YOUTH AND FAMILIES

The purpose of Reach Youth and Families is to enhance youth and families' ability to meet life's challenges by fostering resiliency and hope.

Reach Youth and Families is....

Family-Driven

Strong minds and strong futures begin with stronger families. Reach Youth and Families care coordinators and family support partners support and engage families, empowering the family's voice and ability to make decisions.

Community-Based

Strong futures require continued support. The wraparound process in Reach Youth and Families helps families identify the people already in their communities and lives who can help. By doing so, wraparound helps families and their children remain in their community.

Youth-Guided

Strong minds make positive decisions. Reach Youth and Families puts children and youth in a position to be heard and guide the process of creating strong futures for themselves. The strengths and goals of the child and youth determine the types and mix of services and supports provided.

Culturally and Linguistically Competent

Care coordinators and family advocates in Reach Youth and Families understand the complex needs and challenges of each family. Reach Youth and Families strives to provide services that reflect the cultural, racial, ethnic and linguistic differences in the population.

Why Choose High-fidelity Wraparound?

Getting the right help can be difficult for parents who are concerned about a child's emotional or behavioral health, or for families who are involved in multiple systems. High-fidelity wraparound may be the right choice for families already receiving services, and those who may not know where to start looking to find help.

High-fidelity wraparound is a unique and successful tool because:

It offers a safe environment for listening and non-judgmental help.

It removes pressure from you and allows high-fidelity wraparound to bring support to you and "wrap" your family with a support system of care.

It understands cultural differences and will respect your family's values and beliefs.

It allows your family to pick the services and resources that are right for you.

It starts by giving you the chance to develop a care plan with people you trust. Each plan is unique and specifically developed for each family.

It offers a team that works with your family to focus on its current strengths and identify what is needed to develop new skills. The team also ensures that everyone is working toward the same goals.

Change is a process, not an event!

Discover the difference that a high-fidelity wraparound approach makes.
