

How do we socially distance semester exams?

This was the million dollar question that the Academic Council took on at their meeting last Friday, November 6th. The council quickly realized that innovation is not always distant. The answer was right under our nose.

Why not change the exam schedule so that exams can happen in the already-socially distanced classes? In order for this to happen, we will need to add one day to the exam schedule and make a few other adjustments to maintain two review days prior to exams.
