More than 20 years ago, when I was talking with Fr. O'Neill about writing a column for seniors, I told him I planned to call it "Senior Moments." He didn't think much of that idea, suggesting it had a negative connotation, that of forgetfulness. He recalled others using the phrase. When they couldn't remember something, they'd say, "Oh, I'm having a senior moment!" I explained the title had to do with news for seniors and nothing to do with memory. In the end, he gave me the OK.

However, he did have a point. Since then, a lot has been done to draw awareness of cognitive issues by the medical community and many organizations around the globe. There's a huge effort to educate people about this critical issue affecting seniors, mostly, and to focus on ways to help those caring for loved ones who are suffering from this debilitating condition. Recently announced in Fairfax County is a Webinar series that will cover the basics of dementia and help us learn how to take care of our brain. It's a 3-part on-line program which will go through the end of this month. All sessions run from 2-3 pm.

The first, "5-Ways to Take Care of Your Brain," is on January 15. You'll learn about age-related changes in memory and learning, and practices to keep your brain sharp. You'll come away with practical ideas to help take care of your brain this year and beyond. "Become a Dementia Friend!" takes place on January 22. Here you'll learn to take the first step to learning more about dementia and be able to turn your new understanding into a practical action that can help someone else. The final session, "Where to Turn for Help: Resources in Fairfax County," will take place on January 29, where you'll learn about what's available in Fairfax County and how to access services and resources for your family and neighbors.

The classes will be co-taught by Insight Memory Care Center and Fairfax County Area Agency on Aging. Please register at insightmcc.org/dementiafriendly. Scroll down to the section for Fairfax, VA, and click on the "sign me up" box for the sessions that interest you, and log-in instructions will be mailed to you. Please contact Lindsey Vajpeyi at lindsey.vajpeyi@insightmcc.org or call 703-204-4664 if you have questions.
