

Resource Sheet for Section A:

Resource 1: Table of data showing the liveability of a selection of cities from around the world.

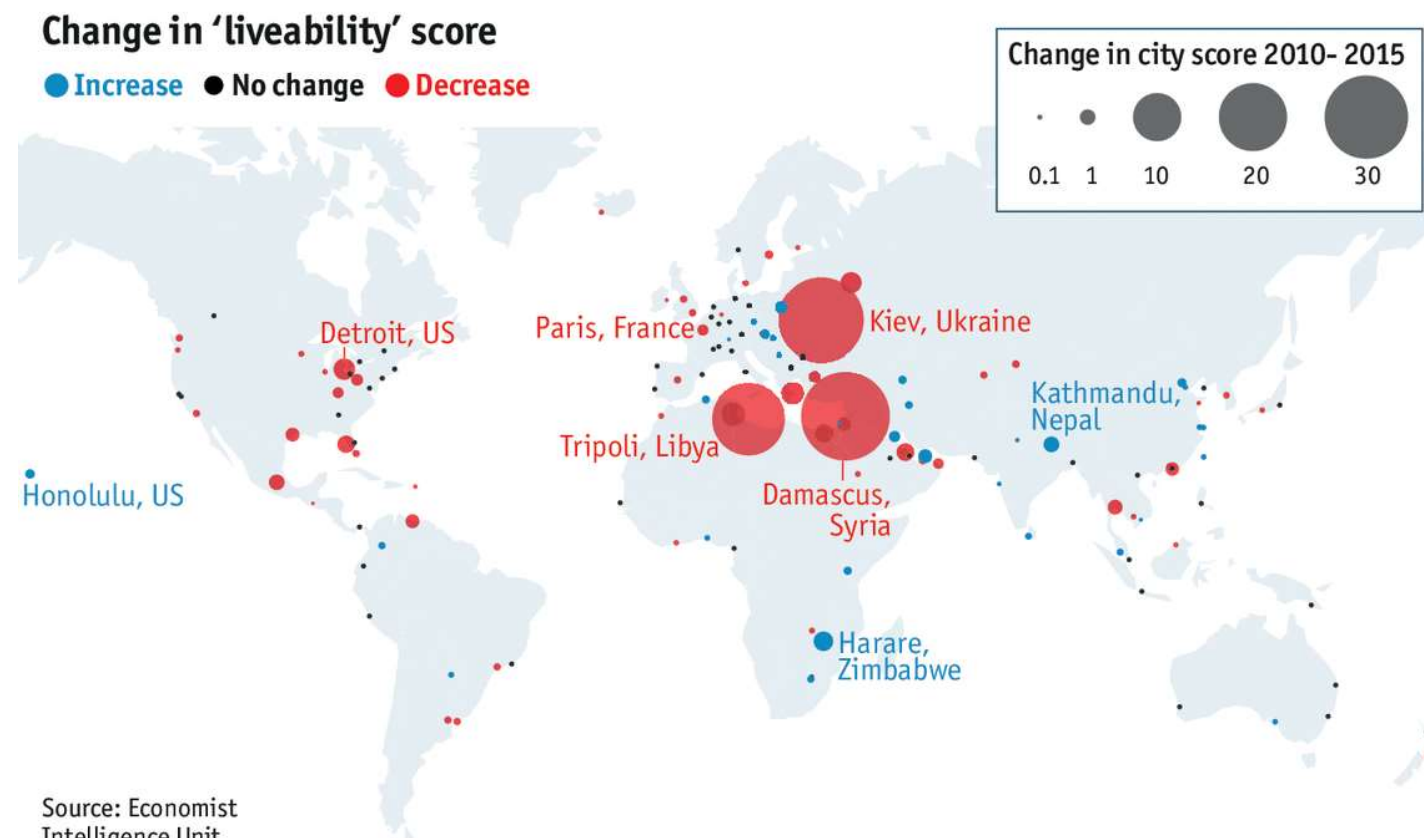

Country	City	Rank	Overall rating (100 is ideal)	Political Stability	Healthcare	Culture and Environment	Education	Infrastructure	Life Expectancy (in years)	Gross National Income* (US$)
Australia	Melbourne	1	97.5	95	100	95.1	100	100	82.5	42,800
Austria	Vienna	2	97.4	95	100	94.4	100	100	81.6	43,600
Canada	Vancouver	3	97.3	95	100	100	100	92.9	82.2	42,500
France	Paris	29	92.3	75	100	97.2	100	96.4	82.4	38,000
UK	London	53	87.2	70	87.5	97.2	100	89.3	79.2	37,900
USA	Detroit	57	85	65	91.7	90.3	100	89.1	80.8	53,200
Kenya	Nairobi	120	53.1	45	45.8	69.9	66.7	42.9	62.2	2,900
Ukraine	Kiev	131	47.8	35	54.2	48.6	75	42.9	71.1	7,400
Zimbabwe	Harare	133	42.6	40	20.8	58.6	66.7	35.7	59.2	1,600
Libya	Tripoli	138	36.6	20	41.7	40.3	50	41.1	71.8	14,300
Syria	Damascus	140	30.2	15	29.2	43.3	33.3	32.1	69.7	2,400

Gross National Income (US$)

– This is a measurement of a country’s wealth created in a year, divided by the number of people in the country.

Source: Economic Intelligence Unit and UN Human Development Index 2017.

Resource 2: Changes in liveability scores 2010-2015.

Resource 3: Two people’s perceptions of what liveability means for them.

‘I think a liveable city is a city where I can have a healthy life and where I can safely and quickly get around on foot or by bicycle, public transport or even by car — as a last resort. A liveable city is a city for everyone, including children and old people, rich and poor, and people of different religions, races and fitness levels. A liveable city should be attractive, and have good schools, a choice of things to do and fresh air.’

John from Perth, Australia

‘I think that a place is liveable if I have food every day, I do not have to walk more than 10 minutes to collect water for cooking, and my father has work close by, so he is home for dinner. Liveability means warm weather, enough rain and being able to go to school every day.’

Nafula, from Nairobi, Kenya.

