Frequently Asked Questions

- Can I come to campus early if I only have a block 2 exam?
    - Yes. However, students who arrive on campus and who are not sitting exams are expected to check in with our supervisors at the Center of Innovation/Library where we will hold a study hall. Students must remain in the study hall until the passing period.

- If I only have a first block exam, can I leave after the exam?
    - Yes, we ask that all students who do not need to remain on campus leave after their first exam block.

- If I need to remain on campus after a block one exam and I don't have a block two exam, where should I go?
    - Students who need to remain on campus when they are not sitting an exam will report to the Center of Innovation/Library for study hall. Students will check in with the supervisors and remain in the study hall until dismissal.

- What happens if I want to study with my friends?
    - If you and your friends wish to study off campus you may arrange to do so. This means that you would not arrive on campus for the day until the passing period between exams, or you'd leave campus during the passing period and not return to campus for the day.

- Can students get help before the exam?
    - We encourage students to reach out to their teachers for help and support as needed in advance of exam day.
    - Please note that on the day of the exam itself, teachers will be preparing for and assessing exams, so students cannot reach out to their teacher on the day of the exam itself.
    - This is particularly important as the time between exams is short and teachers will also need time to set up their exams, conduct temperature taking, etc.

- Where will students go for lunch?
    - Buses will depart campus at 12:15, with walkers dismissed shortly thereafter. It is expected that all students leave campus at these times.
    - Students may purchase food as they have been doing during study halls and the passing period, but we will not have a formal lunch break.

- What should I wear for my exams?
    - It is expected that all students will adhere to the dress code as published on the school calendar. If students meet the Holiday Giving goal of filling two bins with sweets and treats for our support staff, then those days will be announced as alternate dress days.
