President's Message

Dear HBA Ohana,

This has been an unprecedented school year in our 71 years of educating students. Returning from Winter Break, no one could have predicted the many changes that were coming our way.

As the COVID crisis progressed, our faculty, staff and administration began making plans to continue providing a quality, Christ-centered education to our students. Once it became clear that we would not be able to return to our campuses for the remainder of the school year, quick adjustments allowed us to initiate our Online Learning Protocol. While there were certainly a few rough transitions, we remained steadfast and believed that God's faithfulness would lead us in these uncharted waters. Thank you to the faculty, staff, and administrators who spent countless hours collaborating and facilitating online learning so our learning could continue.

Even though our campuses were closed, it was our desire, along with our students and their families, for the Class of 2020 to come together one last time for their commencement ceremony. To do this, we delayed the ceremony for one month. While this issue is not specifically focused on graduation, I do want to extend my sincere congratulations to all 110 students of the Class of 2020. We hope you are pleased with the efforts made to honor your accomplishments, which we will highlight in detail in the next issue of Soaring Eagle.

As challenging as it was to be apart from each other, I am very proud of our students and how they stood up to adversity. They made it through the remainder of the year with online learning. Some even used their time to learn new skills and discover things they never knew about themselves before COVID-19. The pandemic forced us to hit "pause," and there has been much time for everyone to reassess the important things in life. Perhaps this was God's way of forcing us to focus on what matters most.

As we start the new school year, our learning environment has changed. We will continue to be flexible and provide all health and safety measures necessary so we can continue to do our part and stop the spread of COVID-19. We also remain true to our mission and committed to providing the best academic atmosphere to support our students. We thank you for your continued support of HBA.

"Rejoice always, pray continually, give thanks in all circumstances; for this is God's will for you in Christ Jesus," 1 Thessalonians 5:16-18.

Sincerely,

Ron Shiira '75

Our Learning Continues

By Kaycee Nakashima '20

IN EARLY JANUARY, the World Health Organization began tracking a cluster of pneumonia cases in Wuhan, China. By the end of January, it was declared a novel coronavirus outbreak eventually named COVID-19. The world watched as COVID-19 cases grew exponentially, causing it to be declared a pandemic on March 11, forcing countries and businesses to shut down, pushing health systems to the brink of collapse and creating an uncertain future.

When HBA began its Spring Break on March 13, little did anyone realize that there would be no return to school for the remainder of the school year. All schools statewide were closed, including HBA, as the governor ordered everyone to “shelter-in-place” to “flatten the curve” of the rate of infections and slow the spread of the disease.

Due to COVID-19, Hawaii Baptist Academy immediately shifted to online learning for its return to school in mid-March. The teachers were able to quickly pivot since HBA had integrated technology into their curriculum many years prior. Teachers were already in the habit of videoing themselves for evaluations and were very familiar with the Google Platform utilized within the HBA curriculum. Students and faculty were able to meet through Google Meets and used Google Classroom to receive and turn in assignments. In addition, pre-recorded sessions and live meetings were held in which students participated.

At the middle and high school, students met with teachers every other day, continuing the extended class schedule. At the end of each school day, teachers made sure students could receive the extra help they needed by allowing them to schedule meetings outside of class hours with one other student to accompany them. Counselors also sent out surveys at the end of each week to check students’ mental, emotional, and physical well-being. Additionally, they ensured that students had the option to meet with their assigned counselor to talk about personal or school-related issues.

The school kept parents up-to-date by sending out weekly “What’s Coming Up” eNewsletters that offered links to blogs to help parents.

The pandemic also didn’t stop HBA from continuing its annual events, such as the HBA Arts and Film Festival (HBAAFF). The festival, which is usually held at the high school campus, was held online. Families were able to enjoy student feature films, documentaries, and artwork from the comfort of their homes. The online festival also included the elementary campus’s entire Young Artists Exhibition for the first time.

The school partnered with several churches from the Hawaii Pacific Baptist Convention to provide additional daily meals at the shelter. [9] Cross country and track coach Derek Coryell led online workouts via Google Meets.

Continuing community online was also important. At the elementary school, fourth grade teacher Jeri Rawlings encouraged her students to put on a puppet show to help them overcome being shy in their new online environment, while also creating new and fun memories at home with their families.

The school also celebrated important academic accomplishments. Eighth grader Brendan Aoki won first place overall in the junior division at the Hawaii State Science and Engineering Fair, which was all conducted online. The school's newspaper, The Eagle Eye, also claimed the state title for the sixth year in a row.

Many members of the HBA community went above and beyond the call of duty during this time of need. The school's chefs prepared over 8,000 meals for two homeless shelters in Honolulu. Sisters Lydia, junior, and Euodia Lan, eighth grader, raised $20,000 to purchase N95 face masks for health care workers at Kuakini Health Center by creating a GoFundMe webpage. Brothers Max, fifth grader, and Jack Okazaki, third grader, made cheer flowers from an online instructional video by HBA art teacher Katie Small and put them up in their community to raise the spirits of those passing by.

Student Memoir:

How the Coronavirus Changed My Family Life

By TJ Halemano-Reed '20

When the stay-at-home order started, I'll admit that at first, I only thought about myself and my own problems. I felt that it was unfair that I didn't have a senior night for judo or that my high school graduation ceremony might be canceled. But during my time in self-isolation, I started to see that there are bigger problems out there.

MY MOM is a registered nurse at Kapiolani Medical Center for Women and Children. When the pandemic took off in March, her unit began preparing for an influx of patients and put in place extra safety measures, such as wearing PPE (personal protective equipment) and following distancing rules.

Working at the hospital also increased my mother's exposure to the virus. For my own safety and protection, my mom sent me to live with my grandma. But there was also a concern for my grandma's health and safety. So before I could move into my grandma's house, we decided that I would self-isolate myself in a camping tent that we set up in the garage for the first two weeks of my stay. If I needed to enter the house, I would wear a face mask and open doors while wearing gloves.

During that time, I thought about my mom's health and worried about who would take care of her if she did get the virus. I wondered how long this pandemic would last and when I would be able to hug my mom without being scared of catching the virus.

My mom still stops by to visit me while maintaining social distancing. However, once she comes into contact with COVID-19 patients, I'm sure that she'll make the hard decision not to visit us so as to keep us safe. This may seem extreme and ridiculous to those who aren't directly affected by the virus, but for me, it's a rational choice. I do know that in order for things to go back to normal, everyone needs to play their part. If medical workers like my mom are willing to risk their lives to serve others, staying at home isn't too much to ask for everyone else.

Blessing Those in Greater Need

AS OUR ISLAND COMMUNITY RALLIED to support one another during the COVID-19 crisis, Hawaii Baptist Academy (HBA) joined several Hawaii Pacific Baptist Convention (HPBC) churches in providing meals at two homeless shelters in Honolulu. During HBA's campus closure, the school maximized the talents of our hardworking chefs to help others. A total of 8,000 lunches were prepared and delivered to Next Step and Keauhou Shelters, serving 200 people daily, Monday through Friday, for eight weeks.

"The Hawaii Baptist Academy sponsored lunch service was instrumental in keeping our clients sheltered in place as all of Hawaii was ordered to Stay-At-Home from Governor Ige. Without a kitchen on-site, the lunches provided nutritional relief and prevented our clients from leaving the shelters in search of food," shares Kapua Tani, Community Support Coordinator. "Without hesitation HBA's president, Ron Shiira, stepped in and told me not to worry, the Good Lord will answer our prayers."

As faith would have it, people donated over $25,000 and over $3,000 worth of materials to help prepare meals. "As Mr. Shiira said, 'God has given us this opportunity to bless those who are in greater need.'"

Prior to COVID-19, the Next Step and Keauhou Shelters, through their partner churches and community organizations, provided one meal a day to shelter occupants. But with the state mandate to shelter-in-place, the shelters provided additional lunch meals so shelter guests did not leave the property in search of food, thereby doing their part to ensure the health and safety of their occupants and the community. Managed by Waikiki Health, both shelters have a long-standing ministry partnership with several HPBC churches on Oahu. OlaNui!, Olivet Baptist Church and Waialae Baptist Church have been faithfully serving dinner meals to these shelters for several years.

Tani concludes, "We want to say Mahalo to Pastor Rick Lazor of Ola Nui! Baptist Church who heard and shared our need during this uncertain time and guided us in the direction of Hawaii Baptist Academy. We want to thank everyone for their love and generosity as we pray together for a better tomorrow."

Alumni Chronicles

Angie Lee Kim '06

By Maurine King

In March of 2020 we began to see long lines of socially distanced customers at fabric stores on Oahu. Most shoppers wanted a yard or so of cloth to make personal masks; others wanted much more fabric to sew masks to sell. Whereas in the mid-20th century, Honolulu was dotted with “mom ‘n’ pop” fabric shops and major department stores had large sewing sections, the suppliers nowadays are few. Elastic and thread were becoming precious commodities.

Angie Lee Kim

Angie Lee Kim '06 found herself in the news as the part owner and spokesperson for Fabric Mart. The mayor created an uproar when he first declared that everyone should wear a mask, and then that fabric stores were not essential businesses. A public outcry ensued! Fabric Mart had already closed voluntarily, but the mayor backtracked and agreed that its stores were indeed essential. They reopened with only two shoppers allowed inside at a time, or 200 square feet per person. Most of the business was on-line, with customers waiting in their cars for the goods to be brought outside. Of course this was labor-intensive and relatives and friends with some knowledge of fabrics were enlisted to help handle the workload.

In the midst of the pandemic, Angie was taking exams to complete her Executive MBA at the University of Hawaii. She says her classes tended to become therapy sessions for those whose businesses were struggling with the “new normal.” Two classes were especially helpful:

Leadership and Negotiation, the latter while she was negotiating with companies in Asia for elastic cord.

Angie's parents, Daniel and Sunny Lee, immigrated from South Korea in the early '80s to pursue the “American dream.” That meant owning their own business, but their first two ventures failed. Mr. Lee was a new Christian and prayed that if the Lord would help him succeed with the next one, he would “give back.”

Fabric Mart not only succeeded, but grew into three retail stores on Oahu, one on Maui, a wholesale fabric business, and commercial real estate holdings.

And Mr. Lee has indeed given back. He is an elder at his Korean Presbyterian church and is known for his generosity to worthy causes. He is also president of a Korean Christian broadcasting agency.

As she transitions into leadership of the company, Angie sees some positives in the crisis. For one, it has pushed Fabric Mart to become more digital. For another, it may spur the revival in home sewing Angie had been hoping to promote.

Angie with husband Peter Kim.

As masks become fashion accessories, and as more long unused sewing machines are dusted off and oiled, will home sewers return to making clothes?

The transition is evident in some of Hawaii's prisons, which have become mask factories. Angie hears reports that the inmates are enjoying their new skill and want to sew garments for themselves.

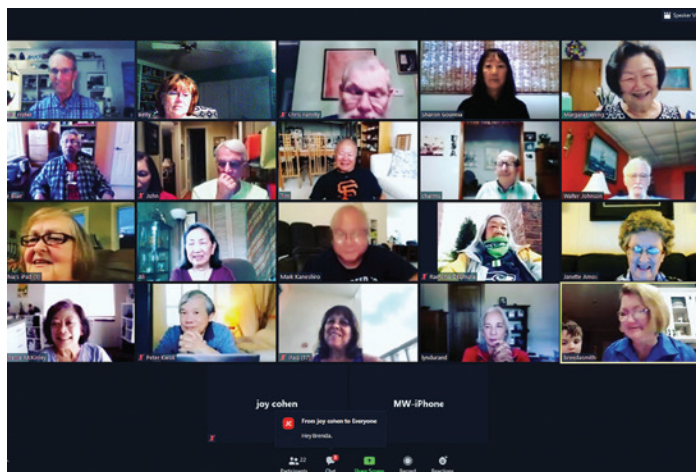

On August 17, 2019, Angie married Peter Kim, whom she had met at a church camp in California ten years earlier. Peter worked at Ruth's Chris Steak House. When it had to close, he was one of the family members brought in to help Fabric Mart.

HBAers will remember Angie as a "lifer" (enrolled since kindergarten). Her many activities included singing with Soldiers of Light. She still uses her beautiful voice to lead worship at Inspire Church.

THIRTY-SIX MAINLAND FRIENDS attended the 44th annual Mainland Advisory Council meeting, which took place on February 18–21. Of the 36, six are new MAC members. They enjoyed visiting all three campuses, interacting with students, eating lots of delicious local food, and hearing testimonies from students, parents, and alumni. The devotional speaker was Rev. Chris Martin, executive director of the Hawaii Pacific Baptist Convention.

Our school community gathered on Friday, February 21, to celebrate HBA with our MAC and local friends who have supported the school throughout the years. The highlight of the evening was the music by the high school concert choir, Soldiers of Light, and Halau Hula 'o Ka Lama 'Ula, under the direction of Todd Yokotake '84. A tribute to this year's school theme, Cultivate, showcased alumni testimonials near and far, and concluded with a remembrance of the late Dr. Darold Morgan. Dr. Morgan was a founding member of the Mainland Advisory Council (MAC) in 1977. He served as MAC Chair from 1998–2001 and was honored in 2019 as a 70th Anniversary Legacy award honoree for his service to God.

Rev. Chris Martin sharing during the morning devotional.

Mahalo Sharon Hagio! God's Faithful Servant

After 51 years of service to HBA, Sharon Hagio has retired.

Known to her co-workers as the unofficial historian of the school, she has witnessed God's blessings and provisions firsthand as the school has expanded and flourished. Her personal relationships with the families, alumni, and local and mainland supporters are irreplaceable. Ask anyone, and they will agree that she has a 'Rolodex' memory, remembering the names of many alumni and the year that they graduated.

When Sharon graduated from the University of Hawaii in 1969, Hawaii Baptist Academy and the Academy Baptist Church (now Central Baptist Church) were set to build a new facility on Nehoa Street. Being a member of the church, Sharon was urged to "help out temporarily" in the school office. According to Sharon, there was never a convenient time to leave to pursue other things. She began working as the secretary to President Col. Sagert, and the following year added secretarial responsibilities for the elementary school. She last served as the database specialist in the Institutional Advancement Office.

Mainland Advisory Council

Darold Morgan, 95, of Richardson, Texas, died December 11, 2019. He served as a pastor for over 20 years until 1970, when he became the president of the Southern Baptist Convention Annuity Board (now Guidestone Financial Resources), retiring in 1990 as president emeritus. He helped HBA begin a retirement benefits program, improving the recruitment and retention of qualified faculty. He was a charter member of the Mainland Advisory Council (MAC) in 1977 and served as MAC Chair, 1998–2001. He was a long-time member of First Baptist Church in Richardson, where he served as interim pastor on three occasions and taught the same Sunday School class for more than forty years. He was predeceased by his wife, Elizabeth, in 2015 and is survived by two sons; Tim (Jane) and Marshall (Debbie); daughter, Julie (Billy) Reynolds; nine grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren. The family has established the Drs. Darold and Elizabeth Morgan Scholarship Endowment Fund at HBA.

Velma Arle, 88, of Seal Beach, California, died January 5, 2020. She was a realtor and lived part-time in Kona, Hawaii. She was a longtime volunteer with "World Changers," a Christian relief group, and was active in her Baptist churches in California and Hawaii. She is survived by her husband, Eugene, and several children and grandchildren.

Maurine Gary Graham, 88, of College Station, Texas, died January 24. She is survived by her husband, William; daughters, Christy (Bud) Barnes and Sharon (Allen) Steele; sons, John Gary III (Cathy) and Jim (Carla) Gary; 2 step-children; and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Ernestine Newman, 89, of Fayetteville, North Carolina, died February 24. She was a member of Snyder Memorial Baptist Church and accompanied her husband on 21 mission trips overseas through the Baptist International Mission Board. She is survived by her husband, Dr. William Harold Newman; three sons; one daughter; 13 grandchildren; and eight great grandchildren.

Virginia Riddle, 92, of Valdese, North Carolina, died March 10. A retired teacher, she served as a pianist and organist for the Valdese First Methodist Church and Valdese First Baptist Church. She was also a missionary in Seoul, Korea, and Burrel Boom, Belize.

Special Friends

Lefanoga "Ray" Viliamu, 80, of Kapolei, Hawaii, died January 29. He was the retired pastor of the Makakilo Baptist Church. He served as Christian Activities Director at HBA, 1974–76. He is survived by his wife, Lena; daughter, Lenore '86; son, Larson '88; and three grandchildren. He was predeceased by his son, Landon '88, in July, 2019.

Glynn Stone, Jr., 46, of Longview, Texas, died March 19 in a car accident. He was the senior pastor of Mobberly Baptist Church which has supported HBA since 1975. Dr. Stone was the devotional speaker for MAC Week in 2014. He is survived by his wife, Angie; sons, Glynn III (Trey), Luke and Colter; his parents, Glynn and Lynn Stone; and sisters, Adina (Gary) Scruggs, and Annette (Jarrel) Watt.

CHRISTIAN SYMPATHY is also expressed to the following HBA employees on the loss of a loved one:

Jianguo Zhang of the facilities department on the passing of his father, Zhang Kui Xue, 78, in China on October 22, 2019.

Kathleen Fujimoto, teacher aide, on the passing of her father, Marine Ross, 92, of Waipahu, Hawaii, on December 20 in Honolulu. He was the grandfather of Abraham Fujimoto, HBA junior, and Christopher Fujimoto '17.

Lois Kwon, high school nurse, on the passing of her father, Donald F. Ho, 84, of Honolulu on December 24. He was the grandfather of Nicholas Kwon '20, Natalie Kwon '18 and Marissa Kwon '16.

Traci Haly, upper school admissions director, on the passing of her son, Andrew Haly II, 25, on February 20, in Reynolds, Indiana. He was the brother of Reese Haly '20.
