Basement Monster

I unlocked the chain to the basement and descended into darkness. The noise was coming from the back of the basement. The closer I got, the louder it became. The floorboards shook as I cautiously walked one step at a time. Suddenly everything stopped and there was silence. The only sound I could hear was the pulsing of my heart. Feeling my way through the darkness, sharp claws grabbed my neck. Cold blood poured down my body. No matter how hard I tried to pull away, its grasp was too tight. With no more fight left, I surrendered.

The morning I will never forget

This morning I woke up, and got ready for school. This morning would be a morning that I would never forget. Why couldn't I have called in sick that morning? You're probably wondering what happened so here it goes. Once I got to school I went to my locker, when I opened my locker, you won't believe what was inside. There was a dead bloody arm sticking out of my locker! I ran to tell the principal but when I got to her office I realized that was not just any arm, it was the principal's arm!

On Friday, October 23, Marlene was walking home from hanging out with friends. It was about 9:00, way past her curfew, but she didn't care. She was taking her sweet time, not wanting to be yelled at by her mom when she gets home. She heard a noise. "What was that?" She said under her breath. It sounded like a low growl. She quickened her pace. Suddenly, something ran at her! It knocked her to the ground. It turned out to be her friends trying to scare her. She chuckled, "You scared me!"
