A Year in the City

Janet Muhm

A Year in the City began first as a calendar, designed to trim down for easy framing in a standard 11 x 14 frame. The business has grown to include prints, notecards, holiday cards, and gifts. Artwork is created digitally, using photographs as reference material. People are often added when illustrations are otherwise complete, to create "stories" of the St. Louis places we all know and love.

Angelina Accoutrements

Jen Sertl

For 13 years, Jen Sertl has repurposed cashmere into one-of-a-kind wraps, scarves, fingerless gloves, hats and sweaters. Jen's inspiration is rooted in tradition. She was inspired by her grandmother's practice of using what you have to create something new, by the idea of giving something a second life that is somehow more beautiful than the first, and by the idea of that in doing so, she is honoring her heritage.

Dancing Moon Graphics

Mark Hurd

I am drawn to bright vivid colors and contrast, whether they be a brilliant neon red sign against the dark wall of an inner city building or the infinite, saturated shades of green in a radiant tree bathed in late day sun. In my early artistic development, I concentrated on drawing and graphics and made the logical move to digital art and computer graphics that gave the ability to create abstractly, with a heavy contrast of light and dark, and saturated color.

Mahnal Jewelry

Shayba Muhammad

Mahnal is a collection of handcrafted contemporary brass jewelry that takes inspiration from the places we find most meditative. This includes silhouettes in nature, the repetition of lines in architecture, or how light plays against texture. With the Arabic naming and organic imperfections of each piece, they are imbued with an identity all their own. Mahnal sheds light on the gentle, insightful, and poetic beauty of Islam and the Arabic language. By inspiring contemplation, Mahnal creates a pathway to embracing slower, more intentional living.

REnU Body Essentials

Lara Mark

As a person with dry skin, I have always searched for a body scrub that would give a good exfoliation, but also RE-hydrate my skin. Having spent endless amounts of money, I either found a barely-there body polish made mostly of lotion or a very rough scrub with excessive oily residues. I started to explore a way to create the perfect harmony between granules and moisturizers. In this process, I fell in love with creating a natural body product that not only enhances the beauty of the skin, but one that looks beautiful as well.

Series 6

Sami Maurer

Born and raised in Saint Louis, I opened my shop in college while studying business and graphic design. I was in search of a St. Louis shirt to bring back to my southern university and took it upon myself to create one. After realizing there was a demand for what I had made, I started producing more shirts. I continued to design, participate in local events, and expand my business. At age twenty-four I have been growing my company full-time for a year, and my entrepreneurial passion is only just beginning.

Sherwood Linders Luminaries

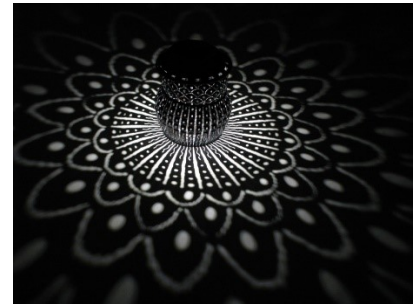

Sherwood Linders

All of my luminaries are hand cut using an acetylene torch. Each luminary is unique and are made out of upcycled coffee and juice cans. I strive to make luminaries that are unique works of art that make enchanting shadows. My environmentally friendly art helps to keep discarded items out of a land fill.

The Wooden Doerr

Steve & Valerie Doerr

Our primary goal is to create one of a kind or limited edition wood turned art that shows the beauty that God has hidden in His many different trees. To accomplish this, we turn wood into bowls, hollow forms/vases, platters, pens and pendants. Our artwork has been given as gifts to government and business officials in the United States and in other countries around the world. Please take the time to look through our website and enjoy the various pieces of art that we have on display.

Thomas Wiggins Ceramics

Thomas Wiggins

I earned a BS from Kent State University, '84, having the pleasure of studying under John Gill and Richard Hensley. I operated my own studio in Massachusetts, and am the recipient of a National Endowment for the Arts Grant and a Grant from the Massachusetts Cultural Council. Since moving to St. Louis in 1996, I have been an instructor at Craft Alliance, teaching both children and adults beginning and advanced wheel techniques, functional and sculptural considerations, and strategies for glazing.

Zak Pottery

Sandra Zak

Zak Pottery reflects both the practical and creative sides of the artist's personality, contrasting strong utilitarian forms with designs, lines and patterns that complement the spontaneous nature of clay and the richness and diversity of our environment. All work is stoneware and safe to use in both the microwave and dishwasher..
