

Teaching as a Profession 2

Strands

1. Students will examine career opportunities, licensing requirements, professional conduct practices, and organizations
2. Students will identify different types of schools and education design
3. Students will examine the theories of Piaget, Maslow, and Erikson and how they relate to student learning
4. Students will identify and analyze how culturally responsive teaching meets the needs of diverse learners, explore landmark court cases and the impact on the learning environment today
5. Students will identify components of a lesson plan, explore state approved strands and standards, and identify instructional strategies, technology, and assessment used in the learning environment
6. Students will learn strategies and methods to manage the learning environment

Performance Skills

1. Strand 1
 - Students will create an educational timeline, using education resources and websites, to outline and plan a schedule for their personal career path.
 - Students will develop a resume highlighting their personal workplace and employability skills needed for an educational career
2. Strand 3
 - Students will create a visual artifact that depicts the theory of either Piaget or Erikson for a parent of a developing child
 - Students will create a pyramid of Maslow's eight-level Hierarchy of Needs and incorporate personal examples
3. Strand 4
 - Students will complete the ACES Risk Assessment ACES
 - Students will create an artifact to explore personal culture biases. Artifacts could include personal essay, oral presentations, song, poetry, art, etc.
 - Student will research education court cases and present findings. Examples of artifacts could include a mock court trial, debate, TED talk, or a comparison to current issues in education
4. Strand 5
 - Students will prepare and present a 15-minute lesson based on one approved standard from the Utah State Board of Education (including lesson, activity, formative/summative assessment, and a reflection) in a content area of their choice
5. Strand 6
 - Students will interview a teacher about their classroom management plan that includes an outline addressing safety, bullying, and expectations for all students

