83, ’88, ’93, ’98 and 2003 gathered to reconnect and reminisce in Gildred Hall for dinner before assembling with more than 300 additional Leadership alumni and the entire camp community to sing their Leadership songs and chant their cheers in the Rabbi Alfred Wolf Amphitheatre. Following the song session, all the Leadership alumni gathered in the dining hall for an elaborate reception and two-hour Leadership reunion.

This year, alumni from Leadership ’63 reunited to share stories and photos. For many, it was the first time back at camp in the 50 years since being part of their Leadership program. Most evident was the strong connection they felt for each other and for Camp. The 50-year hiatus had not diminished their love and passion for all things Camp and for each other, as hugs, squeals of joy and happy tears marked the event and highlighted the evening.
